REVERSE LABOR BOARD RULING

CALLS HOPKINS' WPA STATEMENT A 3D TERM BOOM

G. O. P. Chief Blasts Growing Relief.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 22.—[Special.]—John Hamilton, chairman of the Republican national committee, in a public statement today greeted Harry Hopkins, Works Progress administrator, as the official launcher of the Roosevelt third term movement.

Mr. Hamilton so interpreted Mr. Hopkins' remark at a press conference yesterday that 90 per cent of the unemployed on Mr. Hopkins' relief rolls would vote for Mr. Roosevelt. The Republican leader furthermore charged that the Roosevelt administration is seeking to perpetuate itself in power by means of the relief billions as a campaign fund and for that reason is not interested in getting men reëmployed in private industry.

No Comment from Hopkins.

Inquiry at WPA headquarters elicited the information that Mr. Hopkins had no comment to make on Mr. Hamilton's statement. At his press conference yesterday he waved aside a question whether his remarks were to be construed as applying to the attitude of those on relief toward a third term for Mr. Roosevelt.

"Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins' statement, that he is convinced 90 per cent of the 3,000,000 on relief rolls would vote for President Roosevelt, looks like the launching of the Roosevelt third term movement by the man who might be termed the largest employer in the nation," said Mr. Hamilton.

"If Mr. Hopkins did not have in the back of his mind an intention to promote Mr. Roosevelt for a third term, why did he make such a statement?

Relief Rolls Increase.

"In view of this development reasons become clearer for the constant increase of the federal relief rolls—now reaching a new high record—and the failure of the Roosevelt administration to take steps to stimulate private industry.

"Obviously, the Roosevelt administration is seeking to perpetuate itself in power through the use of relief funds, because as the President said in 1936, every message in a pay envelope, even if it is the truth, is a command to vote according to the will of the employer.'

"Mr. Hopkins, the employer of those on relief throws out the suggestion that it is his will that they vote for Mr. Roosevelt. When? Why, in 1940, of course.

Working for Third Term.

"None need be surprised at the brazenness of Mr. Hopkins. In view of the refusal of the Democratic leadership to permit punishment for playing politics with relief and in view of Mr. Hopkins' intervention in the Iowa primary election and what happened in Kentucky and other states, it is to be expected that the New Deal will seek to keep Mr. Roosevelt in the White House by the use of relief funds.

"But I am convinced the American people will repudiate at the polls this fall and in 1940 this shameless conduct. Indeed, it is very doubtful whether even those on the federal relief rolls would vote for Mr. Roosevelt again. What these people want are self-respecting jobs in private industry. They are growing tired of being made wards of the Roosevelt administration. They know there is neither a comfortable livelihood nor any future whatever in a job on relief. Yet that is the only thing which the New Deal today offers the country."

Relief and Politics.

For several weeks Mr. Hopkins and his organization have been the targets of charges of prostituting relief to politics. When Mr. Hopkins declared his preference for O. D. Wearin in the Iowa Democratic primary in which Mr. Roosevelt's "elimination committee" was seeking to defeat Senator Guy M. Gillette for fighting the scheme to pack the Supreme court he stirred up a hornet's nest of accusations that he was trying to deliver the relief vote to Wearin.

Senator Gillette's victory and indications that Wearin could have received no more than a small fraction of the relief vote were pronounced by Mr. Hopkins as vindication of his denial of political dictation.

A few weeks later Mr. Hopkins'

JAPAN SOFTENS TONE IN SOVIET BOUNDARY ROW

Tokio Denies Making Threat of Force.

TOKIO, July 22.—(AP)—A more conciliatory attitude was apparent in Japan tonight following the soviet union's rejection of Japan's protest that Russian troops had violated the Manchukuan frontier on July 11.

Tatsuo Kawai, official spokesman for the foreign office, denied to foreign correspondents that Japan had threatened force to eject Red soldiers who had occupied a bit of land which Moscow insisted was part of Siberia and Tokio declared belonged to Japanese protected Manchukuo.

Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese ambassador to Moscow, was said merely to have proposed to Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov that the troops be withdrawn to open the way for "a general compromise." Litvinov rejected the proposal. The Japanese spokesman said the border question could be disregarded for the time being.

Japan Gets Different Version.

In statements carried by Tokio newspaper, however, an anonymous foreign office spokesman was quoted as having said that Russia's action "must be interpreted as a challenge to Japan."

He was reported to have reiterated that Moscow must assume responsibility for the results of the border incident and to have declared "Japan is ready and has every right to take all necessary steps." He was silent on what Japan would do next.

Japanese foreign office spokesmen frequently present a situation in differing lights, depending upon whether they are talking to Japanese correspondents for home consumption or to foreign correspondents.

The Japanese-Russian dispute arose on July 11, when Russian troops occupied the Changkufeng district near where Siberia, Japanese Corea, and Manchukuo meet. On July 15 Japan protested to Moscow. Yesterday Ambassador Shigemitsu presented a second protest.

Moscow Says Threat Was Made.

Moscow's version of the affair contradicted the Japanese version. A communique issued in Moscow said Litvinov told Shigemitsu that, although threats of armed force might be good diplomacy elsewhere, "such methods will not succeed in Moscow." Of troop movements in the zone of dispute, the Russian communique said:

"Soviet detachments in this region have no other purpose than defense on our frontier. Unlike other countries, the soviet union maintains armies not for invasion, but exclusively for the defense of its own borders."

The Tokio war office officially was silent, but unofficially hope was expressed that diplomatic means could be found to settle "such an unnecessary situation."

The foreign office declined to say whether fresh instructions had been sent to Shigemitsu or what tack Japan now would pursue. The war office would not say whether Manchukuan border guards had been reinforced.

Apparently following an official order, Japanese newspapers adopted a less inflammatory tone.

Moscow Remains Calm.

MOSCOW, July 22.—(AP)—No excitement over the far eastern situation was noticeable in Moscow tonight.

The general impression was that

WAITING AT THE WATER HOLE

Fiery Meteor Fizzles Out in Winnetka

Since the night of April 4 the good villagers of Winnetka have been nursing an interplanetary illusion. They were certain that the white hot gob of metal that fell out of the sky was a meteor. And only one other town in Illinois, Tilden, in Randolph county, had ever found a meteor.

Policemen Lester Parker and Thomas Schultz were sure. They saw a blinding flash of light streak toward the earth, heard an explosion, and rushed up to find a glowing bit of metal on the parkway of Green Bay road, south of Winnetka avenue.

Pooh, Pooh, Says Geologist.

Dr. Henry Nichols, curator of geology at the Field Museum, was the first to dash cold water on the village hopes. A careful examination disclosed to Dr. Nichols that the meteor was a clinker of some sort.

But the policemen were still puzzled. If not a meteor, what was a clinker doing falling out of heaven? Yesterday they found the answer in the story told by Henry Meyers.

Meyers, who lives at 1638 Sherman avenue, Northbrook, recently received from a fellow German war veteran a relic of the war. It was a leuchtpistole. Instead of bullets it fires a charge which, when it explodes, causes a blinding light. In wartime it was used to illuminate troop movements.

Puts on Show for Friends.

Eager to demonstrate his new possession, Meyers took it to the home of friends at 81 High street. Meyers believed the pistol might shoot at the most 50 feet. He aimed it over a vacant lot in the rear of the house.

He fired and the charge soared aloft 400 feet where it exploded. When it fell the hot ashen ball was 300 yards away on Green Bay road.

Meyers still had four shells left. Wishing to get rid of them, he drove to what he thought was a lonely section of the countryside, Thornwood lane, a mile west of Northfield.

There he fired the remaining shells. Each exploded with a terrific noise high in the sky, showering a gleaming white light over the fields.

And as the last light shell fell it silhouetted the irate figure of Thomas Mason, whose home is near by. Mr. Mason was very wroth about this breach of the peace. Mr. Mason is police magistrate of Northfield.

And so Mr. Meyers' experiment in German star shells concluded with a fine of $25 for disorderly conduct. Winnetka still has no meteor.

NEW JERSEY EXPERT LETS CHICAGO IN ON THE ABC'S OF BEER

D. Frederick Burnett, member of the alcoholic beverage control commission of Newark, N. J., had his say yesterday on the subject of beer collars. He spoke his mind for Chicago's benefit in a letter to Frederick Rex, librarian of the Municipal Reference library in the city hall.

When Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] decided recently to reduce the height of foam on beer in Chicago Rex wrote to officials of about twenty cities. He wanted to know how they regulated foam. Burnett replied:

"Regulation is hardly needed in New Jersey. If a bartender puts on a neckband of towering proportions, à la the late De Wolf Hopper, he will be reminded by the thirsty that, although sartorially impeccable, an overfoam is bibulously abominable and beverages are made to be consumed and not admired for the elegance of haberdashery. If this doesn't suffice it isn't long before the customer patronizes places which affect the low-roll or shoestring collar."

"That," Rex commented, "is a mouthful."

THREE WOMEN ON TOUR MISSING IN MOUNTAIN WILDS

Santa Fe, N. M., July 22.—(AP)—The disappearance of three women tourists in the mountainous Inscription rock region south of Grants, N. M., was disclosed tonight by Gov. Clyde Tingley.

The women were identified as Miss Irene Piedalue, 45 years old, of Winchester, Ky.; her sister, Miss Laura Pidealue, 47, of New York, and Miss Marie Antoinette de Lafforest of Lexington, Ky. Miss Lafforest is an instructor in the University of Kentucky.

Gov. Tingley said it had been learned from the Winchester police the women had left there July 14 en route to Grand Canyon, and had written friends to address mail in care of Mrs. Phillip Gibbons, Billings, Mont., a sister of the Misses Piedalue.

The governor, who left immediately for Grants, said an automobile identified as that of the three women, had been parked at the ice caves, thirty miles southwest of Grants, since Tuesday. State police and sherif's deputies organized a searching party.

Too Bad! Pinochle Playing on the WPA Is Forbidden

Elizabeth, N. J., July 22.—[Special.]—Pinochle playing on WPA white collar projects must stop, Mrs. Sara V. Ackerman, district supervisor, has warned 200 Union county WPA workers in Thomas Jefferson High school.

Texas Voting Today in Daffy Primary Race

Fort Worth, Tex., July 22.—[Special.]—Oratory and music, broadcast from every available radio station, filled the Texas atmosphere tonight as the daffiest primary campaign in the history of the state closed.

Tomorrow between 800,000 and 900,000 Texans will go to the polls to choose among twelve candidates for the Democratic nomination for governor. If none of these candidates obtains a majority, which is most likely, the Democratic nomination will be decided in a runoff between the two leaders on Aug. 27. The nomination is tantamount to election.

Politicians Are Bewildered.

The man responsible for this hullabaloo, which has politicians bewildered and the mass of the people chuckling, is W. Lee O'Daniel, hill billy flour salesman. He has toured the state with a sound truck, a hill billy orchestra, and his three children.

A novice in politics, and not even qualified to vote because of failure to pay a $1.75 poll tax, O'Daniel has won favor by putting on a good show. He has assailed politicians, promised to obtain more industries for the state, and pledged himself to see that every resident over 65 years old gets a pension of $30 a month.

Other planks in his platform are the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule. He has something of the showmanship of a Billy Sunday and his meetings take on the spirit of a religious revival.

O'Daniel Muddles Race.

Before O'Daniel entered the race six weeks ago an ordinary political fight seemed likely. Leading contenders were Attorney General William McCraw of Dallas and Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson of Amarillo. Both had been preparing for the fight for two years with the aid of office patronage to build up personal organizations. Each is an effective campaigner.

Tom F. Hunter of Wichita Falls, an independent oil producer, is regarded as the fourth main contestant. The other eight candidates are given little chance.

Official Records Show No Dogs in McHenry County

Marengo police reported yesterday that thirty dogs had been destroyed in an effort to curb a threatened rabies epidemic. Francis Bodwell, clerk of the McHenry tax board of review, glanced at the assessors' records for 1938 and found only thirty dogs listed.

Reform Raider Charges Plot to Frame Him

Claude Warner, volunteer leader of gambling raids in Lake county two weeks ago, charged last night that an attempt was made to frame him as a reprisal for his raids. He said that persons who were angered by the closing of the gaming resorts trumped up grand larceny charges against him at Galena, in Jo Daviess county. He declared these charges were to be used to spirit him out of Lake county.

Warner is a former private detective. On July 10 and 11 he led a citizens' group in a series of sensational raids on 243 Lake county gambling spots. Ninety-four slot machines and twenty-five pin ball machines were seized. Thirty-four persons were arrested.

Hoodlum Considered Boss.

Leo Mongoven, Chicago hoodlum, is regarded as the boss of the slot machine racket in northern Lake county. Residents of the county had been threatened when they objected to the wide open gambling. The citizens' group which inspired Warner's raids demanded and obtained an outside special prosecutor in the gambling cases. He is Attorney Charles Jack, head of the Lake County Bar association.

The gaming devices have been idle in the county since the raids. But there has been no quiet in Warner's life. On July 12 he was charged with embezzling $321 from the collection agency for which he worked. He was also dismissed from his job at about the same time.

Seized and Released.

Thursday he spent five hours in the Waukegan jail on larceny charges contained in a warant from Galena. He was released when State's Attorney Donald M. Eaton of Jo Daviess county telegraphed Sherif Lawrence A. Doolittle of Lake county that the statute of limitations had outlawed the charge.

Freed from jail he found all the tires of his auto slashed and the wiring torn loose. He had the car repaired and drove to Galena yesterday to find out who was back of his arrest. On his return last night he disclosed a strange series of events behind the issuance of the larceny warant.

Story Starts in 1932.

The story goes back to 1932. Warner was then employed by a private detective agency coöperating with Jo Daviess county authorities in investigating liquor trafic and vice there. One of the men under Warner was Ambrose Beaudin.

"Ambrose is a brother of Mitchell Beaudin," Warner said. "Mitchell was one of those seized in the raids two weeks ago in connection with the operation of a handbook in Highwood. He is charged with possessing gambling devices.

"When we were investigating in Jo Daviess county six years ago, we raided a purported disorderly house between Galena and East Dubuque. The owner was Joseph Jungwurth. Several days later he complained that a pen and pencil set worth $55 had been stolen in the raid. I hadn't taken it and I questioned Beaudin

APPEALS COURT RAPS FANSTEEL STRIKE RIOTERS

Upsets Order to Rehire 92.

The sitdown strike and the Roosevelt administration's efforts to uphold it both were discredited here yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

By a two to one decision, the court voided and set aside the March 14 finding of the National Labor Relations board which held that the Fansteel Metallurgical corporation of North Chicago was guilty of unfair labor practices. The NLRB also had directed the company to rehire ninety-two men who were discharged during the strike that began on Feb. 17, 1937.

Lashes Seizure of Property.

Both the finding and the order were upset by the Appeals court majority decision, which was written by Judge Will M. Sparks and concurred in by Judge Walter C. Lindley. It criticized severely the strikers' unlawful seizure of the company's plant and held that their discharge on this ground was justified. The ruling was looked upon by many observers as a shattering blow at the already retreating labor board.

A lengthy dissenting opinion which held that the NLRB was justified in its findings in spite of the strikers' illegal acts was written by Judge Walter Emanuel Treanor, recently appointed by President Roosevelt.

The Fansteel sitdown strike began on the afternoon of Feb. 17 of last year after the company had refused to recognize as the exclusive bargaining agent for its employés the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel, and Tin Workers of America. This union is an affiliate of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Seize Two Buildings.

The strikers seized two key buildings of the North Chicago plant and refused to come out when ordered to do so by the police. All were then discharged by their employer. On the following day the Circuit court of Lake county ordered the men to evacuate the buildings. They refused.

Early in the morning of Feb. 19 Sherif Lawrence Doolittle and 100 special deputies attacked the strikers with tear and nauseating gas. High pressure chemical streams were turned upon the sherif's forces and sulphuric acid was hurled down upon them. It was not until Feb. 26 that the deputies, using a rolling barricade and great quantities of gas, drove the strikers out.

Meanwhile $100,000 damage had been done to the plant and rare metals stored there. The Fansteel company manufactures automobile contact points and delicate parts made of semi-precious metals for airplane motors and radios.

Thirty-seven of the strikers were held in contempt of the Lake county Circuit court and were sentenced to terms of from ten to 180 days and were fined from $100 to $300.

The Appeals court decision of yesterday began by concurring in the NLRB finding that the Fansteel company engaged in espionage against the C. I. O. union and contributed toward a company union, the Rare Metal Workers of America. But it adds: "With the weight of evidence on these questions we are not permitted to concern ourselves.

But Differs on Bargaining.

"With respect to the board's findings and conclusions relating to the petitioner's [company's] violation of section No. 8 [refusal to bargain collectively], we are unable to concur because some of the facts on which the conclusions are said to be based are not only not supported by substantial evidence but the contrary was undenied.

"The difference of opinion in this respect arises over the questions whether the petitioner had good cause to discharge the sitdown strikers on Feb. 17, and, if so, did the petitioner at that time discharge them?

Ample Cause for Discharge.

"There seems to be no denial by the board that there was ample cause for discharge. Indeed, in the argument before this court the board admitted that the men in conducting a sitdown strike and resisting the officers 'did a foolish and illegal act'.

"Certainly it cannot be denied that an employer is waranted in discharging his employés when they take and retain exclusive possession of his property against his will.

"They had a complete and adequate remedy, without cost to them, at the hands of the board, by the use of which they would have lost nothing in time or wages, if their cause were just. The employer had no coördinate right in this respect.

They Spurn Legal Remedies.

"The employés, however, spurned this legal remedy, disregarding all law on this subject, and essayed to settle the difficulty according to their own sense of right and justice and contrary to the better thought of those who really have at heart the best interests of all laborers. In this they violated the law which they now seek to enforce against the petitioner.

"We are convinced that the petitioner was waranted in discharging the employés and we are compelled to so hold in order to avoid placing our approval upon such activities as they engaged in. To do otherwise would be an injustice not only to the employer, but to the unions and their friends who wish them well."

Company Rehires Thirty-five.

The court then pointed out that after the violence the Fansteel company rehired thirty-five men, some of whom had participated in the sit strike. Among these were many union men. This indicated, the court held, that unionism was not the reason for the original discharge on Feb. 17.

In ruling on claims by NLRB attorneys that the strikers were not engaged in sabotage and that no malicious destruction of plant equipment occurred, Judge Sparks wrote:

"Both of these findings were made, and we think neither was supported by substantial evidence. Indeed, the contrary was supported by undisputed evidence. . . .

"Here we have an admitted illegal seizure and retention of property, intentionally perpetrated, and intentional destruction of property, with respect to the plant and portions of its equipment, supported by undisputed evidence. . . .

They Must Be Employés.

"It is urged by the board that the commission of a crime by strikers does not preclude their right to bargain with petitioner. This we admit, provided they still are employés and represent a majority of all.

"What we hold is that there was just cause for discharge. It was exercised, and those who have not been reëmployed are not employés and were not at the time of the finding and order of the board.

"The present employés still have their rights in bargaining without interference of the petitioner, and this may be enforced upon proper procedure. The order is set aside."

Reversed at Every Trial.

The majority decision, based upon clear cut issues and worded plainly and emphatically, was regarded as the hardest blow yet dealt the NLRB. In the last three months it has been reversed in the only two cases previously tried and has sought to retreat from court reviews of its rulings in half a dozen others.

Its major retreats were in the cases of the Inland and Republic Steel companies and the Ford Motor company. The United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Cleveland set aside the board's order against the Thompson Products company on May 11. This came as an aftermath of the C. I. O. strikes in the automotive industry.

On April 28 Judge Treanor dissented from a decision of the Appeals court upsetting a labor board order directing that the Columbian Enameling and Stamping works of Terre Haute, Ind., rehire 250 discharged employés.

Appointed By Roosevelt.

Judge Treanor, who wrote the dissenting opinion yesterday, was appointed last December. He then was a justice of the Indiana Supreme court. He was named to fill the vacancy left by the retirement of Judge Samuel Alschuler, whose home was in Aurora, Ill.

In the Fansteel case Judge Treanor wrote:

"Granting that the employés were wrong in assuming they could rightfully strengthen the force of their strike by remaining in possession of the buildings in which they worked, it is obvious that they did not make a greater mistake as to the law than did the petitioner and its advisers, who believed that the petitioner could rightfully refuse to bargain collectively with the agent of the employés on the ground that the National Labor Relations act was unconstitutional.

Holds They Paid Penalty.

"The striking employés paid the penalty for their resistance to the officers of the law who were acting under the order of the state court—at least all did against whom proceedings were not dropped. [He referred to the contempt sentences.]

"The National Labor Relations board had no jurisdiction over that question. It does have jurisdiction over the case presented by the unfair labor practices of the petitioner; and the question for decision by this court is whether the order of the board made in performance of its duty under the labor act was within its statutory power on the basis of the findings which were supported by substantial evidence. I think it was."

Attorneys said last night that the board's only recourse from the Appeals court's decision would be to petition the United States Supreme court for a writ of certiorari and ask a review of the case. The Supreme court seldom entertains such petitions, they added.

WAGE CUT KEEPS FOUNDRY STRIKE PARLEY IN KNOT

Company Agrees to Union Bargaining.

Federal and state labor conciliators persisted yesterday in their hope for a peaceful conclusion of the C. I. O. strike at the Chicago Hardware Foundry company plant in North Chicago. Negotiations, however, remained deadlocked.

The company's insistence on a 10 per cent wage cut because of business conditions remained the crux of the discussion. Three hundred employés were back at work yesterday. They have accepted the cut. The company normally employes 460 workers.

"The company sees no reason to change its stand," said Harry E. Scheck, the federal conciliator. "The union is willing to submit the entire matter to arbitration, but insists that the men return to work at the old scale.

Agrees to Union Bargaining.

"The company insists the union made a mistake in striking. The union says it was not a mistake. The company has agreed to sign a collective bargaining agreement with the union for all plant employés, but the union insists there be no wage reduction.

"As far as we conciliators are concerned, we want to restore peace to the industry. The union seems to have more confidence in the conciliators than the company men have."

"We are trying to reach a settlement that will stick, a settlement that will include dismissal of charges against the company now before the National Labor Relations Board. And the matter is not at all hopeless."

Scheck said that he and the special state labor board conciliator, William G. Murray, would examine the company records for the last two years before the next conferenec today. This study, he said, would indicate if the company's demand for a suit is justified.

Also attending the conference was Leonard Bajork, regional director of the NLRB. The union, which field charges with the NLRB, is the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel, and Tin Workers.

Adelman Back from Indiana.

Meyer Adelman, the 350 pound organizer of the C. I. O.'s Steel Workers Organizing Committee in the Chicago-Milwaukee district, was returned yesterday from Goshen, Ind., where he was arrested Tuesday, to be released on $2,500 bond. Adelman and nineteen others have been indicted for conspiracy and intimidation in the foundry strike.

Obviously disgruntled, Adelman threatened to bring in 2,000 out of town pickets from a force of 160,000 workers he said he commands unless the negotiations favor his side. He said he will "close down the foundry as tight as the branch in Elkhart, Ind.," an empty threat, since yesterday the Elkhart plant, which has not been closed, continued operating to capacity. Ten pickets were on hand there.

BEAT EX-CHIEF; RESISTS BEING 'TAKEN FOR RIDE'

Jack Shupryt, 46 years old, former police chief of Calumet City, was severely beaten late last night by two gunmen after he had frustrated their apparent effort to take him for a ride. The attack took place outside a tavern at Michigan City and Burnham roads in Calumet City.

Shupryt, who lives at 207 154th place in Calumet City and is a state employé, was just getting into his car when the gunmen stepped to his door. "Move over," one said, waving a pistol. "We're going to take you for a ride."

Instead Shupryt shot his car into reverse. The hoodlums were knocked down. Shupryt's car bounced into a ditch. The gunmen jumped upon him and beat him with their weapons. Then they fled. The ex-chief was taken to St. Margaret's hospital, Hammond, Ind. He was suffering from a knee fracture, many cuts about the head, and a brain concussion. Police said the attack may have resulted from his severe rule when he was chief several years ago.

Vote Referendum in Zion on Funds for New School

Seventy-five residents of the Zion Benton High school district voted last night to hold a referendum Aug. 13 on raising a $165,000 bond issue. This would be used to help finance a high school. The Public Works administration last week agreed to pay the balance of $300,000. The district has no school, its students attending the Waukegan High school.

Country's Scope

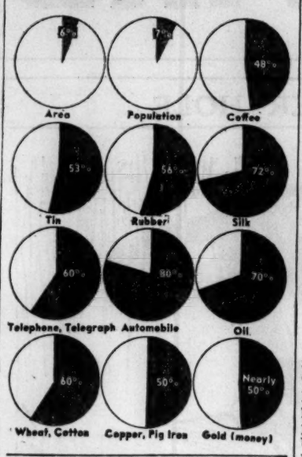
Charts cited in address by Richard J. Lyons, Republican candidate for senate, show graphically the size of the United States and the vast extent of its production, consumption, and possessions. The diagrams below illustrate, in percentages, America's portion of the world's area and population, its production of oil, wheat, cotton, copper, and pig iron; its consumption of coffee, tin, rubber, and silk; its operation of telephones, telegraph facilities and automobiles, and its possession of monetary gold.



WORK, NOT DOLE, COUNTRY'S NEED, LYONS ASSERTS

Addresses Pope County Fair Crowd.

Golconda, Ill., July 22.—[Special.]—The need for jobs in any program for recovery in the United States was stressed here today by Richard J. Lyons, Republican candidate for United States senator. He addressed a Republican day throng of 10,000 persons at the Pope county fair.

"Few realize the importance of the United States as a producing and consuming nation," Lyons said. "While the United States comprises only 6 per cent of the world's area and 7 per cent of its population, we normally consume 48 per cent of the world's coffee, 53 per cent of its tin, 56 per cent of its rubber, and 72 per cent of its silk.

Great Producing Power.

"This country operates 60 per cent of the world's telephone and telegraph facilities and owns 80 per cent of the motor cars. We produce 70 per cent of all the world's oil, 60 per cent of wheat and cotton, and 50 per cent of copper and pig iron. The United States possesses about eleven billion dollars in gold or nearly half of the world's monetary metal. The production power of our nation is greater than that of the 500 million people of Europe.

"Yet with all that wealth, with all of these natural resources and with the great power of our government, spending billions upon billions, our country is still in the throes of a depression. We still have 14 million men and women who can't find work.

Want Jobs and Wages.

"With the greatest country in the world, with the best educated and the most progressive population, a major portion must subsist upon a federal dole at coolie wages.

"That is preposterous. What American workmen want are jobs and a chance to support their families in the manner in which American families are accustomed to live. They want jobs at good wages with the right of collective bargaining. They shall have that right once again under a Republican administration which guarantees the right of individual initiative."

CALLS HOPKINS' WPA STATEMENT A 3D TERM BOOM

G. O. P. Chief Blasts Growing Relief.

chief assistant, Aubrey Williams, while acting head of WPA, exhorted the Workers Alliance, the relief workers' union, to "keep your friends in power." Again a storm of criticism of the administration was loosed.

Brings Quiz by Senators.

Williams was accused of deliberately putting relief workers on notice that they will vote for candidates indorsed by the President and against those proscribed by the President if they want to stay on the relief rolls. The senate campaign fund investigating committee took cognizance of the incident and after receiving a disavowal by Williams of political motives pronounced his utterances "unfortunate."

A score of charges of manipulation of the relief vote in the interest of Senator Alben W. Barkley in the Democratic primary in Kentucky were investigated by Mr. Hopkins and pronounced baseless except in two cases in which WPA agents were reprimanded for political dictation. Similar charges in Tennessee and Missouri are now being investigated by Mr. Hopkins.

Senator Sheppard Aroused.

Senator Morris Sheppard [D., Tex.], chairman of the senate investigating committee, said he would "look into" Mr. Hamilton's charges.

Among the simon pure administration leaders, promotion of the Roosevelt third term movement is becoming noticeable. Attention was directed today to a speech made by Assistant Attorney General Joseph B. Keenan at a Virginia political rally in which he said:

"There is much loose comment today concerning candidates for the presidency. From time to time the question is asked: Will so and so seek office or attempt to succeed himself? It seems to me that this is thinking in reverse. Individuals do not choose to be Presidents of the United States. Presidents are chosen by the people."

Chairman Hamilton, who resides in Kansas, intervened in the Republican senatorial primary in that state with a statement opposing the Rev. John B. Winrod of Topeka, one of the candidates, because he "has dedicated himself to a course of intolerance." Mr. Winrod is accused of fostering Fascist and Nazi principles in his campaign.

TWO RELIEFERS GET JAIL TERMS FOR CHEATING

Two men convicted of relief cheating were sentenced to jail yesterday by Judge Eugene J. Holland in South State Street court.

They were Elbert Carter, colored, of 4716 Calumet avenue, sentenced to six months, and George Younglove, 2447 Polk street, to 90 days. Carter was charged with persuading his wife, who was on relief, to represent that she was seperated from him whereas they lived together. Younglove obtained WPA wages whlie his son was working, investigators said.

A third defendant was placed on probation for defrauding relief authorities, while two others demanded jury trials.

TWO CONFESS DOZEN BURGLARIES.

After confessing a dozen burglaries on the northwest side, two young men were held to the grand jury yesterday in $7,500 bonds each by Judge Gibson E. Gorman. They are Stanley Hoffman, 18 years old, 3114 North Monticello avenue, and Eugene Scibor ski, 19, of 3736 Diversey avenue.

Bolt Kills Youth

During a drenching downpour late yesterday, Herman Blowers Jr., 17 years old, of 8231 Prairie avenue, was struck and killed by lightning when he and a companion took refuge under a tree at 86th street and Michigan avenue. His companion, Walter Grindle, 19, of 67 East 72d street, was seriously burned on the legs. He was taken to the Auburn Park hospital.

The downpour came shortly after 5 o'clock. It was accompanied by heavy dark clouds which turned daylight to dark in the loop. In the western suburbs of Maywood, Forest Park, Berwyn, Cicero, Stickney, and Willow Springs hail fell for several minutes.

An earlier shower shortly after 11 a. m. sent the mercury from 77 to 66 degrees in three hours. It climbed back to 77 just before the evening rain. Forecaster C. A. Donnel said today might bring more showers, but that tomorrow would be fair and warmer.

ILLINOIS YOUNG REPUBLICANS TO CONVENE TODAY

Expect 800 at Meeting in Bloomington.

BY PERCY WOOD.

An attendance of more than 800 is expected when the Young Republican Organization of Illinois meets today in state convention in Bloomington. The Cook county delegation will comprise about half this number.

Richard Nowinson.

Prior to their departure last night, Chicago leaders of the organization expressed the belief that Richard Nowinson of Chicago would be elected president during the balloting tomorrow. Harold E. Walsh of Bloomington is the retiring head. Through an agreement the presidency this year comes to Chicago.

Pledges of Downstate Support.

Under the surface a movement to defeat Nowinson was on foot, but its size could not be determined prior to the convening hour. It did not appear to worry the Nowinson managers, who said they had had many pledges of support from downstate Young Republican leaders and were confident of a sizable bloc of the Cook county delegates.

Walsh is expected to be elected junior national committeeman to succeed Thomas J. Downs of Chicago.

Richard J. Lyons, Republican nominee for United States senator, is to be the headline speaker at the convention. He will deliver the keynote at the opening of the business session tomorrow.

Now on Trailer Campaign.

Lyons has been on his trailer campaign with other state candidates since Monday and will go to Bloomington this afternoon.

One of his running mates, State Senator Simon E. Lantz, candidate for congressman-at-large, will make the principal address to the convention this afternoon, speaking on the farm problem.

Lantz will talk after Mayor Mark Hayes of Bloomington gives the address of welcome. The other state candidates will appear for brief speeches. They are Stephen A. Day, Lantz's running mate for congressman at large; William R. McCauley, for state treasurer; George E. Lambur Jr., for clerk of the Supreme court, and Wiley B. Garvin, for state superintendent of public instruction.

ARRAIGN CHICAGO CONTRACTOR FOR FRAUD ON PWA

Peter N. Kruse, a plumbing contractor with offices at 777 Washington boulevard, was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioners Edwin K. Walker. He is charged with fraud in a $92,000 plumbing contract for a Public Works administration waterworks project in Troy, Ill., Madison county, near St. Louis. According to an indictment returned against him in Springfield, Kruse, who lives at 10807 South Prospect avenue, made three false affidavits in 1936 that he had paid out $22,000 for materials and equipment, thus obtaining partial payment before the work was completed. The hearing was continued until July 29.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 22.—(AP)—Helen C. Frick, daughter of the late Henry Clay Frick, coke and steel millionaire, asked Uncle Sam today for the return of $279,182.82 which she claimed she overpaid in income tax from 1931 to 1933.

A. E. ROSE NAMED HEAD OF NEW EXPERIMENTAL CITY RELIEF BUREAU

Leo M. Lyons, Chicago relief administrator, said yesterday that A. E. Rose, executive secretary of the Illinois Council on Public Assistance and Unemployment, will have charge of the new central intake office to be established as an experiment next month. The office will be at 10 East 11th street.

Edwin M. Wright.

Lyons also announced the appointment of Edwin M. Wright, CRA personnel counsellor, as director of the entire personnel.

The central intake office was recommended to the CRA by the council, headed by Walter L. Gregory, after an investigation of relief administration problems. Eventually the plan proposes, one central office would replace the CRA's 19 district offices in receiving application for relief. The new office to be opened next month, however, will investigate relief in only three districts—Stanford Park, Lawndale, and Bridge Park.

ILLINOIS AMISH SOLVE RELIEF BY NOT ACCEPTING IT

Take Care of Their Own with What They Have.

BY MARCIA WINN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cissna Park, Ill., July 22.—[Special.]—The way to solve the relief problem, the Amish fathers of central Illinois believe, is never to give in to it. The Amish men have done this. They may need relief, but they will not accept it, or apply for it. If they are in straitened circumstances—and who was not, they ask, when corn was ten cents a bushel, oats eight, and hogs three cents a pound?—they turn to each other.

Amish settlements in Illinois.

Spanning Illinois in a broad band from Tazewell county up into Iroquois are the fruitful farms of the Amish sect, a quiet, industrious people who long ago abjured vanity and in its place put thrift.

They call themselves a "plain people," and they are. They have nothing to do with frippery, not even in so mild a form as lace on a dress, curtains at a window or the music of a radio. They work hard, and in clans. They spend much of their time in prayer and devotion, and quietly till and harvest their farms.

Any community that harbors the Amishmen—and there are about eight Amish communities in Illinois, from Tremont and Morton in Tazewell county to Arthur in Moultrie county and Cissna Park in Iroquois—is proud of them. It points to them as substantial and peaceful. Two groups of settlers, both commonly known as Amish, came to Illinois around 1870. One was the true Amish, a band of 500 that broke away from the Pennsylvania Dutch and migrated, in black schooners, to Arthur. The other was a group of Swiss, followers of Henry Fröehlich, who were known as the Apostolic Christians. They came first to Morton and gradually expanded across the countryside.

Both sects, however, had common beliefs and anathemas. Both sought humility. Both rejected worldliness. Both revered industry. Both abhored sloth.

Several Rifts Over Worldliness.

Since that time there have been several rifts in their midst, always dealing with worldliness. Some desired to slip away from the ancient customs, to doff their sombre, black garments and flat, black hats, and to substitute vain buttons for the accepted hook and eye. They even wanted to electrify their farms, use tractors and try the horseless carriage. And did.

Others clung to the habits of their grandfathers, but through it all both groups retained many basic similarities, principal of which was a close interdependence that was almost medieval in its working.

It is on the basis of this brotherly interdependence—the old communal system—that they have kept away from the relief rolls.

If a neighbor's barn burns, they all go to work to rebuild it. If lightning strikes his silo and destroys his hoarded corn, all give him a share of theirs until his store is replenished. If a flood washes away the road leading to his farmhouse, all dig in to build a new one.

Similarly with dire need—although no one was any more astonished than the Amishmen themselves when they realized, during the heart of the depression, that any Amishman could be in dire need.

Savings Taken by Crash.

As a class, they all had fat bank rolls. Tobacco, liquor, dancing, the theater—anything that might have caused them to spend money—was taboo. The more orthodox did not read newspapers. Their homes contained neither pictures, wallpaper, nor musical instruments.

"Then all at once," one of the venerable elders, who—something of a modern—wears a goatee rather than a full beard, "there was a lot of us swimming in deep water and pretty near drowning.

"The banks were closed, and interest was due and you couldn't sell your crops, but . . . well, we fought through.

"Our religion," he said slowly, his kind blue eyes roving over his fat green fields, "is like this! That by no means should we go into debt deeper than we can handle.

"We don't buy unless we can pay. We aim to be useful and self-supporting and to help each other when necessary.

Hungry Always Fed.

"We haven't anybody now that I could say is down and out," speaking of the 100 families around Cissna Park, "but if anybody is down and out we always help him back up again.

"Maybe it's food. Maybe it's clothing. Maybe it's fire, but we take care of any who need help.

"We're plain people," soberly. "We don't spend much money on things that don't matter, and we talk things over before we do them. When someone wants to undertake something he generally talks it over with all the church members. If he does it without our advice, and goes wrong, then," dourly, "we might not be so inclined to help him."

The Amishman paused, looked around, and added: "You might think we're selfish, but you come in here hungry and you can get something to eat; sleepy, and you can have a bed—"

"I have never turned away a hungry man," his wife interrupted, looking up from her canning of apricots.

"It's the same way in our church," he continued. "We have a fund for the poor and any one can pay in just as much as he is able. It's a free will offering, and there's always enough—even in hard times.

"Do you think your plan could be applied everywhere?" he was asked.

Doesn't Believe in Communism.

"I don't see why not," he replied. "You take every church, every organization—there are moneyed men in every church. I don't believe in communism, but there's a way out.

"And that way," he added, "is not the dole.

"In the eyes of the Almighty," he concluded solemnly, "there's the old saying that where there is a will there is a way—"

Less than 1 per cent of the Amishmen around Cissna Park—Apostolic Christians and Christian Apostolics, as the divided churchmen call themselves—needed help at any time, the spokesman said. And they received it from their fellow churchmen.

If they had asked for direct relief they would have been ousted from the church, but they did not.

Why? Ask any Amishman, and the answer comes so glibly, the words so unvaried, as to be part of his catechism:—

"We don't believe in it. We help each other."

Dr. W. R. Roberts, relief administrator for Pekin Grove township, in which this particular Amish community is located, corroborated their words.

2 KILLED, 1 HURT WHEN AUTO SKIDS INTO STREET CAR

Head-on Crash Occurs in Driving Rain.

Two men were killed and a third was seriously injured last evening when their automobile skidded on wet pavement and collided head-on with a Damen avenue street car near 61st street. About a dozen passengers in the street car were shaken. The accident occurred during a driving rain.

The dead were Patrick J. Healey, 35 years old, 4842 Wallace street, driver of the car, and Patrick Conway, 30, of 5541 Aberdeen street. The injured man is Thomas Carolan, 27, of 5522 Aberdeen street. He was taken to the Southtown hospital.

Six Hurt in Similar Crash.

Several hours later six persons were slightly injured two blocks north of the Healey accident in another automobile-street car crash. They were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Solis and their children, Marylin, 5 years old, and Donald, 4, all of 88th street and 55th avenue, Oak Lawn, and Mr. and Mrs. Gus Drauschki, 4720 South Seeley avenue. Solis was driving south in Damen avenue. He crashed into the side of a westbound 59th street surface lines car, knocking it off the track. No one was hurt in the street car. The Solises and the Drauschkis were taken to the Holy Cross hospital.

Car Overturns; One Dead.

Burt Gyllin, 19 years old, 1617 Carmen avenue, died yesterday in St. Joseph's hospital, Elgin, of injuries suffered last Saturday. He was riding in the rumble seat of an automobile which overturned on U. S. highway 20 west of Elgin.

Mrs. Howard Krowder, 27 years old, of Evanston died in a hospital at Traverse City, Mich., yesterday of injuries suffered when her automobile crashed into a truck near there Thursday night. Her husband, who was driving, was slightly injured.

Train Hits Auto; 2 Hurt.

Leo Sturn of 2141 Maple avenue, Evanston, and Joseph Robbins of Chebanse, Iroquois county, were seriously injured last night when their car was struck by a Wabash railroad passenger train near Reddick, Kankakee county. Both suffered skull fractures, and are in St. Mary's hospital, Kankakee. Sturn was driving. He had picked up Robbins, 21 years old, a hitch hiker. Robbins is a student at Illinois State Normal university at Normal, Ill.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 451 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 348 were killed in Chicago, where 10,303 were injured.

OFFICIAL IS FIRED FOR AIDING HIM, GEORGE SAYS

Washington, D. C., July 22.—(AP)—Senate campaign investigators received a charge today from Senator Walter F. George [D., Ga.] that a federal official had been removed from office in Georgia for supporting him.

In Atlanta, George said, he referred to the recent dismissal of Erle Cocke as director of the National Emergency council and appointment of Dr. C. H. Foreman of Washington, special assistant to the director of the Public Works administration.

George is opposed in the Democratic primary Sept. 12 by Lawrence Camp, United States attorney; former Gov. Eugene Talmadge, and William G. McRae of Atlanta. President Roosevelt is scheduled to speak in Georgia next month after his fishing trip.

WPA PURCHASES CITY'S ASPHALT IN WHITING, IND.

Most of the asphalt necessary to get Chicago's $3,000,000 WPA paving program started again will come from Whiting, Ind., it was learned yesterday. The original contracts were awarded by the Works Progress administration to companies as far away as Arkansas and Texas. The asphalt they delivered failed to meet government specifications and several thousand men have been unable to work for six weeks.

Yesterday H. K. Seltzer, Chicago WPA director, told the city department of streets that six carloads have been purchased from the Standard Oil company of Whiting and will be delivered next week. Four other cars from the Southern Asphalt company of Acol, Tex., holder of one of the original contracts, will be delivered to city mixing plants before Monday, he said.

This material will go into about 8,000 tons of asphalt mixture. Approximately 45,000 tons of mixture are needed to complete the program.

Truck Hitch-Hiker Jumps Off Before It Stops; Killed

Charles Hedstrom, 60 years old, was given a ride in a truck yesterday while walking along Half Day road. As the truck neared his home in Half Day, Hedstrom jumped off before it stopped, striking his head on the pavement. He died last night in the Highland Park hospital.

COURT TO RULE MONDAY ON CAR LINE FRANCHISE

Indicates Higher Fare May Be Equitable.

BY WILLIAM BROMAGE.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson will decide Monday whether receivers for the Chicago Surface Lines may reject a temporary franchise offered by the city council. The ordinance requires the car lines to pay 3 per cent of their gross income for the use of the streets. It gives the receivers until Monday to accept it.

Counsel for the receivers yesterday filed a report at a hearing before Judge Wilkerson, asserting that the permit passed by the city council Wednesday contained unreasonable, illegal and improper provisions. Unless directed otherwise by the court, the report said, the receivers will not accept it.

Agrees with Both Sides.

Judge Wilkerson said he agreed with Chicago officials that the city could impose rental on the car lines for the use of the streets. He added, however, that the companies were entitled to a higher fare if the payments reduced earnings to an unreasonably low point.

The court criticized the provision of the ordinance which gives receivers only until Monday to accept. He called it arbitrary and said it did not give the court adequate time for holding proper hearings.

The request that he overrule the receivers in the case, he continued, required an important decision involving the question of whether the receivers would keep their positions if their recommendation was rejected by the court.

Ordinarily, he said, the court must take the advice of its officers. If they are not sustained in an important matter like this, he added, they may not want to continue to act.

Security Holders Concur.

Attorneys for various trustees under surface lines mortgages concurred in the recommendations of the receivers and said they wanted time to prepare for hearings if the court was to consider overruling the receivers.

Traction attorneys asserted the ordinance imposed compensation and at the same time seeks to prevent receivers from asking for a fare increase. William H. Sexton, city traction counsel, said that was an incorrect interpretation of its provisions.

"City compensation should be treated just like wages," Judge Wilkerson commented. "If operating expenses are too large and the company is unable to get a fair return the problem should go before the Illinois commerce commission. The remedy is not to deprive the city of its compensation but to get an adequate fare."

It may seem that it should! Experience tells you that a jar as fine as ours ordinarily does cost more. But ours doesn't! You pay no more for it than any vacuum container, tin or glass, but you get more; get a jar that keeps the MANOR HOUSE air-tight and fresh and fine until the coffee's gone . . . . . and then you have a kitchen container you can use for a dozen things . . . . and it keeps them air-tight and safe, too.

THRONGS CHEER BRITISH RULERS' RETURN HOME

King Seals French Accord Anew in Farewell Talk.

LONDON, July 22.—(AP)—Thousands at Victoria station and Buckingham palace cheered King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain tonight on their return from a four-day state visit to France. Spectators stood twelve deep at the station when at 9:14 p. m. [3:14 p. m. Chicago time], the king and queen stepped on the red carpet which covered the platform. They had traveled to London by train from Dover.

Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, who had been with them in France, took leave of the king and queen as they entered their car to be driven to the palace.

Crowds Jam Palace Gates.

Crowded scenes reminiscent of the coronation a year ago were enacted outside Buckingham palace where onlookers were jammed near the gates and others clambered atop the Queen Victoria monument. They cheered heartily when the rulers entered the gates. The queen was dressed in white and the king wore a dark lounge suit, a black tie and derby hat.

Later they acknowledged the singing, roaring crowd by making an unexpected appearance on the palace balcony with their two daughters, Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret. The king looked tired, but the queen bowed and waved to the crowd, which shouted "Vive la France, Vive l'Angleterre!" [Long Live France, Long Live England!]

PERFECT MILITARY PACT

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 22.—The shouting and tumult died today as King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain returned to England after solemnly dedicating the Australian war monument at Villers-Bretonneux.

In his speech there King George sealed again the unity of Great Britain and France. He told a throng gathered about the memorial:

"The events we recall today have bound us with ties that the passing years can never weaken. The very surroundings [of the memorial] are emblematic of that comradeship which is the watchword of our British empire; for it looks down on the hallowed field beneath whose soil, consecrated to God and the glorious memory, lie the men who came from every corner of the earth to fight for ideals common to that whole empire."

Cheered in Calais.

After the dedication, the king and queen went by special train to Calais where they boarded the royal yacht Enchantress. Outside the breakwater twenty-six French warships and a unit of naval planes formed an escort about the Enchantress and convoyed it to Dover, England.

Relieved of parade duty after the king and queen departed, politicians and soldiers at once got down to the serious business of converting the Anglo-French understanding into a real military alliance.

Premier Edouard Daladier, in his rôle of war minister, had a long talk with Leslie Hore-Belisha, British secretary of state for war, in Amiens, The British war secretary, accompanied by Viscount Gort, chief of the British imperial general staf, were expected in Paris for further conversations over the week-end.

Ministers Called for Report.

The council of ministers has been convoked specially for tomorrow morning to acquaint President Albert Lebrun and cabinet members with the results of conversations with Viscount Halifax, British foreign secretary, and Hore-Belisha.

It was clear that behind the spectacular façade of the royal visit matters of vital European importance were discussed. It was reported, but not confirmed, that Reichsfuehrer Hitler made a really important offer for a new deal in central Europe, and the French and British have been trying to reach a complete agreement on what answer to make to him.

Visit Aids Daladier.

Whatever may be in the air, there is no more doubt that the Anglo-French alliance will remain and tend to become closer as time goes on. In a real showdown, France, it is believed, will sacrifice all other considerations to keep in step with England.

The royal visit, most observers agree, relieved Premier Edward Daladier of serious fears of parliamentary revolt if he swings too far to the right in foreign policy. The reason for this is that the visit made such a deep impression on the general public, and henceforth the man in the street will make no protest when the government explains that his wishes cannot be carried out without jeopardizing the alliance with England.

NAZIS TOLD THEY NOW FACE UNITED FRANCE, BRITAIN

LONDON, July 22.—(AP)—Great Britain gave Germany a clear signal today to bring the Berlin-Rome axis into accord with the western European democracies as King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of England ended a triumphal state visit to France.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain was understood to have told Dr. Herbert von Dirksen, German ambassador, that he shared fully Reichsfuehrer Hitler's desire to settle Europe's major problems peacefully.

King George's pledge before leaving France that "the passing years can never weaken" Anglo-French ties made it clear, however, that France must have a place in any general appeasement scheme.

Dr. von Dirksen's call followed the visit which Capt. Fritz Weidemann, Reichsfeuhrer Hitler's adjutant, made to London this week. Chamberlain announcer yesterday that Weidemann brought renewed assurances that Germany desired the peaceful settlement of outstanding qustions.

Vast Expanses Involved in Far East Conflict

Communications over which food and other supplies may be sent to the armies at the front form one of the greatest problems of warfare. Should the communications of an army with its base at the rear be cut, the men at the front, with their food and munitions shut off, would face disaster at the hands of the enemy. The two accompanying maps illustrate the vast distances involved in the Japanese-Chinese war, and in a possible war between Japan and Russia.

the soviet government's firm attitude toward Japanese demands for withdrawal of troops from territory soviet Russia considers hers and Japan asserts belongs to Manchukuo would not be followed by any drastic move on the part of Tokio.

Nothing was known in soviet circles concerning Japanese reports that Russian destroyers had entered Possiet bay, near Vladivostok, or that Russian troops had been moved from Vladivostok to Novokievsk. It was pointed out that these points were within soviet territory.

Japs Open Big Air Campaign.

SHANGHAI, July 22.—(AP)—Widespread bombing raids to shake Chinese resistance to the Japanese Yangtze valley campaign were announced today by the Japanese naval spokesman as foreign military observers predicted the imminent fall of Kiukiang.

The airmen concentrated bombs on Chinese troops in the Kiukiang sector and the Lion Hill forts which dominate the river and the mouth of Poyang lake, ten miles east of Kiukiang. They also bombed a Chinese vessel, forcing it to run aground, and were said to have sunk 20 junks.

Predict Fall of Kiukiang.

Foreign military experts expressed the opinion that Japanese warships could run the Chinese gantlet to the cross-river boom at Kiukiang whenever the high command wished to deliver the final assault on the river.

It was believed, however, that the Japanese would make no attack in force until the area around the mouth of Poyang lake had been cleaned up. With a conquest of the Kiukiang sector the Japanese would be ready to push 30 miles further up river to a boom between Wusueh and Tienkiacheng. Hankow then would be little more than 100 miles away by river.

DUBLIN CROWDS MENACE ITALIAN TARS; BOO DUCE

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

DUBLIN, Ireland, July 22.—Hostile crowds demonstrated in the streets tonight against a party of young Italian cadets from the training ships Christopher Colombo and A. Vespucci which had arrived in the River Liffey. There were shouts of "down with Mussolini" and "down with Fascism." "The Internationale" was sung and for a time it appeared that the cadets would be attacked physically.

A detachment of police scattered demonstrators and the Italians were escorted to Alexandra basin, where their ships were anchored.

JEWISH WRITER, ON JOB 15 YEARS IN ITALY, OUSTED

ROME, July 22.—(AP)—Edward David Kleinlerer, Rome correspondent of the Jewish Telegraphic agency, was ordered today to leave Italy. The ministry of popular culture said it would make no statement on the case.

Kleinlerer, a Polish citizen, has been in Italy fifteen years and is married to an Italian. Four months ago he was made a cavalier of Italy in recognition of his long journalistic service in this country.

Jewish Telegraphic agency officials in New York recalled that their Paris office was told on Nov. 26, 1937, that Jewish Telegraphic agency bulletins no longer would be admitted to Italy and said the order to Kleinlerer apparently was connected with other recent restrictions on Jewish correspondents there. They surmised that the restrictions were linked to the Fascist racial doctrin issued last week, holding the Italian people were Aryan and that Jews could not be assimilated.

REBELS ASSAULT GATES OF TOWN IN VALENCIA PUSH

Seek to Blast New Path to Mediterranean.

HENDAYE, France [At the Spanish Frontier], July 22.—(AP)—Spanish insurgents, aided by Italian units, pounded against the western gates of Viver today in an effort to open the way for a new advance to the Mediterranean.

Viver is thirty-four miles northwest of Valencia on the Teruel-Mediterranean highway which, at Sagunto, joins the main coastal road leading south to Valencia.

The insurgents previously shortened their front by a drive toward Viver from Barracas and by the elimination of a pocket of resistance in the Espina mountains. So today they were able to concentrate artillery and aviation for use against the government's militiamen.

Front Is 30 Miles Long.

The front, approximately thirty miles long, now runs from near Viver northeast around the Spadan mountains, and thence to the coastal road south of Nules.

South of the Teruel-Mediterranean highway government troops encircled Crux hill near the boundary of Teruel and Castellon provinces and captured a small Italian detachment with four mortars and a supply of machine guns.

The insurgents reported they had advanced more than a mile in the Tagus sector south of Madrid, on the central front. Rebel advices said hundreds of government soldiers were killed.

[Reports from Perpignan, France, said French anti-aircraft guns fired on six Spanish rebel airplanes which flew over French territory at Saillagouse. The planes flew back to Spain immediately.]

Danish Freighter Bombed.

LONDON, July 22.—(AP)—Lloyds reported today the Danish freighter Bodil was bombed by airplanes and sunk off the Spanish coast. The crew was picked up by the British cruiser Shropshire. The Bodil was en route from Danzig to Nice.

SWEDISH PRESS CRITICIZES U. S. INQUIRY GROUP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 22.—President Roosevelt's mixed commission investigating relationships between workers and employers in Sweden drew some oblique criticism from the conservative Swedish press today for rushing through its job. The leading newspaper, Svenska Dagbladet, asserted it is impossible to get an adequate knowledge of Swedish conditions in a hurry.

The United States commission arrived from England Monday night. It ended its conference with Swedish officials in a state dinner tonight, and officially completed its visit to Stockholm. The party, however, will stay over the weekend to correlate its notes and will leave Monday.

The Svenska Dagbladet said the recent Swedish centennial celebration in the United States, together with the publication of several books on Swedish prosperity, aroused much curiosity about Sweden in America.

"American governors and other politicians have used the opportunity to get the sympathies of the voters in Swedish centers over there," the paper asserted.

7 NATIONS MEET TODAY TO DEBATE POLICY ON LEAGUE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, July 22.—The foreign ministers of Norway, Sweden, Finland, and Denmark conferred here today on the policies of their countries toward the weakened league of nations and Europe's many political problems.

Tomorrow they will be joined by the foreign ministers of The Netherlands, Belgium, and Luxemburg for a two days' conference.

The chief point they will discuss will be their attitude toward the league's meeting in September, and particularly what stand to take on possible future applications of the sanctions [penalties] provision.

End Martial Law in Memel! Nazis Demand of Lithuania

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 22.—Lithuania today replaced Czechoslovakia as the main butt of German anger. All German newspapers, which are controled by the Nazi government, prominently displayed demands voiced in the Memel diet that martial law, which was proclaimed in Memel by Lithuania twelve years ago, must be ended.

Arrow indicates city and area of Memel, scene of Nazi-Lith conflict.

Memel, a Baltic seaport, and the area named after it, formerly belonged to Germany, but now are under supervision of Lithuania.

Charges "Brutal Force."

"Twelve years of suppression." "Memellanders under Kovno's whip." "An end must be put to this intolerable and illegal state of affairs." Those were among the headlines demanding that normal conditions be reëstablished in the district.

The Lokal Anzeiger warned: "The Lithuanian government is mistaken when it surmises that the great German reich will forget the distress of its brothers living in adjoining countries. Through means of brutal force, Litnuania has succeeded in establishing the quiet of a cemetery in Memel for the last twelve years, but has failed to win the heads and hearts of the Memellanders."

In an effort to emphasize the necessity for a speedy solution of the Sudeten German minority question in Czechoslovakia along the line recently mapped out by Reichsfuehrer Hitler to the British government, the German press also charged that Czech authorities are "suppressing and provoking" the Sudeten German population in increasing volume.

Claim Germans Starve.

Newspapers spoke of "insolent provocation of the inhabitants by the Czech military," and gave prominence to Sudeten German complaints that children in Czech schools have been ordered to learn a song of hatred which contains insults to the Fuehrer.

Other dispatches charged that "heartless Czech burocrats let jobless Sudeten Germans in Eger starve."

Reports from London and Paris that, owing to Anglo-French pressure, the Prague government is willing to make big concessions to the Germans are treated with utmost reserve. It is argued that previous Anglo-French steps in Prague did not produce results benefiting the Sudeten German cause and that "England is being deliberately optimistic" to soothe German impatience.

3 JEWS, 8 ARABS ARE KILLED IN HOLY LAND WAR

JERUSALEM, July 22.—(AP)—Three Jews and eight Arabs were killed and five Jewish workers were wounded during a series of clashes in widely separated districts today. A Jew was killed in ambush on the Jerusalem-Jaffa highway. The eight Arabs were killed by police and troops pursuing a band which attacked a colony near Haifa yesterday. Two Jewish police were killed and five workers wounded by an attack from ambush on a truck carrying workers near Saba, in Sharon.

WAUKESHA JUDGE SENT TO PRISON FOR TWO YEARS

Convicted of Perjury in Vice Inquiry.

Judge D. M. Evans.

Waukesha, Wis., July 22.—[Special.]—Municipal Judge David M. Evans today was sentenced by Circuit Judge Jesse Earle of Janesville to serve two years in state prison on a perjury conviction. Judge Evans was original sponsor of the grand jury investigation of Waukesha county vice conditions and became its most prominent victim. A stay was granted pending an appeal to the Supreme court and he was released under $2,000 bond.

Judge Evans' term as judge ended automatically with the court's action. Clerk of Court Samuel D. Connell forwarded a certificate of conviction and sentencing to Gov. La Follette, who will appoint a successor.

Concerned Slot Machine Testimony.

The state charged Judge Evans with falsely testifying before the grand jury that a confiscated slot machine, which he had obtained from former Sherif Walter A. Liskowitz, had never left his possession. The trial jury found the machine had been given to Anton Vogt, slot machine operator, who put it in a tavern. Evans testified Vogt took the machine without his knowledge.

In imposing the minimum penalty of two years Judge Earle said the maximum of five years was rather severe, particularly when compared with the much lesser penalty for false swearing.

Judge Evans, who is 33 years old, was appointed to the bench by Gov. La Follette in May, 1936, for the unexpired term of the late Judge Thomas W. Parkinson.

Superseded in Investigation.

Reëlected in 1937, Judge Evans issued a call for a grand jury investigation into vice conditions He withdrew his call after Circuit Judge Davison ordered a similar investigation backed by an opinion of District Attorney Scott Lowry that Evans lacked authority. Judge Evans was the first witness to testify when the grand jury convened last December. He also was among the first to be indicted.

Gov. La Follette in Madison today appointed Axel E. Olson to serve out the unexpired term of Sherif Liskowitz, who was sentenced to six months in the house of correction last Wednesday. He was convicted of malfeasance in office. Olson, who is 37 years old, was Progressive candidate for sherif in 1936.

DEMANDS INQUIRY BY CONGRESS OF INDIANA CHARGES

Indianapolis, Ind., July 22.—[Special.]—A congressional investigation of the Hoosier Democratic club, organization of the Minton-McHale-McNutt machine which levies 2 per cent on salaries of Indiana state employés, was demanded today. A resolution was introduced in the Indiana senate today by William E. Jenner, Republican floor leader.

It urged that proceeds, expenditures and tax payments of the "club" be investigated to determine what part is played in federal elections.

Money from the "club" supposedly footed the bill for the huge cocktail party given in Washington last winter to further the presidential ambitions of Paul V. McNutt, former Indiana governor and now high commissioner of the Philippines.

Another clause of the resolution would give to Frederick Van Nuys, senior United States senator from Indiana, "the opportunity to divulge whatever information he might have about the $140,000 yearly income of a certain person close to the state administration."

When Van Nuys expected to run as an independent he referred to such a fund. Later he was nominated by the Democrats.

FORCED TO SIT ON HOT GRILLE, GIRL, 12, CHARGES

Elizabeth, N. J., July 22.—[Special.]—Mrs. Alice O. Whaley, a waitress, was held in $1,000 bail today on charges she forced her step-daughter, Eleanore Whaley, 12 years old, to sit on a hot air register as punishment.

The child testified in Juvenile court that her screams only heightened the anger of her 160 pound stepmother. The girl's brother, Roy, testified he was forced to lean on Eleanore's shoulder and press her down on the hot grille whenever she tried to stand up.

Two other stepchildren related that Mrs. Whaley used a cat-o'-nine-tails on them and had broken a mop handle over Roy's back. The four children begged not to be sent home to their stepmother. They were placed with the state board of children's guardians.

Tavern Licenses Revoked by Mayor Restored to 16

The Chicago liquor control commission yesterday restored operating permits, revoked recently by Mayor Kelly for alleged sale of liquor to minors, to owners of sixteen taverns and liquor stores. The commission upheld the mayor's action in four other cases. The decisions were announced by State Senator Harold G. Ward, commission chairman. The city may appeal to the state liquor commission.

SUPREME COURT DODGES ITS DUTY, LAWYER CHARGES

Constitution Ignored, Says Norton.

Thomas James Norton, authority on constitutional law, asserted yesterday that the United States Supreme court since 1936 has slipped in its duty to prevent the legislative and executive departments from overstepping their constitutional bounds.

He spoke before a group of practicing lawyers at the John Marshall Law school. His talk was a review of Supreme court decisions of the last four years.

Assails Lack of Court Check.

"Any changes in government should follow constitutional procedure," he said. "No constitution authorized the government to engage in business. The government should have gone to the people to obtain the power to enter business. There the Supreme court failed. The court should have told the congress and the President . . . not to seize the power."

Mr. Norton said the Supreme court, in ruling against the National Industrial Recovery act, the Agricultural Adjustment act and the Bituminous Coal act, conformed to established law and precedent. The coal act was involved in the so-called Carter case in May, 1936. That was the turning point in the court's trend of thought, he asserted.

Cites Change of Trend.

"Within eleven months after the Carter case," he continued, "the Supreme court sustained the National Labor Relations act of 1935. By this law congress took over police control in every state of the relations of employer and employé. It virtually established the closed shop, by the subterfuge of regulating or 'protecting' commerce under the power conferred upon it by the commerce clause.

"In the next month, the seizure by congress of the police power, which adhere in the states . . . was approved when the Social Security act of 1935 was held to be constitutional under the general welfare clause."

1,500 START WORK ON FT. SHERIDAN RELIEF PROJECTS

Construction was started yesterday on several work relief projects for improving Fort Sheridan. The total cost of $1,700,000 will be met by the Public Works administration and the Works Progress administration. The work will keep 800 men occupied until spring.

The projects include sixteen two-story double residences for non-commissioned officers and their families; barracks for troops, and a school for bakers and cooks. Also in progress is a $400,000 WPA project, employing 700 men, for seven months, to rehabilitate the post.

Senator Bilbo Divorces Wife; Cruelty Is Charged

Poplarville, Miss., July 22.—(AP)—Senator Theodore G. Bilbo [D., Miss.] was granted a divorce after a forty minute hearing in Pearl River county Chancery court today. He charged his wife with cruelty. Counsel announced Senator Bilbo would settle upon his divorced wife $20,750. "Broke! Broke!" Senator Bilbo exclaimed after the hearing. Mrs. Bilbo's only comment was: "I feel relieved it is all over. I hope he is satisfied and will enjoy his freedom, as he calls it."

TVA AID WHACKS BACK AT MORGAN WITH YARDSTICK

Lilienthal Denies Cost of Power Is Unknown.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Knoxville, Tenn., June 22.—[Special.]—Director David E. Lilienthal denied before a congressional investigating committee today that TVA is selling power without knowing what it costs to produce it. The charge was made by Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, deposed TVA chairman.

Lilienthal, who has charge of the TVA power program, also denied the charges of misrule and mismanagement made against TVA by Dr. Morgan, engineer and dam builder. He said Dr. Morgan's charges grew from "unreasoning suspicion, hatred, and distrust."

"TVA has lived in a goldfish bowl," the director said. "None of our estimates and expenditures have ever been concealed. TVA rates are sound."

Submits Byproduct Theory.

Lilienthal expounded the theory that hydroelectricity is only a byproduct of TVA and that navigation and flood control dominate the dams in the half billion dollar Tennessee valley experiment.

Toward the end of today's hearing he produced a bulky manuscript and started to guide the investigators through the intricacies of cost allotment. This is at the basis of the TVA yardstick to measure fair prices for power produced by private companies. Dr. Morgan has denounced the yardstick as false and deceptive.

The question of cost allotment proved highly complicated and seemed to leave the committee slightly bewildered. The subject will be taken up again tomorrow when Lilienthal resumes the stand.

Denies Effort to Conceal.

Lilienthal, in his counter charges, said that Dr. Morgan, in calling the Lilienthal byproduct theory a "grotesque policy," showed a lack of understanding.

He denied Dr. Morgan's charges that TVA, by withholding a report on allocation of costs, deliberately prevented knowledge of TVA wholesale power costs. Incidentally, cost allocation on Wilson, Wheeler, and Norris dams—the three now operating—was sent to congress just before closing in June, but the figures were more than a year overdue.

"The allocation report on June 15 was tardy," said Lilienthal, "but there is no shred of justification for Dr. Morgan's charge that the delay was a deliberate effort to conceal information. And there is no basis for his assertion that TVA is selling power without knowing what that power costs."

Blames Morgan for Delay.

Among the causes of the delay, Lilienthal said, were "interruptions due to Dr. Morgan's personal lack of confidence in the persons and groups to whom the work was assigned, and the maladroitness of his administrative methods.

"The real objection of our critics is not that the basis for our rates is hidden. I think the fact is that TVA's opponents simply do not like these rates."

One charge the investigators have before them is that in setting up a TVA yardstick, too much of the cost of TVA may be charged off for navigation and flood control. Thus the yardstick would be india rubber, and subsidized rates, it is charged, would be paid for by tax payers all over the country.

Lilienthal's argument was devoted to minimum wholesale charges.

Explains His Conception.

Under a byproduct theory the cost chargeable to hydro-power would be the plants, lines, and other items which would not be incurred if there were no power at the dams.

"Arthur Morgan," he said, "refers to the byproduct basis of price fixing as my personal theory and says it would be a subterfuge.

"I simply recommended that in fixing TVA wholesale rates, the liquidation of the actual total investment devoted to power purposes, fixed charges on that investment, including taxes, depreciation, interest and all other appropriate items and all operating expenses, be accepted as the minimum below which these rates should not be permitted to go.

"The actual rates should be determined with reference to other factors—the competitive sources of supply, for example, the social desirability of the wide use of electricity, and the importance of substantial repayment to the federal treasury. That is what I mean by the byproduct theory."

Record Changes Brought Up.

The question of alterations in the minutes of TVA was taken up earlier in the day. Original minutes and the file of changed items in the minutes were impounded yesterday by the committee. Today, on motion of Representative Thomas A. Jenkins [R., O.], all legal opinions given by TVA counsel in regard to the changes in the minutes were impounded.

Lilienthal accused Dr. Morgan of laying a trap for him in connection with the changed records of Nov. 2, 1933. These changes dealt with a report made by Lilienthal on conferences he had with Wendell Wilkie of the Commonwealth and Southern, and with applications of Tuscumbia and Sheffield, Ala., for PWA to build distribution systems.

"The fact is," Lilienthal declared, "these alterations were made in the regular routine of the authority's business and were approved and fully understood by all members of the board, including Arthur Morgan."

In Court Battle

MRS. MARIE GERAGHTY.

CHARLES GERAGHTY.

Charles Geraghty, brother of the late John Geraghty, campaign button manufacturer, whose first wife is suing for a share in his $50,000 estate on grounds he obtained a divorce from her fraudulently, testified yesterday that he resided with his brother until April, 1920. At that time the two families parted, and later the brothers quarreled in business, he said.

Geraghty divorced Mrs. Susan Geraghty, who is bringing the suit, in April, 1921. Meanwhile he had moved his family to Indianapolis, thereby losing his status of resident of Cook county, Mrs. Geraghty claims. Because of this, she says, the divorce was illegal.

His third wife, Marie Geraghty, attended the hearing. Miss Precious Mary Geraghty, 19 years old, who lost her suit to claim in his estate as his natural daughter by his second wife, and Mrs. Susan Geraghty were absent. She reared Precious Mary from infancy.

P. F. LA FOLLETTE ASKS 4TH TERM AS GOVERNOR

Madison, Wis., July 22.—(AP)—Gov. Philip F. La Follette, co-founder of the National Progressives of America, set out today to build his political fences in the state and nation as a candidate for an unprecedented fourth term.

Close associates said that to avoid any legal complications over the status of the Progressive party, established in this state in 1934, La Follette would campaign under the old Wisconsin Progressive label rather than the NPA banner.

But his eyes will be on the national scene. While there have been several three term governors in Wisconsin's history, no one ever has aspired to a fourth.

His party will make a determined effort to retire Senator F. Ryan Duffy, Democrat, who has President Roosevelt's support. Herman L. Ekern of Madison, close associate of the late "Old Bob" La Follette, announced his candidacy for the Progressive senatorial nomination today. Congressman Thomas R. Amlie also is a candidate for the nomination.

Mrs. Marie Plamondon Wins Plea for Divorce

Judge Oscar Nelson yesterday granted a divorce to Mrs. Marie Plamondon, 6312 North Bell avenue, from Harold Plamondon, nephew of Alfred D. Plamondon, former president of the old Lincoln park board. The couple were married in 1925. Mrs. Plamondon charged desertion. Through her attorney, Thomas P. Henehan, she waived alimony, but was allowed $5 a week for support of their son, Harold Jr., 12 years old. Plamondon, a state factory inspector, lives at 2323½ Commonwealth avenue. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Plamondon, were lost with the sinking of the Lusitania in 1915.

Butcher Fails to Pay Wife; She Gets Shop; He's Jailed

Jack Roth had a butcher shop at 1112 East 63d street. But today his wife, Charlotte will operate the place. That was the order yesterday of Judge Oscar F. Nelson. Roth was directed to turn the shop keys over to his wife after he complained he was unable to pay $100 for the support of their four children. Mrs. Roth has a suit for divorce pending. Judge Nelson also ordered Roth to jail until he posts a $2,500 bond to insure his future appearance in court.

DATA ON PAVING INQUIRY WILL BE GIVEN IGOE TODAY

State records on 28 Cook county highway projects will be submitted today to United States Attorney Michael L. Igoe by Charles P. Casey, assistant director of the state department of public works and buildings. Casey agreed to turn over the records after subpenas issued by Federal Judge William Holly were served on him and M. S. Fleming, assistant state highway engineer.

Igoe is investigating the possibility of collusive bidding on the projects. The original bids were rejected by the state as too high. Second bids totaled $472,000 lower on the same projects. Both federal and state funds are involved. County records dealing with the projects also may be sought, it was indicated.

SWEDISH CROWN PRINCE GUSTAV BIDS U. S. GOOD-BY

New York, July 22.—(AP)—Like any plain man going reluctantly back to work after a vacation, Crown Prince Gustav Adolf of Sweden said a kindly good-by tonight to the United States. He wished he could stay longer.

On a divan beside him the Crown Princess Louise sat demurely, her hands folded most of the time. Their big young son, Prince Bertil, in his twenties, lounged in a nearby chair.

Crown Prince Gustav, his commonplace gray suit and worn tan shoes contrasting oddly with the high-paneled splendor of his Ritz Carlton hotel suite, was all but overcome in his rush of words as he thanked this country for the hospitality shown him and his family. They arrived here in June to participate in the tercentenary of the landing of the first Swedes on the shores of Delaware. They sail for home tomorrow.

FISHING AND PURGING.

The next turn of the purge will be southern, if not congenial. When fishing stops and business is resumed, on the Democratic Front and not on the sailfish, the southern states will be on the order of the day. It has been recently discovered in Washington that the south is economic problem No. 1. It is also political problem No. 1 in the Democratic Front and as the second problem arises the first is discovered.

Purges in the north have not been conspicuous for their success to date. There isn't a hide on the barn door. The south is full of contumacy and it has come to a full boil.

On the White House blacklist and the C. I. O. blacklist are such Democrats as Senators George of Georgia, Ellison Smith of South Carolina, Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri, Millard Tydings of Maryland, and, among others, many of the most distinguished house members, such as Hatton Sumners and Martin Dies of Texas, Howard Smith of Virginia, Henry Steagall of Alabama, Robert Doughton of North Carolina, Sam McReynolds of Tennessee, Schuyler Bland of Virginia, and Fred Vinson of Kentucky.

When all the purge lists have been checked up it will be found that there is good reason for regarding the south as political problem No. 1 at the present time, and it becomes economic problem No. 1 only in that connection. The way to straighten it out economically was discussed with the Washington reporters by the chief almoner, Mr. Harry Hopkins of the WPA.

Mr. Hopkins is forever doing something he says is alien to his intentions and scandalous to his conscience. His assistant, Aubrey Williams, told the representatives of the Workers' Alliance, which is the WPA political center, that, of course, the workers knew their friends who were giving them jobs and money and would support them. Some Democrats thought this was quite a horrid thing to say, but Mr. Hopkins, although he protests the sentiments are abhorrent to him, goes Mr. Williams one better and says, of course the WPA workers will vote the Democratic Front ticket as they should. Jestingly he said if a WPA worker had voted for Mr. Landon he would have thought the citizen was addlepated and should be in an asylum.

Mr. Hopkins called the reporters together to tell them that by the time the fishing has stopped and the purge resumed there would be 200,000 additional WPA workers added to the lists in the rural south. The men will be put on federal pay rolls until their crops, if any, are to be harvested, and after they have the harvest in they will be put back on the rolls again. This will keep them going from now until election time and if they vote as Mr. Hopkins thinks they will there will be an additional 200,000 fellows going to the polls to mark their ballots against the blacklisted southerners who, until now, have constituted the Democratic party leadership. If the strategy succeeds, the conservatives will be weeded out in accordance with the wishes of Mr. Roosevelt, expressed in his fireside chat when he said there was no room for any one in the Democratic Front party who was not a liberal—meaning by that one who was altogether for the revolution.

It should be difficult hereafter for Mr. Hopkins to hide behind his abhorrence of the use of federal relief to make friends and influence voters. It would seem in the light of his most recent statements that the relief appropriations are to be slush funds to buy the votes wherever distress can induce a voter to put his franchise up for sale.

Battleships are used for fishing and the treasury for the purge.

MEXICO HEADS FOR A SMASHUP.

Mexico has taken the brakes off its slow moving twenty year old revolution and wherever it's headed the pace is faster. President Cardenas may not like it. He's being hustled and it may be much against his better judgment. A cautious revolutionary is never on firm ground. Toledano, the Mexican John Lewis, head of the Mexican labor confederation, is a tougher fellow than Lewis himself and, if it could be possible, he has more leeway.

Seizure of American owned farm land has been going on for ten years. The property is not all in great ranch holdings. Some of it is in moderate sized farms. The promise is to pay compensation. Secretary Hull in his new note of protest says that a value of ten million dollars is placed on these lands and that the injured owners are left "not only without present payment but without any assurance that payment will be made within any foreseeable time." Mr. Hull remains amiable. The situation doesn't.

Communistically minded Mexican workers forced expropriation of the American and British oil properties and put Cardenas in a deep hole financially. He had to justify it theoretically and the United States helped him out by conceding the Mexican government's right to repossess its national resources. Mexico conceded that compensation must be paid, but it can't be. Cardenas cannot raise the money. Moreover, he can't sell much of the oil. The government loses revenue, the workers lose pay, and the owners are defrauded.

The Mexican National railroad has just been turned over to the railroad unions to have and to operate. The workers immediately boosted the freight rates sky high. In line with this transfer of ownership and administration the government expropriated some foreign owned industrial plants and gave them to the workers. Mexico cannot pay for the confiscations. Indeed, every one of them reduces government revenue along with the national income and the earnings of the people. Distress will breed more revolutionaries both right and left. Toledano is driving Cardenas to a smashup.

JAPAN'S RUSSIAN DANGER.

There have been any number of border incidents on the Russian-Japanese frontier in recent years, but after a flurry in the news nothing has come of them. A border incident involving a designing big fellow and a much smaller one generally means a war and the transfer of real estate. The Japanese and the Russians have not as yet gone beyond provocation and protest. There is a new episode now on the Manchukuan border. Some day—any day—the soviets and Japanese may be at war. Thus far neither one has dared risk it.

They are at present natural enemies. The excuse for Japan's army in China is that it is fighting communism. It asks the world to justify its actions on that ground. Communism means Russia and it also means China, Mongolia, Sakhalin, Vladivostok, and the Amur valley. Japanese imperialism is in conflict with the Siberian extension of the soviet union.

When Russia shot its generals Japan attacked China. The inference was that the Japanese high command understood that Stalin had advertised his military incompetence and his lack of faith in the Red army. Japan assumed that nothing was to be feared from the great Russian concentration of troops and equipment in Siberia. Up to date that prognosis has proven to be correct.

China has fought desperately and Japan is widely extended in a bitter struggle in the valleys of the Yangtze and the Yellow rivers. If there is an inevitable conflict in Asia between the communism of the soviets and the military imperialism of Japan an observer would say that the hour had struck for the Russian advance when Japan was all sprawled out in China, where Chinese communism and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek had made common cause. To wait for Japan to conquer China and be free with new resources to meet the communist enemy would seem in any view of Russian interests to be taking counsel of despair and yielding to the coercion of internal disorders.

Even now the aggressive attitude which Japan attributes to Russia appears to be largely the act of the eastern Siberian army commanded by Gen. Bluecher to force a situation which will save itself from the purge Stalin proposes for it. One major general fled to Japan to escape and it is said that Bluecher is protecting himself by refusing to obey orders to return to Moscow. He might have the situation in his own control and be able to force Stalin to follow him into war with Japan, which would be justified in the opinion of all Russian chauvinists, who must think that if Russia is to fight it should do so now.

It may be that the border incident will fizzle out. What such a war would do to Japan, what it would do to communism, and what it would do to the world is dim even to the imagination. Japan has made enemies of France and Great Britain. Its adventure in China has alarmed both. It has offended the United States, in spite of great efforts to remain friendly. Seemingly in accordance with the natural bent of a military government it has done just about what Germany managed to do in the world war, to alienate the larger part of the world by giving China the better cause and antagonizing the neutrals.

If the Red army were any good, if Russia were not the land of the Terror, Japan soon might be in the tightest spot it ever has been in.

A HARBINGER?

Home building within the corporate limits of Chicago is giving the first suggestion of revival. Permits are being taken out for the erection of houses in every section of the city, with Beverly Hills and the northwest side leading. The number of single family dwellings authorized by permits issued by the Chicago building office during June was the largest for any month since 1929. The record for the first 20 days of July indicates that this month's total will go ahead of June.

Home building was the backbone of the revival in business which started in 1922. It supplied the major impetus for expanding business in Chicago for three years thereafter. Starting with 1926 and continuing through 1929, each year saw a smaller amount of house building in Chicago. In the succeeding half dozen years there were almost no residences constructed in the city.

One of the things which made cautious persons suspicious of the partial business recovery during 1933 to 1936 was the fact that home building had scarcely any part in it. Experience said that prosperity without building activity wasn't the McCoy. The family man who puts his savings in a house wasn't backing the revival with his capital. This time it may be different.

Attention has already been directed in these columns to other analogies between the present incipient upturn and the recovery which followed 1921. Then the reactionary phase of a cycle came to an end with the passing of an inventory crisis. Betterment followed a period of reactionary commodity prices. In both particulars there have been identical situations this time.

Editorial of the Day

NOTES OF THE DAY.

[Arkansas Gazette, Little Rock.]

Wherever horses are raced in this country there is likely to be found horse and rider equipment from the small shop of Charles L. Becker of Louisville, Ky. The place, says Molly Clowes in the Louisville Courier-Journal, is narrow, crowded and "practically tucked in the vest pocket of Churchill Downs." From it have been going out for thirty-five years handmade saddles, bridles, whips, "silks" for the riders, and "about 500 other related items to virtually the entire racing world on this side of the Atlantic." The trousseau of a jocky on the major circuit, which he must buy for himself and can obtain at Becker's, includes at least eight pairs of white silk whipcord breeches, caps at $8 each, boots at $18 a pair, saddles at $50 each, whips, pommel pads and surcingles, mud suits and skull caps. The jackets are in the owner's stable colors and are of satin. Because the work is done slowly by hand, Mr. Becker and his four assistants have steady employment all the year round.

If Eugene Goossens, conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra and this week's famous conductor at Ravinia, begins to sketch idly on a menu card, it's invariably a boat. Boats are his hobby—his boyhood was spent at Liverpool—and he knows the profile of nearly every boat that sails the blue. It was the S. S. Majestic he was absentmindedly drawing yesterday at luncheon between his whitefish and his peach shortcake; and when the old S. S. Paris was mentioned, he drew that, too. Mrs. Goossens, sapphire eyed, auburn haired, and very beautiful, says she remembers only what the bars and the beds on boats are like.

A surprisingly bookish young woman—Mrs. Goossens, considering her beauty. She knows her Thomas Mann and her Sacheverell Sitwell, her essayists and poets. What's more—to her composer-conductor husband at least—she knows enough not to talk while he's working, or to want to hear bits of what he's composing. He hates even the most informal of previews, so she reads and ignores him while he works. Goossens is working on a new symphony now. Also he has with him what she calls "pick up work," bits of scoring he takes with him on trains. They leave Monday for the west where he will conduct at the Hollywood Bowl.

When it revives it soon parades behind a phony grin.

Thanks for the Memory? ? ?

And did you ever drive those same cows home from the pasture in the cool of the evening—you were tired as all getout from plowing corn, or pitching hay, or handling the straw end of a thresher—and back them, one after another, into a corner of the cowyard, and then sit down at their fly-bedecked ribs and strip and pull? Ten or fifteen of them? It was 10 o'clock sometimes ere you finished. And if their switching tails weren't in your eyes or teeth, the flies and mosquitos were; and ever and anon one would go after a fly on her belly with a hind foot, or a horsefly on her short-ribs with her madly swinging head, and you went rolling into the cowyard, bathed in a milk and mud gravy. Wasn't it fun? And the old man came out of the barn fuming about the lost pail of milk, belittling your black and blue ear where bossy had smacked you with a Joe Louis uppercut, or the missing toe nail, where she had brought her hoof down after taking care of the fly on her belly. And then you went in and had your supper about 10:30 and then to bed to muse and muse on the sweet prospect that tomorrow you had to do it all over again. I ask you, Mr. Belland, did you ever milk a herd, or did you just muse?

Douglas Park Bus No. 36 Again.

You don't know anything about the 8 a. m. No. 36 Douglas Park bus until you've ridden the line on a hot Sunday morning, with the entire carload, mostly high school kids, bound for the Oak street beach. You probably will see the imperfect 36 wearing farmerette overalls over her halter necked bathing suit, and maybe the woman who wears shorts a size too small, trying to manage four youngsters and a bursting paper bag filled with sandwiches, towels, and comic sections. Then when the homegoing crowds reach the State and Quincy terminal bus company officials line them up—the line reaches from State street to the door of the Great Northern theater—and fill each bus as it comes in.

When we dine—just the two of us—at the small table at the end of the dining room by the windows overlooking the lake, it's like having prize seats at an aquatic show. A surf board rider skims the waves behind a speed boat, his figure silhouetted against the magenta and mauve sunset clouds. White sails move across the darkening water and there is a flash of sea gulls' wings. To the right are the hulls of yachts, one black as midnight, one shining white; little launches dash busily about; a lake steamer moves toward the horizon. In the foreground intrepid swimmers lean their cheeks to the cold gray billow, to steal a phrase from Swinburne. Soon the lights begin to come on; chains of light on a distant steamer; starboard and port lights on the yachts, emerald and ruby flashes from the breakwater lights; mile long necklaces of lights on Navy Pier. "MY CHILD JUST WON'T EAT".

A HOST of children are haled into physicians' offices and are obliged to listen while mothers complain about eating habits. Some parents never will learn that—with but few exceptions—their offspring will eat adequately and properly if they are let alone, if they are not fussed at, coaxed, or criticized. In fact, treatment—if any—should be directed toward the excessive solicitude which fathers and mothers frequently manifest.

With these noneaters, a careful inquiry may elicit the information that an effort has been made to force appetite through the use of a tonic. Why is this given? Because of the belief that the child actually is starving himself—and, naturally, anxiety demands a whip. But, as every medical man knows, a drug designed to increase hunger will do so only for a time. Within a week or so the boy or girl will be back exactly where he or she started, whereupon there comes a request for a new and stronger medicine.

Now, the fact of the matter is, that if food is available no youngster will starve. But some may find well nigh a satanic joy in being coaxed, bribed, or even bullied into disposing of the meal. No one knows how much nibbling is done in between, or at the neighbors'. I well recall the case of a 5 year old lad who apparently never was hungry. Finally the parents brought him to the doctor's office, where a perfectly normal boy was interviewed. The suggestion was made that he might be taking snacks between meals.

"No, that is not the case. I have watched him and he doesn't eat a bite," said his mother.

"Well," replied the physician, "why not question the cook?"

Inquiry developed quite a different story. Not only cookies, but bread and butter and sandwiches were a part of his play. He and his "gang" held parties in the back yard with refreshments as the main attraction.

The best rule is to let the child take what he wishes and when he wishes, in order to overcome a possible inhibition when the family gathers for dinner. The hunger strike may have started with a scolding at the table because of dirty hands, an unclean face, or some error in etiquette. Appetite for that meal vanished and junior sat in perfect decorum, resisting even a mouthful. Next morning the memory of what was to him unjust treatment still rankled and if "rigid dis-cipline" was the rule of the home, a mild element of stubbornness banished hunger. The longer he held out the more fixed became the habit. But, of course, he obtained nourishment where and when he could find it.

There is little if any danger in allowing the child to eat more sweet stuff than is really good for him because, after a bit, he will tire of one kind of fare—no matter how appetizing or palate-stimulating it may be. We all tend naturally to gravitate toward the balanced diet. I once heard a candy manufacturer remark that he allowed every new girl who entered his employ to devour as much candy as she chose. There was no inordinate consumption on the part of any one, while some developed a real antipathy.

Here are some recommendations which may be of help:

1. Stop all instructions as to diet. If this or that article remains untouched do not let Jane know that you have observed the fact. This will nullify the thrill of attention. As far as she knows her neglect has been ignored.

2. Allow John to choose anything on the table that he desires. If he wants to know what there is for "after" and picks the raisins out of the rice pudding, make no comment. Within a short time he will grow tired of this procedure and begin to look about him for other tasty dishes.

The lesson is that children discern apprehension and concern quickly. The only thing we must be sure about is that illness is not responsible for this type of behavior. Once a son or daughter has been pronounced healthy few parents need have the slightest fear as to the amount and variety of food that will be ingested.

MIGHT WEAR TOUPEE.

J. S. writes: Although only 19 years old, I already have lost half the hair on my head. I never go out on account of the sorrow and embarrassment this has caused me.

Is it possible for a man to wear a wig successfully and without its being conspicuous?

REPLY.

Early loss of hair is sometimes due to heredity, sometimes to disorders of the scalp, and sometimes to general physical conditions—that is, when the entire body is below par. A physician who is a skin specialist can determine the state of your scalp. If your health is good, vigorous massage may be helpful.

Nothing can be done for most cases of baldness, but do not let it spoil your social life. It does not detract from a pleasant personality. A toupee may be worn with comfort. Consult a skilled wigmaker.

BETTER BE EXAMINED.

M. E. K. writes: I am a girl of 18 with the habit of drinking 15 to 17 glasses of water daily, which causes frequent urination. Is this too great an intake of liquid? Will it cause kidney trouble?

REPLY.

Is your water consumption because of great thirst? If so, examination of the pituitary may disclose the condition known as diabetes insipidus. This is not a serious matter as a rule, and much can be done to relieve the symptom. Try cutting the amount of fluid in half. The kidneys will handle a huge quantity of water without injury.

CURBING BLUSHES.

G. M. B. writes: What is the cause of blushing and how can it be cured?

REPLY.

Emotional reactions such as embarrassment lead to a rapid dilatation of the capillaries which lie in the skin, causing them to become overfilled with blood, and the red color shows through the surface. The episode usually indicates shyness or self-consciousness, and may be overcome by affecting indifference. After a time one becomes accustomed to the stimulus, so that the nervous response will not occur. Poise and self-forgetfulness can be acquired by practice.

WOULD DO SOME HEAD HUNTING.

Oak Park, Ill., July 21.—Could you exercise your influence to have congress pass a bill declaring an open season on inconsiderate idiots who insist on operating their radios at a maximum volume? There need not be a heavy bounty for each head brought in, but just enough to make it worth while.

Many of us could earn considerable pin money in this manner, to say nothing of the sport of running down the offenders. Please request that there be an additional reward for bringing in one of the rarer type known as the "long distance listener." This is the unthinking, ultra-selfish specimen who turns the radio on in the front of the house and then sits out on the rear porch to enjoy some fresh air.

A brief jail sentence should be adequate punishment for the women listeners who have the radio on all day in order to do away with that feeling of loneliness, meanwhile paying little or no attention to the type of program. Thanks for anything you can do along these lines.

VINCENT V. LOTTS.

MORE TRINITY CHURCH LANDS.

Chicago, July 21.—My name is Cox and through that fact I've discovered there is a concerted effort being made to lure people of that name by the spread of a fake story that they are heirs to the property under Trinity church in New York. The scheme is being worked all over the country. In Kentucky, for example, an agent visited a town, stirred up the Cox tribe to a pitch of excitement and carried away $1,500 from that one county.

The gang sends out notices that the suit to recover the vastly valuable property is about to start but that about $25,000 is needed for expenses. It is an old gag but they fall for it.

If the people so solicited would turn such notices over to postal authorities or local papers the racket would be rapidly suppressed. W. C. Cox.

SPEAKS FOR THE SOUTH.

Shelbyville, Ill., July 21.—Regarding a federal anti-lynching law. I think the south will quite willingly acquiesce, provided the law also includes the north with its gangland atrocities. Isn't there a law that makes it illegal to favor certain sections of the country? Then why load the south with an unjust law, making the decent people suffer for the crimes of its savages? According to the Bible's teaching, the north also is considered the "brother" to these killers. There is always another side to be considered. E. M. N.

WANTS A FAIR DEAL.

Chicago, July 20.—Those who work for the railways are paying for the building and upkeep of a nice highway for the trucks to use to take their bread and butter away from them.

To help business instead of cutting the salary of an already underpaid man, a law should be made to force trucking and bus companies to build and maintain their own highways. Then it would be fair competition and may the best man win.

A RAILROAD ENGINEER'S DAUGHTER.

WHEN CYCLISTS ARE SAFEST.

Chicago, July 20.—I am 29 years old and have driven an automobile ten years. These last two years I have also ridden a bicycle and I find that riding on the left side of the street next to the curb is safest for autoist as well as cyclist. Pedestrians are advised to walk on the left side. S. KANTER.

JUST WHAT IS "BLATHER."

Toulon, Ill., July 21.—There has been some discussion in your column concerning patriotism. One writer bemoans the fact that so many Americans do not know the words to our national anthem. Another defends the teaching of this and the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

What we teachers need to do is to forget all this blather about patriotism and teach our pupils to think for themselves. Show them how to examine a question impartially from all sides, and then render a decision in the light of the established facts. If we can do this we will not have to worry about "teaching patriotism." You cannot instill patriotism in a child by having him repeat daily the pledge of allegiance, or teaching him to sing "The Star Spangled Banner." Patriotism means more than a blind allegiance to an ideal placed in the mind by some one else, and, which has been too often the case, at a time in the life of the child when he is not capable of this exercise of independent judgment. Let us teach real "PATRIOTISM."

A TEACHER.

FROM FOGG TO HUGHES.

Chicago, July 20.—On Oct. 2, 1872, according to Jules Verne, an Englishman named Phileas Fogg left London on a journey around the world. This trip he completed in eighty days. All known means of transportation were utilized. It was a record. Now Howard Hughes and his four companions encircle the world in ninety-one hours and seventeen minutes, demonstrating the speed and dependability of aerial transportation.

Scientific achievements have well nigh obliterated space and Phileas Fogg's world encircling time in days has almost been reduced to hours.

ROYAL W. BELL.

FINDS RAILWAY THE SAFE WAY.

Chicago, July 19.—To Ex R. R. Conductor: Perhaps some railway departments are mismanaged. But for safety the railroads for travel are hard to beat. I went "by rail" on my vacation over 250 miles and return. The coach I rode in had its own track and no danger of bumping into some other vehicle or telephone pole. The service was royal. I enjoyed myself. No chance for a grouch. Tho I am helping in perfecting the organization of the Railway Patrolmen's union, I will always uphold the idea, "Ride on the Railroads." They are our dependable means of transportation, whether to points west, east, south, or north, or just to our suburbs. L. BROWN.

ESTATE ASSETS.

Decatur, Ill., July 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Trustee sells at a profit securities turned over to him by executor. Should that profit be added to the corpus and not treated as income?

2. Trustee sells at a profit securities not part of original estate, but that he as trustee had invested in; should that profit be treated as income payable to life beneficiary? The will is silent on this, merely gives the "income to G. for life." I have asked several lawyers; none of them knows and their guesses vary. Can you tell me? J. F. W.

1. It is not clear what you mean by a profit. If you mean merely that he gets more than the testator paid for them, then it would appear to us that there was no basis for saying that this difference is income.

2. We cannot undertake to advise on such a question without having the wording and the facts more adequately before us.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

BONDHOLDERS.

Chicago, July 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am a bondholder on a north side apartment.

1. How can I find the names of the other bondholders?

2. Does the head of a bondholders' committee have the right to refuse to give me these names?

3. Can the head of a bondholders' committee give a building owner the third extension of his mortgage without asking the bondholders? H. O. L.

1. Ordinarily the persons who originally handled the loan control the list, and in order to perpetuate their control they are reluctant to disclose the names. We know of no way to force this disclosure otherwise than by proceedings under the recent amendments to the bankruptcy act.

2. Yes, unless bankruptcy proceedings are instituted.

3. His powers depend upon the wording of the deposit agreement.

SETTLING ESTATE.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 14. — [Legal Friend of the People.]—1. How long does it take to settle up an estate when the deceased left no will? This is in Illinois. My uncle died March 9 of this year and I haven't even been notified of his death.

2. You said that I was entitled to something and that no affirmative steps would be necessary on my part to obtain it. There was no property, only $4,000, half of which is in a bank that is now being liquidated.

3. Do you suspect collusion?

4. What should I do? G. K.

1. Creditors are allowed a year in which to file their claims. Ordinarily an estate is not closed until after the expiration of that year.

2. We do not remember your previous question nor our answer.

3. You give us no basis for suspecting collusion.

4. Ordinarily it is not necessary for the beneficiaries to be separately represented. The court takes care of their rights practically automatically.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PROBATE FEES.

Chicago, July 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—We are selling a piece of property valued at about $2,000. This is going through Probate court and the amount to be equally divided among the heirs.

1. What I would like to know is the cost of probating a piece of property of that size?

2. Also, what commission does a real estate man receive for selling it? O. L.

1. The Illinois statute fixes the fee of the personal representative at not over 6 per cent of the personal property. If the personal property is sold in the course of the probate proceedings, this would increase the fee. The full percentage is not allowed on substantial estates.

2. This is not fixed by statute, but by custom in the neighborhood. We suggest that you try asking other brokers.

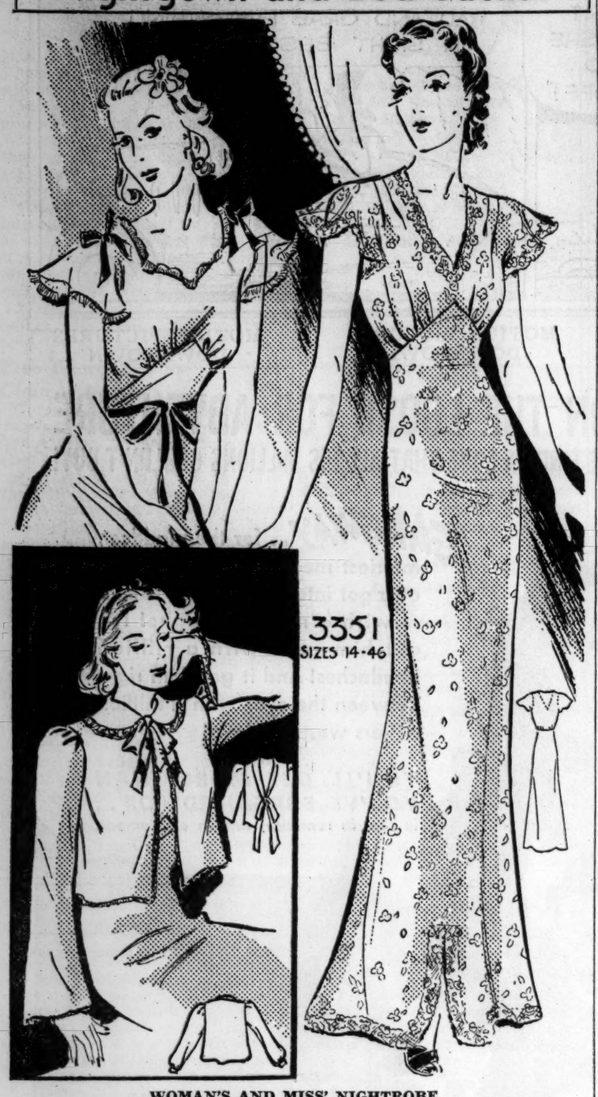
Nightgown and Bed Jacket



WOMAN'S AND MISS' NIGHTROBE.

No season of the year has a monopoly on styles in nightwear. Year in, year out, every woman needs a large supply of attractive nighties, and we think it's high time we offered a pretty pattern along this line. The night dress illustrated today has much the smart styling of a dress. Its V neckline tops a shirred bodice, the waistline is pointed up high and is the source of the fullness. The sleeves are cut in one with the shoulder for comfort, but are full so that they flare somewhat. The skirt is molded at the hipline and flared below the knees. The hemline is cut up into the skirt in the manner of your smartest evening gown. If you like, edge this silk, satin or cotton nightie [whichever you prefer] with exquisite lace.

There's another scheme. Leave the edges plain and use a ribbon sash around the waist, with matching bows on the shoulders.

We've provided a bed jacket, too. It has a "little girl" collar and full sleeves, and a bow ties at the neckline. It may match the nightie in fabric or be of a harmonizing material and color.

Style No. 3351 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material, with 4½ yards of lace for the nightgown. The jacket requires 2 yards of 39 inch material, with 4½ yards of lace.

Beauty Aids of Grandma's Time Are Good

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Your grandmother washed her face in dew for the good of her complexion. Modern girls probably don't get up that early. Yet if, in the rush of getting off on your vacation, you have forgotten some of your favorite cosmetics, you still have beauty aids at hand.

A medical clinic recommends milk for many skin troubles. Dip a little cotton in some milk and swab your face. See how it tightens up the muscles. After too much sun, it is very sooting to the flesh. Buttermilk is a splendid bleach.

If you are anxious to tan quickly, don't worry if you didn't pack your favorite sun tan oil. Take along a bottle of olive oil or vinegar. If you are overzealous and come back from the beach a fiery red, bathing in vinegar will help turn your skin to a nice coppery brown. If the burn is very violent, baking soda, moistened, is splendid.

If you are far from a beauty parlor and feel like having a facial, spread a paste of plain oatmeal on your face. Or mix almond meal with the yolk of an egg for a beauty mask. Let it stay on for about twenty minutes or half an hour, then wash off and see how nice your skin looks.

The thoughtful owner of a little inn in New England keeps a dish of fine corn meal by the bathroom wash basin. It's a hint you might well borrow. After washing, take a little of the meal and rub your hands with it. It will leave them soft as silk.

Your grandmother used sheep's tallow if her hands became rough. But if you have forgotten hand lotions, you still can use olive oil.

If the sun's glare is encouraging squinting wrinkles, dip a piece of gauze in the white of an egg and stick it on. It is also a splendid muscle builder for the lines that run from nose to chin.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Want pretty feet? And "happy" feet?

Here's a pedicure-massage treatment that will work wonders not only in the trimness of your feet but also in their comfort: First, bathe the feet thoroughly with warm water and soap; scrub the nails and cuticle with a brush. Don't soak too long.

Use an oily type polish remover to take off the old polish and then use your emery board for shaping. Don't attempt fancy curves; file your nails straight across. If you want to do things up properly you'll follow this with a little buffing for the good of the nails. Use a good cuticle remover on each toenail, working the orangewood stick gently around the base and sides of each nail. Wipe the loosened cuticle away with a towel. Cleanse under the nail with the stick wrapped in cotton.

Then scrub the toes again and wipe dry. Apply nail white under the tips, put tufts of cotton between the toes to hold them apart, and put on your polish. Use a base first to make the polish last longer. Use a good peppy shade, too. No matter how you feel about bright polish on your hands, you'll like vivid polish on your toes. It makes them look much trimmer and makes the feet look lily white.

After the polish dries apply manicure oil, massaging it into the cuticle.

Then massage the whole foot for about five minutes with a special cream that serves as a skin softener. Use an upward rotary motion over foot and ankle and up the calf of the leg. Put your four fingers over the ball of the foot, your thumb above it, and massage straight across the foot, again using that rotary motion. Wonderful the way this relaxes muscles!

Then do some foot exercises—circling ankles, bending the toes in and out. This relaxes, and speeds up the circulation stifled by the tight fitting shoes.

Four Weddings of Interest on Calendar Today

BY JUDITH CASS.

It seems more like a Saturday in June than July because of the number of interesting weddings that are taking place today. Miss Katherine Carr and Miss Narcissa Thorne are being married in Chicago and Lake Forest, respectively; Miss Anne Lynch will be wed in Nashotah, Wis., and in Williamstown, Mass., Miss Antoinette Treadway will become the bride of a Chicagoan.

Miss Carr, elder daughter of George Russell Carr, and Robert Henze, son of Prof. and Mrs. Martin Henze of Innsbruck, Austria, will be married at 6:30 o'clock in the chapel of St. Chrysostom's church. Her sister and brother-in-law, the Peter G. Moons, will be their only attendants. Just the family will be present at the ceremony and at a dinner Mr. Carr is giving afterward at the Saddle and Cycle club, but even so there will be a considerable number of guests, for the bride is widely related.

Part of Miss Carr's costume will be some edelweiss, picked high in the Alps and sent to her by her fiancé's parents. Mr. Henze and his bride are going to live in London, but before they go there to occupy their apartment in Dolphin square they will go to Innsbruck to see his parents and to the Dolomites to climb mountains. A trip to California will preface their honeymoon abroad, however, for the couple will go west immediately to visit her grandmother, Mrs. Jacob Mortensen, at her Pasadena home.

Thorne Nuptials at Bride's Home.

Miss Thorne, youngest of the Robert J. Thornes' five daughters, and Charles L. Peet of St. Paul, Minn., who are being married at 5 o'clock at the Thorne home, will spend the next year traveling abroad. They are sailing next week, taking a car with them.

For something old Miss Thorne is wearing a rosepoint lace veil that was worn by the George Thornes' daughters and by two of her sisters, Mrs. G. Corson Ellis and Mrs. Hermon Dunlap Smith. Another sister, Mrs. Alexander B. Spence, is to be the matron of honor. She and the bride's fourth sister, Mrs. George Gillespie, and their husbands live in Arizona, but are spending the summer in Lake Forest.

Just the families will be present at the ceremony, which will be read by the Rev. Truman Potter. A large reception will follow. Miss Gertrude Janeway of Los Angeles will be the maid of honor. Miss Margot Reid and Miss Phyllis Peter will be bridesmaids.

Alfred Lindley will be Mr. Peet's best man, and ushering will be Robert Pabst, Otto Madlener, and Robert Burns of St. Paul, Mr. Peet's brother-in-law. Mrs. Lindley and Mrs. Burns have come for the wedding.

Lynch Wedding Will Be at Mission House.

Miss Lynch and Marston T. Miller, son of the Percival W. Millers of Cocoa, Fla., are being married at a quiet ceremony in the little mission house at Nashotah, with only members of the family and a few friends present. A reception will follow at the summer home of the bride's father, V. Reges Lynch.

Miss Betty Curwen of Cocoa and the bride's brother, Mackay Lynch, will be the only attendants. After the reception Mr. Miller and his bride will start for the south, stopping to visit friends on the way to Cocoa, where they will live.

Fowle-Treadway Nuptials in East.

Several Winnetkans, including the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fuller Fowle, have gone to Williamstown for the wedding of Miss Treadway, daughter of the Lauris G. Treadways, and William C. Fowle. The ceremony will take place in the afternoon at the Thompson Memorial chapel, with a reception following at the Williams inn.

The Rev. Roy B. Chamberlain, chaplain of Dartmouth college, of which the bride's father is an alumnus, will read the service. Frank F. Fowle Jr., who married Miss Betsy Ballard in Winnetka last month, will be his brother's best man. Robert M. Buddington of Evanston is one of the twelve ushers.

Hugh S. Porter of Winnetka also went east for the wedding. Mr. Fowle has just been appointed director of athletics at the Hotchkiss school and he and his bride will live on the Hotchkiss campus at Lakeville, Conn.

Elizabeth Malburn to Become Bride.

William Peabody Malburn of Evanston today is announcing the engagement of his daughter, Elizabeth Brewster, to Stuart Salisbury Smith of Denver, Colo. Mr. Malburn was assistant secretary of the treasury under President Wilson and was vice president of the American Exchange National bank of New York from 1917 to 1929, and afterwards of the Irving Trust company.

Miss Malburn is a granddaughter of the late Charles S. Thomas, former senator from Colorado. She was graduated from Miss Porter's school at Farmington, Conn. The wedding will take place early in September.

Supervised play by Larry Davis, Jack Harrison and Paul Oliver is promised in gay invitations these three bachelors have issued to a housewarming tomorrow afternoon. They are at home for the summer in the "rear apartment" at 504 North Oakwood avenue, Lake Forest. Cold beer will be served in the open air from 3:30 o'clock on.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

On the Subject of Movie Heroines.

Hollywood, Cal., July 22.—If you girls are stenographers or sales girls, you get up grumpily at 7 a. m. from what some optimist has described hilariously as your downy couch. A downy couch? That's a fine tag for that instrument of torture on which you sleep. Most mattresses are made of pointed boar bristles which stab and slash at you while you sleep. You get up in the morning and need a blood transfusion.

On top of that the bed posters creak and groan every time you shift position and you are so scared by these weird wood noises that you are afraid to open your eyes and see if a phosphorescent ghost is jibbering at you. If you turn on your right side the pillow, made of some petrified material, skins your ear. If you turn on your stomach in ten minutes you feel as though you have developed peritonitis.

Before I tell you of the lives led by Carole Lombard, Norma Shearer, Alice Faye, Myrna Loy, Hedy La Marr, Greta Garbo, Danielle Darrieux, Loretta Young, and other pampered and petted darlings of the cinema, let us accompany you to your office or store.

At the end of the ride to the office is no rainbow or pot of gold. The terminal is The Boss. He is a stylish stout in the late 40s, who wheezes. He is the kind of a termite who prefers George Arliss to Tyrone Power. His sense of humor went out with the bustle. Between the attacks of gout, mother-in-law, and high blood pressure, plus the necessity of earning a living, the mind has left The Boss' body. Even Benny Goodman's brass section couldn't make him do a time step. If he ventures into repartee his conversation will be his golf, his son, his wife, and his visit to the doctor.

For fifty weeks his stenographer has heard this routine, but each time he launches out on it you'd think he'd coined a new Noel Coward monolog. At noon the stenographer will get a reprieve. She will rush to the ladies' room, powder her nose, and then fight and claw her way into a crowded elevator to be jolted downstairs to lunch.

Lunch? Abroad the word implies a leisurely repast. For the American stenographer it means a stool in a drug store. A lot of reasons have been advanced for the fine legs of American girls. They developed those legs from clamping them tightly to drug store stools. The pharmacist in charge has never gone to pharmacy school. He is a combination soda jerker and chef. While he squirts a black-and-white with one hand he cooks hash with the other, or drops three slices of white bread into a toaster or scrambles an egg or whips up a chicken salad sandwich.

This overworked genius also runs the cash register and he is so tired that his fatigue often communicates itself to the food. If you stenographers ever have had a tired sliced egg sandwich you will know what I mean, tired egg, wilted lettuce, and exhausted cole slaw.

No wonder stenographers are wild-eyed when they get back from lunch. Instead of having a balanced meal, as prescribed in the good book, they have had a bad case of unbalanced indigestion. The cole slaw is doing a dipsydoodle in their stomachs, the egg is sulking and the cold drink with which this fearsome lunch has been washed down is lonesome for Atlanta, Ga., where it was bottled. It wants to get back to the "Gone with the Wind" country. Instead of taking dictation the stenographer should take an ambulance to the nearest hospital.

Take the ordinary day, however, of the movie heroine. She is awakened by a Swami who is tinkling a silver bell. Her breakfast platter is covered with flowers and fan mail. Three maids lift the luxurious beauty and carry her to her perfumed bath, where they dunk her reverently once or twice and then dry her off with peach fuzz. [That is, if peaches are in season.] She dons a Schiaperelli frock, lazily adjusts silk stockings that cost the studio $20 per pair, and is whisked to work in her limousine. Her first maid says in farewell: "Now, don't work too hard, Miss Goldilocks. Remember your metabolism."

"Don't work too hard." Miss Goldilocks' "work" on this particular morning consists of scenes in which Clark Gable, Robert Taylor, and Charles Boyer crush her to their manly bosoms and shower her with ardent caresses. I ask you American stenographers if that is work, in the full sense of the word? To keep her looking pert Miss Goldilocks has a personal makeup man, a personal hairdresser, a boy who does nothing but follow her all over with a chair so that she can rest whenever her little heart desires, a personal publicity man assigned by the front office, a personal secretary, and a maid. On top of this the cameraman is her own personal photographer.

After this exhausting morning the movie heroine goes to her studio bungalow, where her personal chef serves lunch. She will not work that afternoon, because she has to go to the Inglewood race track, where she will be photographed presenting a gold cup to the horse and jocky that win the double feature handicap. A motorcycle escort then accompanies her limousine home, where she is giving a dinner for Cary Grant, Jimmy Stewart, Tyrone Power, and Randy Scott. Any way you look at it, girls, the movie heroine lives a tough life and only gets about $400,000 a year.

They are called movie heroines because it takes a heroic girl to undergo this sort of life. It takes great will power to be kissed by Gable, overpowered by Power, grabbed by Grant, collared by Colman, fondled by Flynn. The movie heroines do it on sheer fighting spirit, the same fighting spirit that distinguished the hardy women who trekked across the western plains. Sympathize with these movie heroines, girls, the next time your Boss tells you the one about junior and his Sunday school teacher.

Goossens Leads Own Series of Wagner 'Ring'

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The windy, out of doors music of Wagner's "Ring of the Nibelungs" filled half the program at Ravinia Park last night when Eugene Goossens, conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra, introduced his own arrangement of excerpts from three dramas of the tetralogy. He prefaced the new work with two standard items, Beethoven's "Egmont" overture and the Brahms Third symphony.

In choosing his music Mr. Goossens was careful to avoid such overplayed bits as the "Rhine Journey," the Funeral march, and the "Ride." But because of Wagner's love of leitmotifs, a great many familiar sequences creep in—even a few bars of the Valkyries' "Ride."

This version begins with the gusty prelude to the first act of "Die Walküre," which foreshadows in certain of its quieter sections the pitying and superlatively beautiful music in which Wagner had determined to clothe his star crossed Siegmund and Sieglinde. Hunding's motif leads to the fine brassy prelude to the second act of the same music drama.

The prelude to "Siegfried's" third act and the ascent of the rock offers two of the most fetching of the themes associated with the hero—his youthful horn call and his solemn chordal sequence. The chorus of the Gibichungs from "Die Götterdämmerung" closes the Goossens excerpts.

The music is arranged in effective order and orchestrated with a cunning eye and ear for legitimate effect. It was brilliantly played—so brilliantly, in fact, that a repetition of a portion of it was demanded.

The opening of the Brahms symphony was an exciting piece of showmanship—musicianly showmanship. Nobility and spaciousness were there, certainly, but also a fiercely vital drive which implied in these tremendous opening measures the entire movement—even the entire symphony—which was to follow. The pastoral theme of the first movement and the thousand delicacies of the second and third fell perfectly into the great frame which the director had outlined at the beginning.

Of the many moving effects of tempo and color which Mr. Goossens secured in the quieter sections of the work one of the loveliest came in the nostalgic theme which sums up the andante and appends such an eloquent "what-the-hell?" to the whole first half of the symphony.

Here the tempo broadened just enough to care for the additional thoughtfulness which creeps into the music, and the first violins were able, without being bothered by too insistent a time scheme, to sing along as movingly as you please.

The Beethoven overture profited by the conductor's feeling for great tonal masses and by his flair for a declamatory style. This comment, however, applies principally to the first part. The more lyrical of "Egmont's" passages flowed along in satisfactory fashion. There were several uncommonly beautiful tonal effects.

Mr. Goossens continues in charge tonight and tomorrow afternoon. Eugene Ormandy arrives Thursday for the two final weeks of the Ravinia festival.

Good Morning!

"I'll Give a Million" has a tang of novelty that makes it very refreshing.

The production is a deftly woven comedy-drama that moves zestfully and amusingly. It presents a popular cast who, under able direction, appear to be having quite as good a time as they're unquestionably handing you.

Pretty Marjorie Weaver, a young woman who is certainly going places these days, and that amazing Warner Baxter, whose infinite variety refuses to be staled by time, are the plot ringleaders and a team to be reckoned with. Peter Lorre contributes one of his effective if nauseating s o m e t h i n g - t h a t - c r a w l e d - o u t - f r o m - u n d e r - a - r o c k performances, and Jean Hersholt, Lynn Bari, John Carradine, and Paul Harvey have prominent and brightly presented rôles.

The tale told is of an American millionaire, sated with the sycophancy of his associates, who have proved that they love him for his wealth alone. He is accidentally lost from his yacht while saving the life of a tramp [Lorre].

As Newlander and Louie dry out in the rescuee's unsavory quarters the former makes the impulsive remark that he'd give a million francs to anybody who would be kind to him—with nary an ax to grind. . . .

During the night, while Louie sleeps, Newlander dons his host's clothes and departs, adventure bound. The tramp, in the guest's evening garments which he finds replacing his rags and containing a goodly sum of money, makes known the remark, and also the fact that an enormously rich man is walking the streets of Paris, seeking—not like Diogenes for an honest man—but for a genuinely benevolent one. . . .

A reporter hears and goes into action. The news of the strange quest is headlined and Paris hoboes are showered with mercy. Ere long every freight emits hordes of jobless gentlemen from other parts, all agog to get in on a good thing.

There—the scene is set! Now see the picture for developments.

Miss Weaver enters the scheme of things as a circus performer. She meets Newlander through the activities of a runaway ape.

If you'd like to be gay, cool, and quiet all at the same time, a ticket to the Roosevelt will adequately take care of that desire.

Patrons Brave Mud to Hear Park Concert

BY CECIL SMITH.

Late afternoon and early evening showers yesterday turned Grant park into a bog before concert time. The small company in attendance at the band shell was therefore confined to those doughty patrons of music who did not care what happened to their shoes.

Richard Czerwonky returned to the shell to conduct the Chicago Philharmonic orchestra, with Hilda Ohlin, Chicago City Opera company lyric soprano, as soloist in her first park appearance of the year.

Miss Ohlin has already won her spurs over at the opera house, having made particular successes in Respighi's "La Fiamma" and as Micaëla in Bizet's "Carmen." Her arias last night were "Depuis le jour," from Charpentier's "Louise," and the Bird Song from Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci."

There was much to admire in her singing. The crystalline purity of her middle upper voice is unusual, so that even a soft tone floats clearly out into the audience. The lower part of her voice is meaty enough to give character to a melody without letting it become heavy and lumbering.

At the same time it was apparent that the mechanics of singing correctly kept her so busy that she overlooked the duty of a public performer to communicate an artistic message to the audience. Louise's recollection of her first embrace, intended to be so full of rapture, was cold as ice and meaningless as an exercise in solfeggio. [In a solfeggio class a teacher would demand greater rhythmic accuracy, however, and a more accurate measurement of the interval of a minor ninth].

The Bird Song was considerably gayer, but even it reflected none of the warm mid-August sunlight so specifically apostrophized in the text. These operatic arias are not studio problems; they are mirrors of human life and experience.

A Winnetka Debutante

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

One of the Winnetka debutantes of the season is Miss Virginia Ballard, daughter of the Roger K. Ballards. She and Miss Natalie DeClerque, daughter of the Harry H. DeClerques, are to be introduced at the only supper-dance planned so far for autumn. The party will be on Sept. 16 at the Indian Hill club. The two buds will be seniors at Pine Manor Junior college in the fall.

Correct Child Without That Scolding Tone

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Discipline—Punishment.
Reminding—Nagging.

No, there's something wrong with these simple equations. When they're put down like that in black and white it's easier to see that many parents make the mistake of using punishment, scolding and even nagging to achieve the necessary end of discipline, correction, and reminding. Yet, if you're busy and tired and, well, just human, it's easy to fall into the way of using a cross voice when a calm, friendly one would do, of punishing on the spur of the moment when reflection would show you it's not necessary, or nagging when a quiet reminder or even overlooking the offense would serve the same purpose.

You don't have to scold a child to correct him. You don't have to reproach him. You don't have to deliver a long harangue, or as the children themselves sometimes call it, a lecture, when he's done something wrong; that is to say, done something in the way you don't want him to.

Parents can easily fall into the habit of investing all their corrections with unpleasantness. And once you get started on that scolding, or nagging, or reproachful path in child management it soon becomes a rut. And after a while you don't realize how far you've strayed.

It doesn't need to be so. Children can be corrected in a simple, brief way, with an explaining or friendly manner. They don't need blame every time they're told not to do something or shown the error of their ways.

There are so many things they do thoughtlessly, so many things they don't even know they shouldn't do, so many things that are wrong only because they don't fit into a grownup world or a civilized one that we should have pity on them and try to be as dispassionate as possible in our corrections.

Sally to Announce Sox Party Winners in Tribune Tomorrow

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Tribune Charities, Inc.]

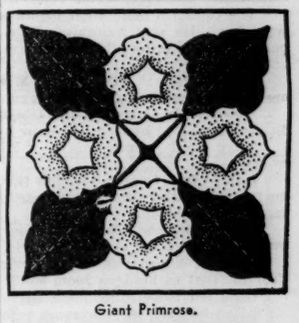
Tomorrow will be here in no time, boys and girls!

I know you have been awaiting it anxiously, because THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE will tell you whether you've won an invitation to our party at Comiskey park next Thursday.

You Sox fans had me pretty well snowed under with letters this week. But I finally managed to select 50 boys and 50 girls as my guests. Some of you wrote excellent letters, but forgot to include the information I requested. All letters must include your name, address, and age. There were a good many slow pokes whose letters did not arrive until Friday. Too late, you know—Thursday is always the deadline.

All will have a chance to try again, because THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE will bring you not only the names of our winners but news of the next party. I think it's a nice one, and I'm sure you will, too. We've had similar parties in years past and the boys and girls loved them.

Applique Quilt Brings Beauty of Garden to Room



Giant Primrose.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Giant Primrose" is one of those lovely applique blocks which transform any bedroom into a veritable flower garden. Here is one important feature to be remembered in quilting this flower. When the blocks are set together be sure the proper amount of filling or quilting cotton is used. Too much or too heavy cotton can spoil the effect of daintiness necessary to the beauty of this block, and too little will not bring out the grace of the flowers or leaves. The finished applique block measures 14 inches square, and thirty are required for one coverlet. Set together with three inch bands of material, and surrounded by a four inch border, the finished coverlet measures 90 by 107 inches.

SYNOPSIS.

On board the S. S. Panama Queen, Los Angeles to New York, are Anne Sydney, an actress, and her crippled and embittered sister, Mena; Arnold Vernon, elderly rich English film producer, and his wife, Claire; Isobel Butler, who hopes to get in pictures through Vernon; Alex Reed, young surgeon returning to work after two years' illness, and gossipy Mrs. Panting. Isobel meets and arouses Vernon's interest. Anne and Alex are mutually attracted. Mena spitefully tells Alex that Anne is a heartless flirt. Dr. Neil Andrews, a friend of Alex's, joins the ship in Mexico. He thinks Anne meets his ideals. Isobel and Arnold Vernon fall in love. He tries to buy his freedom from Claire. When she refuses he threatens to make a new will disinheriting her. The ship fights through a terrific hurricane. Isobel finds Vernon in her cabin unconscious, hit by a storm tossed trunk. She sends Claire to him and struggles to find a doctor. Claire, seeing her chance to gain wealthy widowhood, takes a loaded pistol, wrapped in a towel, from the purser's suite and shoots her husband, leaving the weapon in Isobel's wardrobe. She then tells Alex she has found her husband wounded in Isobel's cabin. Flagg, the purser reveals Vernon had just made a will leaving everything to Isobel. Alex offers to operate on Vernon.

INSTALMENT XXX.

EVIDENCE OF GUILT.

Alex had estimated that the old fashioned pistol ball had ploughed down through Arnold Vernon's chest and embedded itself in the region of the liver. It was more than two years since he had lifted a scalpel and he could not work with the lightning speed desirable for the safety of a heart patient, but if Vernon were to live at all it was his only chance.

Certainly the patient would not live without an operation till they arrived in Havana in the morning. He had no choice but offer himself if conscience meant anything. "I should be getting ready at once, Capt. MacKenzie—— "

The captain brightened as if a load had been taken from his mind. "That's good. We won't detain you. I'm told you worked a miracle with poor Holt's hand—— "

"That remains to be seen. Naturally I did my best to save it for him. A terrible tragedy for a surgeon—— "

He was already at the door. They heard him swiftly descend the steep companion to the boat deck and cross the deck at a run.

"Thank God we had him on board," said the captain. "I think he'll pull it off. I have a feeling in my bones—— "

Alex had no such confidence. Vernon had been bleeding slowly internally all night and his strength was very low. He went straight to the hospital, his mind running on before him. Neil would be there ready to help. The nurse in charge was a cool headed, competent young woman.

Up in the chartroom Fred Ainslee stood up and offered Claire a seat. She sat down without looking at him. There was a pale, stony, tragic look about her. The captain said quite gently: "You know, of course, Mrs. Vernon, that the doctors we have on board hold out very little hope for your husband's recovery."

Her voice was a mere whisper. "I was afraid of that."

"In that case it is essential we find out all we can before any facts can escape us. Some one will have to be tried for murder."

Her poise was admirable. She was calm, but she did not look indifferent. She gave the impression of grief laboring under her composure. "I wish I could help you."

"You can. What time did you go down to Miss Butler's stateroom?"

"I don't know. Everything was too confusing."

"What did you see when you opened the door?"

"My husband lying on the floor bleeding from the chest and the mouth."

"Was there a smell of powder in the air?"

"Yes. Something very acrid. It made me cough."

"How did you know he was there? What made you go there?"

Claire told briefly of Isobel's visit to the smokeroom.

"Mrs. Vernon, were you aware of your husband's new will?"

"New will?" Her eyes flicked wide open, and there was no doubt at all about the authenticity of her astonishment.

"Yes, Mr. Flagg tells me the night before last your husband spent an hour with him drawing up a will, leaving all his money to Miss Butler and cutting you out of it entirely."

Claire's hands went up over her heart. "I don't believe it. It can't be. It's not possible!"

"Too bad if you killed him for nothing," said Flagg bitterly.

The captain banged his fist on the table. "Time to say these things when we are sure of our facts. Now, Mrs. Vernon, are you quite sure you don't know anything that would throw any light on the situation?"

Claire had regained her composure. She had been considering her demeanor all night and how she would act under these suspicious eyes when they questioned her. "Only that what Mr. Flagg says about the will intensifies my own private suspicion. It would give a very strong motive."

"Did your husband talk to you about changing his will? Had you any such warning?"

"No. Never. This comes as a complete surprise to me."

"Do you know any reason why your husband should have done such an extraordinary thing?"

"None whatever." Her voice was low, but steady.

The captain's hand went to his face and his fingers worked around his wide jaw. He said irritably: "Mr. Ainslee, you should have paper and pencil and be taking all these answers down—— "

"Very well, sir."

And to Claire: "Thank you, Mrs. Vernon, that's all I want you to tell me now."

The captain picked up the telephone again. "This is the interview I dislike most. I'm hanged if I know how to deal with the woman."

Flagg said comfortingly: "Miss Butler is a very likeable young woman—— "

Isobel could be seen through the glass door of the chartroom knocking on the pane. Her face was haggard with distress and anxiety. She really cares, thought Flagg.

"Why was Mr. Vernon in your stateroom last night instead of his own?" inquired the captain severely.

"I don't know, Capt. MacKenzie—unless he felt ill and mistook my door for that of his own room—— "

Good old Isobel, thought Flagg.

"Had he been in your room before?"

"No. Why should he have?"

"I'm asking you questions, Miss Butler—not the reverse. A passenger on my ship is killed in your stateroom and I expect you to help me as much as possible if I am going to help you."

"Killed?" she exclaimed hoarsely.

"He is not dead yet—but that should not delay this inquiry. It will only be a matter of hours."

"O," she said, sinking back into her chair and closing her eyes. "I really can't bear it—— "

The captain's prejudice overwhelmed him. "You should have thought of that in the first place!"

Her eyes flicked open and her body tensed again. "What do you mean by that?" she inquired fiercely.

"My dear Miss Butler, no heroics, please. You must admit it looks very bad for you. You had a strong motive and the man is found on the point of death on the floor of your room. He has a shot wound in his chest. The air is full of the smoke powder immediately after you left it, and Mr. Flagg's Spanish pistol is found dropped in a drawer among your linen. How do you explain all these things?"

"I couldn't possibly explain them. When I went in I only saw—— "

The captain lifted his hand. "Just answer my questions, please. You'll admit you had a powerful motive—— "

Isobel glared at the sandy old Scotchman with misunderstanding and dislike. "I don't even know what you're talking about."

"You'll be telling me next you don't know that the night before Mr. Vernon made a new will—leaving his fortune to you and disinheriting his wife." [Continued Monday.]

Miss Jane, Gustavus Jr., and the A. Thomas Taylors [Geraldine Swift] will be hosts.

Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Magie will give a small dinner at their home in Wilmette this evening and later take their guests to the Indian Hill club for dancing. Mr. and Mrs. Magie expect to take a vacation in August.

Guernsey cattle fanciers have an important engagement this afternoon at the Lauren J. Drakes' Plano farm. The Northern Illinois Guernsey Breeders association is holding its annual show there at 1 o'clock. Breeders from miles around will gather with picnic luncheons to attend the show.

Two Sports Events Claim Attention.

Today is an important one for sailing and horse racing enthusiasts. The Chicago to Mackinac race will start at 2 o'clock this afternoon and the Arlington Classic will be run at the Arlington Park race track.

Mrs. Howell B. Howard, whose father-in-law, Col. Maxwell B. Howard, has entries in the Classic, is here for the event. Mrs. Howard is visiting her brother, Ralph J. Hines, in Lake Forest until Monday when she will return to her home near Dayton, O.

The Mackinac race will start from Belmont Harbor. The Julian Armstrongs have invited the wives of the skippers to cruise out in the lake in the Armstrongs' yacht, the Lively Lady, to watch the race get under way.

Many residents of the north shore and Chicago will be dining early this evening in order to be at Ravinia park in time to hear Gitta Gradova, pianist, who will be a guest artist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Eugene Goossens is this week's guest conductor.

Augusto Rossos Arrive Tomorrow.

The Italian ambassador to Russia, Augusto Rosso, and Mrs. Rosso arrive in Evanston tomorrow to visit Mrs. Rosso's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Wilkinson. Mrs. Rosso's son, George Bunker, will be with them. After a visit of two or three days they will leave for Central City, Colo., for the play festival. After that they hope to spend a few days at a ranch, probably in Wyoming. They will be back in Evanston in August and at that time Mrs. Rosso's daughter, Miss Adele Bunker, will join her family. She now is visiting in the east.

Ambassador Rosso will spend only a few days with his wife's family as his duties call him back to Russia, but Mrs. Rosso will stay in Evanston with her two children through September. The vacation in the west this year really has been planned for George, although Ambassador and Mrs. Rosso enjoy ranching. Last year, upon the request of Miss Adele, the vacation was spent in Russia.

Daughters of Jacob.

The annual picnic of the Daughters of Jacob Day and Night nursery will be held tomorrow at Ryan's woods, 87th street and Western avenue.

"Have you a recipe for puffy German pancakes, the kind one bakes in an iron skillet in the oven? I have had these at a Chicago restaurant and like them very much," writes a reader.

I think this is the recipe she wants:

German Pancakes.

3 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk
½ cup flour
2 tablespoons butter

Beat eggs until very light. Add the salt. Sift flour and add, beating constantly. Then add milk. Butter a rather large skillet and pour the batter into it. Bake in a hot oven, 450 degrees, for 10 minutes. Reduce the heat to moderate, 350 degrees, and continue baking for 15 minutes. Place on a hot platter and serve with apple sauce or with confectioners' sugar and lemon juice.

Another reader wants a recipe for malted milk ice cream. This one may be made in freezer or refrigerator trays. In the latter case it should be thoroughly beaten after it has frozen to a mush, and stirred at half hour intervals until it is completely frozen. This cream is delicious with honey fudge sauce, the recipe for which was printed last Tuesday.

Malted Milk Ice Cream.

[Serves Eight.]

1 cup malted milk, plain or chocolate
2 cups boiling water
1 teaspoon gelatin
1 tablespoon cold water
2 egg yolks
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups coffee cream or evaporated milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix malted milk to a smooth paste with one-half cup boiling water. Soak gelatin for five minutes in the tablespoon of cold water, and add to paste. Add remaining boiling water, one and one-half cups, gradually, stirring to blend thoroughly. Bring to scalding point in the top of a double boiler and pour slowly over beaten egg yolks combined with sugar and salt. Return to double boiler. Cook and stir for five minutes. Cool. Add cream and vanilla. Turn into refrigerator trays or freezer, and freeze. Stir every half hour until frozen, if trays are used.

A method for making sauerkraut the easy way, in the jar, is sought by another reader. This is the method recommended by a maker of canning supplies.

SAUERKRAUT.

Shred cabbage finely and pack tightly into fruit jars, glass topped preferred, to within an inch of the top. Add three scant teaspoons [one and one-half level teaspoons] salt to each quart. Partly seal. If packed well the liquid will come nearly to the top of the jar. The sauerkraut will be ready for use in six weeks. After fermentation ceases the jars should be tightly sealed.

Another manufacturer, maker of self-seal canning jars, recommends virtually the same method, but in using self-seal jars cold water is added to the packed cabbage to fill the jars, and they are completely sealed at once.

The Housewife

One of the nicest little conveniences for the vacation traveler is a package of especially prepared laundering crystals. A narrow, slender box holds packets for eight washings. It can be tucked away so easily in your suitcase or overnight bag.

This powdered soap is excellent, too. It will even remove stains from delicate silks and fine linens. We've experimented with it and found it was as good as anything we've ever tried for removing lipstick stains and ink. Also, it has a delicate fragrance.

This travel box costs no more than a good brand of cigarets. For stay-at-home use you can buy a larger package. EDITH WEIGLE.

Extra Woman Really Is a Social Asset

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The unwanted extra woman! Isn't it about time we broke with the old tradition that the sexes always must be equally divided socially? Can't we do away with the convention that demands the extras shall always be men? Let's give more parties and not be handicapped by the fear that there won't be enough men to go around.

Of course, at a dance it is useful to have a sufficient number of partners for the girls. But surely at informal gatherings, at teas, cocktail parties, during an evening of games or conversation, it isn't such a social error to have a few more women than men.

Guests don't go around counting. At a large party or even a small one, ask afterward and see if any one can tell you the ratio of women to men. You will find they simply haven't noticed the feminine surplus that gives the hostess so much concern. A lively evening is all any guest asks.

Don't drop the charming unattached woman from your list just because she hasn't an escort. She may add a great deal of charm to your party. Don't stop inviting a married woman whose husband has to work that night.

What if you have ten women and eight men, or twenty women and only fifteen men? Conversation doesn't require that people talk in twos. There need be no wallflowers in parlor games. Everybody can take part.

It won't spoil the pleasure of the men to have extra women. There is nothing that a man likes better than to have several women hanging on his words. He will enjoy being the center of attention.

WEDDINGS

The wedding of Miss Marjorie Helm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Helm of Evanston, to Dr. Verne Wilson Swigert, son of Mrs. Charles J. Swigert of Boone, Ia., will take place at 8:30 o'clock tonight at the First Methodist Episcopal church in Evanston with the Rev. Harris Franklin Rall officiating. A reception will follow at the Woman's club of Evanston. Dr. Swigert and his bride will be at home in Cambridge, Mass., after Aug. 15.

After a motor trip Mr. Orth and his bride will be at home on the south side.

Mrs. G. D. Crain Sr. of Evanston announces the marriage on July 12 in Jacksonville, Fla., of her granddaughter, Miss Ann McCutchen Gaines, to William Wimberly Hopson of Atlanta, Ga. BOOKS

Vincent Sheean Gives Breath of Life to History

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"A Day of Battle," by Vincent Sheean. [Doubleday-Doran, $2.50.] Published yesterday. Joint choice of the Literary Guild for August.

There is no literary anodyne like tales of the past. No matter how poignant, how vivid, how sad, or how glad, emotion and deed are hazed by time. Perhaps that is why historical romances always have been and always will be popular. They present no problems for present day decisions. But what they sometimes do, and Vincent Sheean says as much in his foreword, is to give a prick to present day problems.

Of the battle whose action fills the day recorded by Mr. Shean, he says: "Fontenoy is only a pin point upon the movement of that wonderful century, but, like any other pin point, it is full of life when examined under the microscope."

When the beautiful Mme. de Pompadour tells Voltaire, "I do not really know why we are fighting this war," she might be speaking of all wars, even of the bloodless ones of class against class or faction against faction.

And the Marquis d'Argenson prods modern readers when he sinks back in his carriage, with his smelling bottle to his nose in a vain attempt to forget the stench of the battlefield, and thinks that "some day men might fight for themselves instead of for the confusion and greed of those who governed them . . . the time might come when men in masses would learn to choose their weapons and their cause."

Other than in those remarks there is no implication that "A Day of Battle" is more than the slightly fictionized record of the battle of Fontenoy. That battle, on May 11, 1745, now is not even a remembered name to most of Mr. Sheean's readers, but it marked a turning point in modern European history. It was the day that the French, with the help of exiled Scotch and Irish troops pledged to the Stuart cause, won against England.

Mr. Sheean has described the battle maneuvers vividly, and has peopled its field with the great of the period. In a few swift descriptions of the meeting between Voltaire and Mme. de Pompadour he has drawn a memorable if bitter portrait of one of France's greatest literary figures.

The author calls "A Day of Battle" a novel, but declares: "Invention has had little to do with this novel, and evidence a great deal; it is a kind of history."

Another from History, Three Centuries Earlier.

"Under the Hog," by Patrick Carleton. [Dutton, $2.50.]

Three hundred years before "A Day of Battle," in the bloody period between 1470 and 1485, the action of "Under the Hog" takes place. Anodyne in another sense, this historical novel is. . . . "Thank God, these times are not those."

The hero of this zestful tale of love, war, and political intrigue is Richard III., a gentleman whom Mr. Shakespeare did up into the most diabolical of characters, but whom Patrick Carleton sees, at the worst, as misguided, eager to prevent civil war in England, and willing to do battle to prevent it. The matter of the murder of the little princes Mr. Carleton does not condone, but he does explain.

"Under the Hog" is not just another mixing together of dates, historic names, armor, contemporaneous slang and furniture, which many historical novels have been. In it the names are borne by alive, passionate, and ardent human beings who fight with lusty courage and live with courageous zest. The background also is convincingly alive—at least to this reader, who makes no pretense of knowing whether it is accurate, but who knows a good backdrop when she meets one.

Also a Period Piece, of the 19th Century.

"Old Motley," by Audrey Lucas. [Macmillan, $2.50.] Published Tuesday.

Another period piece is "Old Motley," of the early nineteenth century, and with family battles, instead of wars between countries and factions, its theme. It concerns a young man brought up strictly [too strictly] as a Quaker, who had a passion for the stage and became an actor despite family feuds.

Its backdrop also is vividly convincing, which cannot be said with unqualified honesty about its characters. But obviously the author intended doing something quite else than writing a realistic novel. What she has done is as good a mid-Victorian novel as one of the popular tale writers of the period itself did. "Old Motley" is a novel with all the absurdities of chance and circumstance, with convenient deaths, with love in hovels and hatred in plush places, with a villain unregenerately black and a hero unfailingly debonair. The result is a "tale" which has the charm of obvious fiction. And that again is anodyne.

Looking Over Latest Books

Two Books Take Theme from Newspaper Lives.

"Dana and the Sun," by Candace Stone. [Dodd-Mead, $3.50.]

"Jacob A. Riis," by Louise Ware. [Appleton-Century, $3.]

Both of these books were suggested to their authors by Prof. Allan Nevins of Columbia university, and both take their theme from the rich variety of newspaper life in New York following the civil war. But there the resemblance ends.

Candace Stone's study in the crowded field of books about Dana and his newspaper concerns itself entirely with his brilliant and erratic editorial policies. She follows the President maker through his sensational exposés during the Grant administration, through the period when he made "No king, no clown, shall rule this town!" the battle cry against Boss Tweed, and through the economic revolution at the end of the century, when Dana finally revealed that the youthful radical had been effaced by the conservative editor.

Jacob Riis was a reporter, and a good one, under Dana. The Sun's editor had the habit of hiring good reporters. But Riis was perhaps the only one who became one of the nation's great social reformers.

This Danish immigrant first saw the rottenness of tenement conditions, of municipal water supply contamination, and of political conditions in New York when he was a newspaper man. By the turn of the century his interest in fighting for improved conditions had taken all his time. By articles and lectures, as well as by direct political action, he saw New York's watershed cleaned up and disgraceful Mulberry Bend tenements replaced by a park, and he had come to be the trusted friend of President Theodore Roosevelt and a host of other leaders.

Louise Ware's book was written with the assistance of the Riis family, and is entertainingly documented with letters and other manuscripts.

Human Interest Story of a Great Railroad.

"Men and Iron," by Edward Hungerford. [Crowell, $3.75.]

Here is a book such as most people like to read. In terms of human interest it tells the story of a great railroad, the New York Central, and records in pleasant perspective the history of the entire section through which the road passes. You learn a great deal you didn't know about old Commodore Vanderbilt and the giants of his day.

You learn with surprise that some states and cities outlawed railroads, that the commodore himself fought them bitterly at first; he was a steamboat man. With contemporary writers you ride those early trains, "tencoops on wheels"; you meet the other passengers, see what they wear, what they eat, and hear what they have to say.

The narrative ends with last June 15, as the Central's greatest train, the new 20th Century Limited, starts a new era of comfort in railroad travel. C. L.

Great European Soldier Relives in This Volume

"Wallenstein," by Francis Watson. [Appleton-Century, $4.]

For eight years the world watched a giant struggle with Europe's wiliest diplomats in a battle to establish a national policy for Germany. In the chaos known today as the thirty years' war the world saw Albrecht von Wallenstein, duke of Friedland, rise from anonymity as an indigent nobleman to heights of glory and power seldom equaled in history, and then become a victim of the intrigue and bloody unreason that he was fighting.

Wallenstein became almost a demigod after his assassination and, as do most demigods, remaining obscure as to his real character. Now Francis Watson has pierced the dust that covers so much of the source material for the period, and has produced a lively, living biography of one of history's great soldiers.

The author rediscovers the tragedy of the Catholic-Protestant cleavage and sees the equally great but more personal tragedy of the man whose vaulting ambition and intense desire for power were tempered by a tolerance that saved some measure of religious freedom out of the thirty year orgy—at the same time that it was effecting his own downfall.

Mr. Watson has done his work thoroughly, with sympathy and at the same time dispassionate fairness. "Wallenstein" is history recreated, not merely retold.

Delightful Little Tale of Journey Into Maturity.

"Westward Under Vega," by Thomas Wood Stevens. [Covici-Friede, $2.]

Vega, brightest star in the northern hemisphere, sets a course for John and April on their model T journey away from Washington. As Vega's course is westward and as westward is the course of discovery, John and April become discoverers—first of the souls of other people, then at last of their own.

For many routine days John and April have known America's millions just as so many numbers to add, so many totals to bracket. Not until they come to depend upon a cross-section of those inanimate numbers for sustenance and companionship do they realize what blood there is in dusty statistics and what thousand dramas are written in the code of a census taker's report.

"Westward Under Vega" sings of John and April and their journey into maturity. It is a heart warming little book.

Anthology Gives New Insight on Egyptians.

"Never to Die: The Egyptians in Their Own Words," edited by Josephine Mayer and Tom Prideaux. [Viking, $3.50.]

Egypt to most of us is just an ancient nation that once developed a high culture, a passel of curse guarded mummies, and a heaven sent supply of two letter gods to fill awkward corners in cross-word puzzles. We may have traveled vicariously into the Valley of Kings and seen Tutankhamen's dazzling tomb. We are familiar with the art of the ancient Egyptians, with the odd alphabet, the mighty pyramids, the great heroes. But most of us don't know a thing about the ancient Egyptians themselves.

The arrangers of this book have done an immeasurable service. They have translated ancient writings—not for their historical importance, but for the light they direct upon the character of the Egyptians themselves. They have illustrated each group of translations with samples of art from the same period.

"Never to Die" is a delightful anthology of the folk literature of a very wise, very artistic, and decidedly interesting race.

Unforgettable Picture of South Seas in Tale by Nordoff and Hall

"The Dark River," by Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall. [Little-Brown.]

The authors of "Mutiny on the Bounty" have done high class plot mixing in "The Dark River," with samples of some of the best of the dramatic and melodramatic successes of the past—babies mixed at birth, heroes going blind, miscegenation, relentless fathers. But the authors have flavored their slightly flat mixture with a great knowledge of and love for the South seas, and they have presented it in their distinguished style. The result is not to be missed, if only for the unforgettable picture of natural beauty.

"The Dark River" concerns a girl brought up as the daughter of a native woman, but really the child of English parents, taken at her birth and the mother's death by the native woman who bore her own child and buried it with her English friend. The possible complications are numerous, and the authors use more than a handful of them.

But, whatever lack of reality there is in the plot, the descriptions of nature are so real that the steamship ticket offices may well experience a rush of customers for Tahiti. F. B.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

This is the third article devoted to exploding the myth that "second hand" should play low. I have been pointing out that, in certain standard situations, it is fatal for second hand to do anything but put up a high card. Today's hand is another case in point.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 clubs	Pass	2 spades	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 hearts	Pass
4 hearts	Pass	Pass	Pass

West made what turned out to be an inspired opening lead, namely, the singleton trump. Usually the lead of a singleton trump is highly inadvisable in that it is likely to pick up an honor in partner's hand that might otherwise take a trick on the wrong guess by declarer. In this case, however, it paved the ground for an excellent defense. Declarer felt that he could not hope to establish dummy's spade suit, because there was only one sure outside entry, the heart queen, hence determined to try and ruff losing diamonds. He put up dummy's heart queen and led the singleton diamond. If East had been caught napping at this point the contract would have become ironclad. West would have taken the diamond trick, but then could not have returned a heart, and declarer would have been able to ruff two diamonds in dummy and finally concede only one club and a heart in addition to the diamond.

East, however, was fully aware of his opportunity and, without hesitation, put up the diamond king on dummy's singleton. The reasoning back of this was simple enough. First, it was an odds-on chance that declarer had a five card heart suit [witness that he had bid four hearts instead of four spades or three no trump] and this meant that West had no more trumps. If declarer had the diamond ace East's king would be worthless. But even if declarer did not have that card and East failed to put up the king it would be made worthless because it would not act as an entry. The layout of dummy clearly suggested that successful defense demanded continued trump leads, thus preventing dummy from ruffing diamonds. And on that correct analysis East based his play of the diamond king. When it held he promptly shifted back to trumps, and from that point declarer had to struggle against insuperable odds. He could ruff one diamond in dummy, but this left him with two losers in the suit, and when the club finesse lost and a heart trick had to be conceded, it was all over.

BUSINESS IS BUSINESS

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

BRICKS AND MORTAR

By CALEB

"HOW MUCH are your store buildings worth?" an acquaintance asked an official of our company.

"I don't know," he replied. "I don't happen to be responsible for that phase of the business, and there are so many things of greater importance to me that I haven't taken time to go into the matter.

"Of course, we have to have a building to do business in. It has to be modern, sound, attractive and in the right location. We're all of us interested in that angle of the matter. But having all those things, we still wouldn't have Marshall Field and Company.

"During its lifetime our business has changed locations several times. One store was destroyed in the Chicago fire. Those things aren't important either because the thing that makes this business what it is can't be moved—and can't be destroyed by fire.

"The human element is the thing that makes and always has made this business what it is. Men and women built this store's personality. Loyal, able, experienced, energetic—these men and women are and always have been Marshall Field and Company. It all began with the leadership of a great personality—a personality so strong that it survives and vastly influences the business even today.

"Associates, assistants, our entire personnel have extended and enhanced the power of that one personality. There has been an unending and unbroken chain down the years reaching today—and tomorrow. Without its unique and lasting qualities ours would be just another store.

"Anyone with sufficient money could get a piece of land, construct a building and fill it with merchandise—but no amount of money would make that store another Marshall Field and Company. Our store has a personality as strong and enduring as that of any individual you know. That personality grows not from the building we use, but from the people in it.

"It would be easy to find out exactly the value placed on our buildings. But I don't think I'll inquire. It is far from the most important factor in this business."

WILL OF HEIRESS TO HORLICK MILK FORTUNE IS FILED

Son Is Expected to Start Contest Soon.

Racine, Wis., July 22.—[Special.]—The will of Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley, malted milk heiress, whose death and financial affairs in Canada are the subject of multiple investigations, was filed for probate here today.

Examination of the will showed that during her residence in Toronto her attitude had become critical toward her son and legal heir.

It disposes of an estate, variously estimated at between 3 and 9 million dollars, as previously had been disclosed. The fortune was divided almost equally between Mrs. Sidley's friend, W. Perkins Bull, Toronto attorney in whose home she died July 6, her son, William Horlick Sidley, and charity. The document, drawn last April 8 in Bull's home in Toronto, replaced a will made four years ago which left the bulk of the estate to young Sidley.

The heiress, who was 61 years old when she died, apparently questioned the advisability of trusting her son with objects of sentimental worth which she cherished. One such instance concerned the gold watch of her father, Col. William Horlick, founder of the Horlick Malted Milk company.

She left the watch to her brother, William Horlick Jr., for his lifetime, and directed that upon her brother's death it be given to her son "subject to the approval of my trustees and if they consider that he will appreciate and treasure it."

She willed her $100,000 Racine home, the Oaks, to her son on condition that he live in it, which she was uncertain about. If he doesn't use it for that purpose—and again the decision is left to her trustees—the home is to be deeded to the Salvation Army, Mrs. Sidley instructed.

Expect Early Contest.

It is believed the will contest will be started shortly before a court hearing on the application for probate of the document, which has been set for Sept. 6. Young Sidley has hinted that he may charge his mother was incompetent and under undue influence when the will was drawn in the home of Bull, where she was a guest for more than a year.

It has been pointed out that the will was made only twelve days after Mrs. Sidley's brother, Alexander J. Horlick of Racine, attempted to have her removed as executor of her father's estate. Horlick threatened he would seek to have her placed under a guardian if the court refused his petition, but he didn't carry out the threat.

Signature S'akily Scrawled.

Mrs. Sidley's signature on the final page of the will filed today, and her initials on each of its fourteen pages, were scrawled irregularly as though with a shaking hand. Her name was written on a line dotted with a pencil.

The will stated that Mrs. Sidley's son and Bull each were to receive $250,000 and one-third of the residuary estate. A trust fund of $200,000 was established for William Perkins Bull, son of the Canadian barrister. The Perkins Bull museum was left $25,000.

The petition for probate showed Mrs. Sidley owned $2,000,000 of personal property and $100,000 of real estate in Wisconsin. No estimate was given of the value of her property elsewhere.

It has been reported Mrs. Sidley had large bond holdings in Canada and it was known that much of the property she inherited from her father was in Chicago real estate. She also owned property in Arizona, which was disposed of by her will.

Inquest Opens Tuesday.

TORONTO, July 22.—[Special.]—The inquest into the death of Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley will open at the Toronto city morgue on Tuesday, as originally scheduled, it was announced today. A few days ago it was asserted the hearing would be postponed until Aug. 2.

Chief Coroner Smirle Lawson will hear the testimony of a few witnesses on Tuesday and then will adjourn the inquiry until Aug. 2 when the main investigation will start.

Treasury agents questioned Thomas Henry Bull, son of W. Perkins Bull, counselor of Mrs. Sidley. They were reported interested in his start for England, by ship, from which he was called back to attend the inquest. Authorities were said to be investigating messages between the ship young Bull was on and Belfast, Ireland, Montreal and other points.

YOU'RE AS CRAZY AS A FOX, JUDGE TELLS PAROLEE

When Sam [Shorty] Levine, paroled convict, appeared before Judge John J. Rooney in Felony court yesterday on a charge of stealing a girl's bicycle, he pleaded:

"Judge, I got a WPA job. I needed something to ride to work with. That's why I snatched the bike. I dunno—maybe I'm crazy!"

"Yes," commented Judge Rooney, "crazy as a fox." He then held Levine to the grand jury in bonds of $2,000.

Levine, who has been in and out of the Bridewell since 1917 for various offenses, pushed Anna Botenstein, 15 years old, from her bicycle last Wednesday as she was riding past 4019 Lincoln avenue. Then he rode off. The girl's screams attracted a police squad and Levine was seized several blocks away.

and the other men and they also denied taking it."

The story then jumps to July 11—a day after the Lake county gambling raids.

"Ambrose Beaudin, accompanied by a lawyer, went to T. P. Bahwell, a justice of the peace in Galena," Warner continued. "Beaudin said he wanted a warant issued for me on a charge of grand larceny in connection with the disappearance of the pen and pencil set. He flashed a star and said he was from the board of election commissioners of Waukegan. There is no such body.

"Beaudin signed as complainant and got the warant. Then he went to the home of State's Attorney Eaton there and told Eaton to notify Lake county authorities to arrest me and hold me for Jo Daviess authorities. Eaton told me Friday [yesterday] that he informed Beaudin the warant was no good. The statute of limitations in larceny cases bars prosecution three years after the crime, and the warant was for an offense alleged to have occurred six years ago.

Warns Sherif Not to Act.

"Then Beaudin told Eaton: 'We don't plan to prosecute. Just get Warner to Galena. We'll pay all expenses as soon as your sherif gets to Waukegan. Eaton told Beaudin to leave, called Sherif Jack Stewart of Jo Daviess county, and warned him not to act on the warant."

Now, according to Warner's story, enters a mysterious person who gave the name of James W. Stevens, believed to be fictitious. Stevens appeared Thursday before Justice of the Peace Bahwell in Galena.

"Stevens asked for a new warant for my arrest," Warner said. "This, I believe, was because Beaudin's attempt had failed. Stevens erased Beaudin's name as complainant from Bahwell's docket. Stevens got the new warant from Bahwell and had it dated back to July 1. Then he had Bahwell send a telegram to Sherif Doolittle, stating there was a warant for my arrest and to notify Jo Daviess authorities when I was seized. The telegram stated that the warant was following the message."

Doolittle Spoils Plan.

Warner said he believed the plan was to send hoodlums to Lake county representing themselves as Jo Daviess deputy sherifs, get custody of him, and take him out of the county. But Sherif Doolittle contacted Galena authorities, learned the warant was not valid, and Warner was released.

Warner said last night that he plans to turn over his information to Special Prosecutor Jack today.

ROOSEVELT SHIP CRUISES TOWARD MYSTERY ISLES

ABOARD U. S. S. HOUSTON, En Route to Panama, July 22.—(AP)—Voluminous government reports occupied the attention of President Roosevelt today as he cruised toward the tropical Galapagos Islands, land of nudist exiles and a weird death mystery involving associates of a German baroness.

The Houston was due Sunday afternoon for a week's visit among the volcanic islands, more than 500 miles west of Ecuador, to which they belong.

Mr. Roosevelt and his party planned to visit seven of the islands. The schedule did not call for an expedition to Charles Island, where Dr. Frederick Ritter and his wife, both Germans, migrated years ago to seek a fuller life as nudist self-exiles. Charles Island also was the site of a colony reputedly ruled by Baroness Eloise de Wagner, who strode about in a sun tan and pink silk panties. In 1934 the bodies of two men, one identified as a member of the baroness' colony, were found on Marchena Island, far from Charles.

NEW HOME READY FOR SIX BEARS, IF THEY WILL MOVE

If the six Kodiak bears at Brookfield zoo can be persuaded to move to their new home, they will have a housewarming party Monday afternoon. Their new island, just completed of artificial rockwork, is regarded as the most modern and most completely appointed of ursine apartments.

Just in case the bears continue their present indifference to the bathing pool, sleeping den, maternity ward and ramp in their new quarters, zoo authorities have planned a trap for them. A steel strongbox coated with cod liver oil has been placed in their habitat. An attempt will be made to lure a female bear into the container first, since males follow the lead of females.

Once trapped, the bears will be kept in retiring dens on the new island, to be liberated formally at the dedication ceremony.

BOARD APPROVES 14 APPOINTED TO SCHOOL JOBS

Johnson Takes Over Vocation Units.

Fourteen appointments to positions in the public schools were approved yesterday by the board of education. The appointments were made in the last few weeks by Supt. William H. Johnson. The meeting was the board's last until fall.

Noble Cain.

Appointment of John A. Bartky as president of the Chicago Teachers' college was confirmed. The Teachers' college [formerly the Chicago Normal college] now offers a four years' course and a bachelor of arts degree.

Clarence Lineberger, principal of the Washburne Continuation school, was named a district superintendent of elementary schools to succeed Miss Mary Dunleavy, who recently asked to be transferred because of illness.

Dr. Johnson announced that he has taken over the direction of the Washburne school, the city's first vocational school. In the future, he said, he will direct all the vocational schools, including the new plant to be constructed on the south side.

Noble Cain, choral director and music teacher at the Amundsen High school, was appointed an assistant superintendent in charge of music.

The board also approved the appointment of Miss Ernestine Badt as supervisor of the social and dancing classes to be inaugurated in the high schools this fall. One night each week, Dr. Johnson said, dances will be held in ten of the high schools for pupils and alumni as a means of introducing culture in the school system and in an attempt to reduce juvenile delinquency.

In accordance with plans to increase the staf of the teacher's college from forty to sixty-eight, the board named ten new instructors. These include Lyle Wolf, a former teacher at the college, who was transferred to Hyde Park High school last October.

The others are: Glenn C. Worst, assistant principal at Bowen High school; Claire O'Reilly, administrative assistant at Calumet High school; Ralph Good, administrative assistant at Calumet High school; William Wattenberg, a teacher at Northwestern university; William Richardson, administrative assistant at the Highland Park High school; Ray Faukner, assistant professor at the University of Minnesota; David Nyvall, music supervisor, who will also teach in the college; Beulah Beralzheimer, assistant to the dean at Wilson Junior college, and George Boyle, athletic coach at Calumet High school.

Gift of Auto Told

Los Angeles, Cal., July 22.—[Special.]—During her married life of a little more than a year with Dr. Adolph F. Schiffman, 79 years old, retired dentist, Mrs. Gloria L. Schiffman received only about $40 a month. Before her married life began in 1936 she had for many years received not less than $800 a month.

This was the testimony today of Mrs. Schiffman, who is 46 years old, when she sought to convince Superior Judge Edward R. Brand that she is entitled to $745 per month as separate maintenance from Schiffman.

Schiffman is seeking either a divorce or an annulment on the grounds that a previous marriage of his wife was not legally terminated when she married him. The dentist was called to the witness stand to explain gifts of money to Miss Leona Cowan. He admitted he had given her enough to live on. She testified he had given her an automobile.

N. Y. SOCIETY GIRL CALLS HER QUEST FOR GOLD A FLOP

Reno, Nev., July 22.—(AP)—Nancy Pierson Brooks Macy Brill, 25 years old, once of New York society, returned to Reno with nothing more than wet shorts and a lovely time to show for her first venture into hardrock gold mining.

"It was something of a flop," she said of her expedition with friends yesterday into the nearby Sierra Nevada. She explained she had fallen into the chilly waters of the state fish hatchery trout pond on Galena creek, west of Reno, while she was trying to grab brook trout with her hands. In her party was W. R. [Billy] Wilkerson of Hollywood, a young actor, who accompanied her to Reno. Wilkerson packed a pick.

Mrs. Brill said she had not been able to straighten out her marital tangles. She came to Reno to find out about the validity of her four year old Reno divorce from George Henry Macy, member of the department store family. Legality of the divorce was questioned by William Hunsaker Brill, wealthy Hollywood youth, when he obtained an annulment last year of their one day Arizona marriage.

His Light Handed Humor Fires Anger of a Wife

Her husband amused himself by throwing lighted matches at her while she was in the bath tub. This bit of testimony won a divorce yesterday for Mrs. Stella Pulaskis of 4244 South Ashland avenue from William Pulaskis. She charged cruelty. Attorney Victor Frohlich informed Judge Oscar Nelson that Mrs. Pulaskis had agreed to give her husband $2,000 for his interest in their tavern on condition he would not open another tavern in the neighborhood.

THE CRIME CLOCK

Chicago's Record Since Jan. 1

NUFFIELD KIDNAP PLOTTER IS GIVEN 7 YEARS IN PRISON

BIRMINGHAM, England, July 22.—(AP)—John Bruce Thornton today was sentenced to seven years of penal servitude for a fantastic plot to kidnap Viscount Nuffield, Great Britain's "Henry Ford," and hold him at sea for $500,000 ransom.

The gray haired Thornton, who is 50 years old, was found guilty on all four counts of the indictment. The jury deliberated two hours.

Thornton denied any intention to kidnap the millionaire automobile manufacturer, who is 60. His counsel charged that the main prosecution witness, Maj. Arthur Geoffrey Ramsden, was a "lying, cunning traitor." One of the counts accused Thornton of inciting Ramsden to conspire with him to kidnap Lord Nuffield.

Iowa Village Has Surplus; No Tax Levy This Year

Olds, Ia., July 22.—[Special.]—Because this village of 200 residents has a $1,950 surplus, the town council decided this week no tax levy will be needed to meet next year's budget estimated at less than $600. Olds reduced its expenditures this last year from $683 to $550.

HOAGLAND-ALLUM EMBEZZLERS GET FEDERAL TERMS

Returned from Stateville to Hear Sentences.

Pale and glum after a month in Stateville prison, three officials of Hoagland & Allum Co., Inc., defunct La Salle street investment concern, were returned to Chicago yesterday and arraigned in federal court for sentence. Each was ordered to serve four years for using the mails in a scheme to defraud.

The prisoners are George F. Allum, president of the concern; Olaf Andrew Larsen, vice president, and Henry Engel, secretary-treasurer.

All three are serving sentences in Stateville on state charges. Allum is serving one to five years for conspiracy to defraud and one to ten years for embezzlement. The others received one to five year sentences each for conspiracy to defraud. The federal sentences, imposed by Judge William Holly, will run concurrently with the state sentences.

The investment concern, which was not a member of any registered stock or securities exchange, collapsed last April with losses estimated at $636,000.

THEY'RE FRIENDS FOR YEARS, BUT ONE'S BURGLAR

Alfred Waratler and John Pfeiller have been friends for several years. When Waratler's home at 6231 South Sacramento avenue was burglarized early yesterday, he paid little attention to the report of neighbors that his friend Pfeiller had been seen near the place.

But Detectives Edward Piggot and Ruben Lindahl seized Pfeiller in his home at 5815 South Talman avenue. At the Chicago Lawn station he confessed in the presence of Waratler that he had broken into the house by taking off the front door lock. He had been drinking, he said.

Last night Pfeiller was locked up on a burglary complaint signed by Waratler. The latter's money and a watch were recovered.

RAIN CANCELS FIRST ROUND SCORES IN CHICAGO OPEN

OAK PARK PRO'S RECORD TYING 67 WASHED OUT

Decide Winner Over 54 Holes.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Chicago District Golf association yesterday fought a day long battle with the elements, but it finally conceded the first eighteen holes of the second Chicago Open tournament to the weather man, steadiest match play competitor in the game.

A heavy downpour of rain teamed with ground hugging streaks of lightning to cancel the first eighteen holes of the tournament, with approximately 75 per cent of the field of 389 starters—183 professionals and 206 amateurs—in with their first round scores. The decision of the tournament committee to make the meet, originally scheduled for 72 holes, a 54 hole event, was announced shortly after 6 o'clock.

Play 18 Holes Today.

Today's 18 holes will be played on the basis of the original starting times announced for today. In other words, contestants who played the No. 1 course yesterday will go out over No. 4 today, and those who worked over No. 4 yesterday will tee off on No. 1.

The cancelation of the first round was not without precedent. Little more than a month ago, the 72 hole Kansas City open became a 54 hole event after two spectators had been killed and a number of others injured by lightning during the first round of play.

Several players were unable to finish yesterday. Jimmy Thomson of Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., an eyewitness to the Kansas City tragedy, threw away his steel tipped umbrella on the 13th hole of the No. 1 course and after hitting his drive off the 14th, walked the rest of the way to the clubhouse, ducking lightning en route.

Difficult Going in the Rain.

Others who finished in the rain found the going right annoying. Gene Sarazen of Brookfield Center, Conn., the defending champion, took a 6 on the 18th hole, two over par, for a 74, four over, on the No. 4 course. Ed Dudley of Philadelphia, playing for a par 70, met up with the rain leaving the 15th and he went three over par from there on in.

A light drizzle which gave no portent of the downpour to come fell shortly before noon and it increased about 2 o'clock. Thus it caught most of the stars, the majority of whom teed off late. At 4 o'clock and for two hours thereafter the weather man was holing aces and eagles for himself all over both courses.

Costly to Several.

There were several young men on the premises of Olympia Fields last night who probably were wondering why it is that a golf tournament invariably is a magnet for rain and lightning at a time when they are hitting the ball far and well.

One was Ernest J. Harrison, the lanky young Arkansan, who came up to our town as assistant professional at the Oak Park Country club this spring. Ernest, who is popularly called Dutch, but who is personally not taken with the nickname, went out through the better part of the day and whipped himself up a 67 on the No. 1 course. This tied the course record set by Walter Hagen in the 1927 western open.

Two shots back of Harrison on No. 1 was Will Heinlein, the Indianapolis pro who has distinguished himself in a number of Chicago tournaments. Trailing Will by a shot with a 70 was John Revolta of Evanston, a gent who has swung well enough in his twenty-seven years to have won the P. G. A. and Western titles and made the Ryder cup team. The only others in the field to break No. 1's par of 72 were Al Favelli of Lake Shore and Mike Sapula of Ottawa.

Goggin Leads on No. 4.

Low man on the No. 4 lot, long Olympia's pride, was round faced Willie Goggin of San Bruno, Cal., once runner-up in both the P. G. A. and the Western. Willie batted out a 69, one under par and the only card so posted on the fourth course for the day. Matching par 70 were Ralph Guldahl of Madison, N. J., national and western open champion; Horton Smith of Oak Park, and Johnny Bulla of Woodridge.

Their total was duplicated by Harry Todd of Dallas, Tex., a winner of last year's Texas open with a 286. Todd, tall and 21, led all amateurs in the field, coming in a stroke in front of Wilford Wehrle of Racine, Wis., 1937 western amateur champion.

Among others who saw good cards washed away were Tommy Armour of Medinah and Sonny Rouse of Waukegan, with 71's on No. 4; Leonard Dodson, Springfield, Mo.; Butch Krueger of Beloit, Wis.; Abe Espinosa of Pickwick, and Bill Gordon of Rockford, all with 72's on No. 1., and Sam Snead, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.; Tony Penna of Dayton, O.; Jimmy Foulis of Ruth Lake, and Ky Laffoon of Northmoor, all with 72's on No. 4.

TEAM IN SLUMP, COCHRANE MAY DON PADS AGAIN

Detroit, Mich., July 22.— (AP) — Mickey Cochrane, his Detroit Tigers slumped to sixth place after losing seven straight games, may don his catcher's pads again. While the Tigers rested today as the first game of the series with the Athletics in Philadelphia was postponed because of wet grounds, Cochrane received permission from Walter O. Briggs, club owner, to become an active player if he desires.

Cochrane has not caught a scheduled game since May 25, 1937, when he was struck on the head by a pitched ball in New York and suffered a fractured skull.

The Detroit catching staf is crippled by a similar mishap to Rudy York, who was "beaned" in Washington yesterday. York will be out of the lineup for several days.

The club acted today to discipline Cletus Poffenberger, pitcher who was ordered back to Detroit by Cochrane after a brief appearance on the mound in Washington. Poffenberger was suspended indefinitely.

REDSKINS BOAST POWER IN THEIR BACK FIELD, TOO

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Sammy Baugh will perform in the center court when Washington's Redskins meet the All-American football men in Soldiers' field Aug. 31, but if Washington wins, quite likely the victory will be credited more to the balanced attack of the Washington squad than to the individual performance of professional football's great forward passer.

This is not written to detract from Baugh's prowess. Even if that were the purpose, it would be a most difficult task. Here he threw the pass that whipped Green Bay in last year's All-Star game and here, last December, his passes were all important in the victory over the Chicago Bears that gave Washington its first professional title. Baugh rightfully is entitled to the prestige he has earned as a great passer and a splendid team man.

Triple Threat Team.

It also is true that Baugh's effectiveness as a passer last season was enhanced because Washington also could run the ball and Washington could plunge through the line. Washington, in short, was a triple threat team, and this makes the defensive problems of the All-American coaches, who will be chosen in the national poll, which will follow immediately after the conclusion of the current player elections, more difficult than a year ago. This is the important advantage Washington will have over last year's pro representatives, the Green Bay Packers.

Green Bay had a splendid passer, an all time great, in Arnie Herber. There is no better pass receiver than Don Hutson. But the Packers' running game, measured in yards gained by rushing, did not support Herber as it is presumed Washington can support Baugh. Last year's All-American defense was planned to check passes first, since there was no excessive worry over the Packer line attack between the defensive tackle positions.

Consider the Back Field.

Consider the all-around strength of the Washington back field. How Washington will lineup for the kickoff is problematical. Some of last year's stars, notably Cliff Battles, who has signed to coach Columbia university's back field this year, may not be available when Coach Ray Flaherty starts the Redskins to work in

LEE, DEAN TO FACE GIANTS IN DOUBLE-HEADER

Wet Weather Postpones Scheduled Game.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs' pennant march which, according to unreliable reports was supposed to get under way April 19 last and still hasn't started, was delayed again yesterday. This time the weather man intervened, thus causing a washout of the scheduled opener with the champion Giants and necessitating a double-header this afternoon between a team that can hit for runs and one that can't hit, but has a new manager.

As soon as the postponement was decided upon, Manager Gabby Hartnett, wearing his new burden with a somewhat worried dignity, announced that he would double up today with Bill Lee followed by the great Diz Dean. With the double-header out of the way Gabby will have to find a pitcher for tomorrow's final with the Giants. Then he'll get a break. The Cubs go on the road for two weeks, a period in which Gabby can adjust his plans without annoyance from front office conferences and the many side show features which keep his men from becoming baseball minded at home.

May Ask for Help.

If Gabby really is worried it is easily explained. He knows what Charley Grimm, his predecessor, had to contend with. Gabby, like Grimm, knows the limitations of the team. This is more of a mental hazard for Gabby than it was for the summarily dismissed Grimm. The latter didn't have to play. But Gabby must play and he owns the bat that will have to assist if the team wins the pennant its owner thinks can be won with the material available.

Hartnett, as soon as he squares off in his new job, probably will ask for help. Grimm asked for the same help without success after his spring crop, which was no good to start with, had melted down to a cast off American league infielder and a rookie outfielder.

Terry Gets Players.

What did Bill Terry, the Giant manager, do recently when he was suddenly confronted by a couple of problems? He had to have a second baseman. Being boss in fact as well as in name, he shopped around and closed a deal with Cincinnati for Alex Kampouris. The latter isn't a whirlwind, but he helped. Then Terry wanted a long hitting outfielder. He purchased Bob Seeds without questioning the price and thought he drew a bargain. Grimm wanted Seeds, but didn't get him because the Cubs' organization deliberated too long.

If Dean gets by successfully today in a tight game and nothing happens to the bum arm for which $185,000 was paid, it probably will mean that he'll be able to start thereafter with nothing more than the usual three days of rest.

Charlie Grimm to Go on Radio as a Sports Announcer

Charlie Grimm, deposed Wednesday as manager of the Cubs, will return to Chicago as a radio commentator on baseball. Grimm agreed in a telephone conference from his home in Normany, Mo., yesterday to begin his duties on station WBBM of the Columbia broadcasting system starting tomorrow. His first job will be describing the Cub-Giant game.

Grimm, as manager of the Cubs, received an annual salary estimated at $20,000. H. Leslie Atlass, a vice president of the broadcasting system, declined to reveal what salary Grimm would receive, but declared it "would be substantial."

Atlas announced that Grimm would appear in a special 30 minute broadcast tomorrow night to tell the truth about reports of front office interference in the management of the Cubs and give the reasons back of his dismissal as manager.

Grimm has had no experience in broadcasting, but possesses unusual talent as an entertainer. He has an excellent baritone voice.

Tony Galento Is Stricken by Pneumonia

Orange, N. J., July 22.—[Special.]—Tony Galento, No. 1 heavyweight challenger, lay in an oxygen tent in Orange Memorial hospital tonight waging a battle for life following a sudden attack of pneumonia early today. His bout with John Henry Lewis, scheduled for Philadelphia on Tuesday night, has been indefinitly postponed.

Galento suffered chills after completing his training session at Mme. Bey's, Summit, N. J., camp yesterday afternoon. He returned to his home in Orange. His wife became alarmed this morning and called in the family physician, Dr. Joseph Higi. Following an examination, Dr. Higi advised that Galento be taken to the hospital for further examination.

Temperature Is 104.4.

Meantime, Galento's manager, Joe Jacobs, had been notified and Jacobs in turn notified Promoter Muggsy Taylor of Philadelphia, Jules Aronson, Philadelphia boxing commissioner and the commission's physician, Dr. Jacobs.

Arriving at the hospital shortly after 7 p. m., Galento was placed in an oxygen tent. His temperature was 104.4 and his pulse 120. Dr. Higi later called in Dr. Dean Marquis of the New York Post Graduate hospital staf for consultation.

Weakened by Training.

Galento, a barrel-chested clouter of the old time barroom type, went into serious training for the first time in his career a few weeks ago. A bartender and saloon owner, he drew much attention with his bellicose statements and large capacity for downing steins of beer. When he started his training he weighed 240 pounds.

After undergoing the strenuous workouts, Two-Ton, as he is known in the ring, began to lose weight at an alarming rate. He dropped to approximately 220 pounds and it is believed this weakened condition may have made him suspectible to pneumonia.

†Maxwell Howard entry.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

It's Classic day at Arlington Park—with eight thoroughbred horses and many thousands of people ready to make the occasion fulfill its traditions of color and excitement.

Quite indifferent to what's in store for them this afternoon, the eight horses retired serenely to their stables last night, but the thousands of men and women who will watch the $30,000 added stake race debated their betting prospects long after the thoroughbreds were asleep.

Stagehand and Menow were the two names which came up most frequently in discussions of this event, which annually attracts the greatest 3 year olds in midsummer training. And there was good reason for harping on these two. Between them they have beaten Seabiscuit and War Admiral, two of the most highly touted handicap stars of recent seasons.

Show Their Speed.

Stagehand outran Seabiscuit at Santa Anita last winter and Menow recently defeated War Admiral in the $50,000 Massachusetts handicap at Suffolk Downs.

In addition to these two star performers, the overnight field included Stagehand's stablemate, The Chief, Cravat, Bull Lea, Nedayr, Fairflax, and Blind Eagle. It is generally believed that if the track is muddy at post time there will be two or three withdrawals.

Earl Sande, former jocky who now trains Maxwell Howard's horses, was particularly worried by the turn in weather conditions yesterday. Both of his charges, Stagehand and The Chief, are at their best on a fast track. Stagehand has a definite aversion to heavy going and The Chief is only a fair mudder.

Watch Weather Condition.

Up until yesterday's downpour it seemed certain that the Howard entry would go to the post as the favorite, possibly at 2 to 1 odds. The storm strengthened the backing for Hal Price Headley's Menow, which is known to be an excellent mud runner. It now seems that weather conditions at post time will determine the favorite in the mile and a quarter run.

Menow's eight length victory over a field which included War Admiral brought the first wave of Classic support for him. Then he worked a mile and a quarter in 2:04 1-5 a few days ago at Saratoga—and that drew more backing. Now comes the turn from dry to wet weather to give his followers new assurance.

And there's another thing to cheer up Menow's backers. He will be ridden by Nicky Wall. This jocky piloted Menow to his victory over War Admiral and also rode Stagehand to his victory over Seabiscuit.

Some Notable Absentees.

Stagehand, which leads all horses in money earnings for the present season, would be recognized in many quarters as the best of the 3 year olds if he should win today. There are several notable absentees from today's field — Lawrin, Kentucky Derby winner; Dauber, Preakness winner, and Pasteurized, Belmont Stakes winner—but all of these are out because of injuries in training. If Menow should win he would earn a rating very near the top.

Cravat's chief claim to consideration is the fact that he ran second to Dauber in the Preakness and third to Pasteurized in the Belmont stakes.

There is always the possibility that Warren Wright's Bull Lea may run back to the early season form he showed in beating Menow twice at Keeneland.

Nedayr Likes Mud.

Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Nedayr will profit by the change in weather, for he is a good mudder.

Frank Seremba's Fairflax and Mrs. Emil Denemark's Blind Eagle lost most of their backing when they were beaten by a selling plater, Tunica, in a test race Tuesday. As a mitigating circumstance, however, it was pointed out that the time for that race was a mile in 1:36 4-5.

If eight go to the post the $30,000 added Classic will gross $35,025, the winner netting $27,500, second horse $4,000, third $2,000, and fourth $1,000.

Arlington Park officials are prepared to handle an overflow crowd. Arrangements have been made to throw open the infield if necessary. Additional parking space has been provided.

47 YACHTS WILL LEAVE TODAY IN MACKINAC RACE

Revenge and Rubaiyat to Defend Titles.

Forty-seven sailing yachts entered in the Chicago Yacht club's 31st annual Chicago to Mackinac Island race will start this afternoon from Belmont harbor. More than 330 yachtsmen and two yachtswomen will be aboard the fleet, to trim sheets, steer, hoist canvas and drop it, cook when it is not too rough, and eat when they have the time during the next few days.

Defenders in both the racing and cruising divisions, Revenge and Rubaiyat, respectively, are to compete. Each will face a larger division and faster competition than last year.

Florida Schooner Entered.

Aloha, 40 foot schooner owned and sailed by C. R. Parks and which recently arrived from St. Petersburg, Fla., will compete in the race. It won the St. Petersburg-Havana ocean race this spring in class B. Royono, J. B. Ford's new 51 foot yawl from the Grosse Pointe Yacht club, will represent Detroit.

Betty Bro, Commodore Milton Friend's flagship of the Columbia Yacht club, is expected to prove a threat in the cruising division. Only 36 feet over all and with 900 square feet of working canvas, the yacht has won all six races it has entered so far this year.

Yachtsmen from Seven States.

Among the crews are yachtsmen from Ohio, New York, Minnesota, and Kansas. This is in addition to those manning the yachts which will represent Wisconsin, Michigan, and Indiana ports. The majority of yachts and crews will be Chicagoans, however.

Average finishing time for the leading yachts in the Mackinac race is the Tuesday following the start. Shortest time on record is 31 hours 14 minutes and 30 seconds, and the longest elapsed time three weeks.

TIME PLEASE IS CLOSE WINNER IN FUTURITY TRIAL

Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' fleet colt, Time Please, a candidate for the $50,000 Futurity next Saturday, finally scored a victory yesterday at Arlington Park. Time Please, making his third start, beat Calumet Farm's Calumet Red, also a Futurity colt, by a head in the first race. Time Please ran the 5½ furlongs over a muddy track in the fair time of 1:07.

The Chicago owner's good 3 year old Reigh Count-Annie Gowdy filly earned first money of the $1,200 purse in a length and a half decision over Mrs. Emil Denemark's Sunny Shore, with Morris Vehon's Opera Star running third.

Lester Balaski, contract rider for Mrs. Hertz, rode Annie Reigh to the victory, coming from second place by four lengths to the comfortable lead at the finish.

Because of the muddy condition of the track, Annie Reigh's time was 1:25 4-5.

Mrs. Bob McGarvey, wife of the Milky Way farm trainer, believed in the chances of Time Please. She hooked him up with every horse in the second race in the daily double. After Time Please won Mrs. McGarvey was assured of the double price. When Valdina farm's Sortie's Son won the second she collected $90.80.

Buses will be provided to transport patrons parking their cars in the auxiliary space along the back stretch across the infield to the grand stand today. The auxiliary parking section can accommodate 10,000 motor cars.

Santa Barbara, Cal., July 22.—(AP)—Katherine Rawls Thompson, swimming for the Miami Beach, Fla., Bath club, today broke two world records as she won the 300 meter medley and one mile free style championships on the opening day's program of the National A. A. U. women's swimming meet.

The slim Florida star, recently married, scored decisive triumphs in both events, winning the medley race by 25 feet in 4 minutes 33.1 seconds, 2.5 seconds under the world mark she set five years ago, and the mile by 75 yards in 23:47.4, 19.8 seconds better than the record established in 1936 by Lenore Kight Wingard.

Ontario Lakes GiveBass,Pike, Trout, Muskies

BY BOB BECKER.

LAKE JOBAMMAGEESHIG, Ont., July 22.—Mr. Fisherman, if what you want is wilderness lakes and portage trails plus brook trout and lake trout, with canoe trips, northern pike and some bass and muskies thrown in for good measure, this country northeast of the Soo is going to give you a real thrill. Up here in rugged, rocky highlands are hundreds of lakes and streams tucked away in the wilds and in nearly every stretch of water there is some kind of fishing.

After hiking over portage trails to just a few of the many fishing spots among the rocky hills we find that you may have not one but a whole chain of lakes to yourself for a week or a day, because this country is sparsely settled and not many fishermen are tossing lures at the speckled and lake trout which abound.

Thanks to the Laurentian rock formation which rises above Lake Huron the lakes are set against beautiful scenic backgrounds. And most of them are so clear that you can see a fish strike a lure.

The Missisagi river, Lake Jobammageeshig, Lake Waboming or Clear lake, Skirl lake [a dandy for big brook trout], the Beaver chain of lakes, and many other lakes in the section which we are fishing are almost due north of the little town of Thessalon, Ont. We came into this region through Sault Ste. Marie, which is the gateway to the vacationland in the highlands. After leaving the Soo you continue east to Thessalon, then north on a gravel road to the Missisagi forest and game preserve.

After you leave this scenic automobile road it's a case of pack and portage into the back country to fish wilderness lakes where you won't see anybody during the time you fool the fish. But the rangers know you are on the job because they check you through a big gate across the highway and you are registered when you head north on the automobile road.

PIRATES DEFEAT BEES, 4 TO 3, AND LENGTHEN LEAD

Blanton Yields 7 Hits, Wins 6th Straight.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 22.—(AP)—Vince Di Maggio's home run with Max West on base in the ninth inning wasn't enough to win a ball game today, and the Pirates took the first game of the series from Boston's Bees, 4 to 3. The victory lengthened Pittsburgh's league lead.

Cy Blanton yielded seven hits in taking his sixth straight victory, and was given timely support afield, including two lightning double plays and two sensational stops by Lee Handley at third. Score:

SABIN REACHES SEMI-FINALS OF EASTERN TENNIS

New York, July 22.—(AP)—Wayne Sabin of Portland, Ore., today accomplished what eight other seeded players in the eastern clay court tennis tournament failed to do. He reached the semi-final round. Sabin defeated William Lurie of Brooklyn, 6-3, 1-6, 7-5, in his quarter final match some two hours after Robert Kamrath of Austin, Tex., No. 7 on the list and last of the other favorites, had bowed out in the same round.

Before meeting Lurie, Sabin beat Don Leavens of Milwaukee, 6-2, 7-5, showing for the first time in the tourney, which has dodged indoors and out for two rainy days, the form that caused him to be seeded first. Lurie won his quarter final bracket by beating Pete Walthall of San Antonio, Tex., 6-4, 8-10, 6-2.

Kamrath, after whipping Ronald Lubin of Los Angeles, 6-4, 6-3, lost to Joe Fishbach of Brooklyn, 6-4, 6-4. Fishbach won over Marvin Kantrowitz of New York, 8-10, 6-4, 0-1 and default to reach the round of eight. Kantrowitz retired after turning an ankle.

Redskins Have Power in That Back Field, Too

Georgetown. And if Washington loses Battles, although there are notable substitutes available, in particular Max Krause, the loss will help bring the Redskins to parity with the All-Americans. Baugh and Battles formed an almost perfect combination.

But Washington still has Ernie Pinckert, Ed Justice, and Don Irwin, running, plunging backs who also are most capable on defense. And in Riley Smith, Washington has a forward passing field general who also is a fine fieldgoal kicker. All of which brings up the fundamental question of line play. Even Battles and Baugh, great in their own rights, must pay tribute to a forward line, anchored by big Turk Edwards, that opened up the holes for them and which effectively checked enemy line assault.

Jim Barber paired with Edwards at the tackle posts. Karcher and Olsson were the regular guards, with Michaels an admirable substitute. The ends, Malone and Millner, caught nearly everything Baugh threw, and Justice supplemented them. And, if you're picking defensive ends, you can start with Millner.

Great Team Spirit.

More important than any record of ability of individuals is Washington's spirit. This intangible factor must be considered at greater length. Washington probably will enter this fifth annual battle between the collegians and the professional champions with more enthusiasm and verve than did the Bears, Detroit Lions, or Green Bay.

The Redskins are young, vigorous, and they proved last season they can rise to the immediate occasion. Washington had to whip the Giants [a tie wouldn't have helped them] to take the eastern championship. Washington defeated those Giants by a record score, 49 to 14. And Washington came from behind twice to tie the Bears in the league championship game and then they added the touchdown that won the title, 28 to 21.

SOCIAL SCIENCE KEY TO COURSES AT MORNINGSIDE

Helps Sioux City, Ia., in Meeting Problems.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Sioux City, Ia., July 22.—[Special.]—In adopting itself to meet the needs of its community and region, in uniting vocational and liberal arts courses into a general educational program, in intensive efforts to guide the individual student into a satisfactory adjustment with life, Morningside has taken a leading place among middle western colleges.

While retaining its independence as a private institution under a board elected by the Northwest Iowa conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, from which it draws $10,000 a year, Morningside depends for its chief support, outside of student fees, on Sioux City citizens, who were instrumental in establishing the college here in 1894 and who have contributed large sums yearly to its maintenance. This year that amount was $30,000.

Stresses Social Welfare.

As in other Methodist inspired institutions, social welfare is a strongly stressed part of the college influence, both in a practical and academic manner. Various social projects, such as a study of the culture of Sioux City youth, the social status of the Negro in this city, the sociology of the Missouri river "islanders," influence of government relief on poverty and pauperism, adult education in extension work, civic concerts and leadership in many cultural ways, unite the city and the college in an unusual sort of partnership. The definite aim of the college is to adjust itself to the changing needs of the territory, leading its graduates into places of social responsibility and retaining its essential character as a Christian liberal arts college.

There are 547 students in the college and 192 in the conservatory of music. Forty-two per cent of the students comes from Sioux City and 17 per cent from beyond the state. The students come from middle class homes, chiefly those on the farm and from Methodist families in the 29 counties of the conference, where the church membership is 46,364. Ministers and laborers are represented equally in the parentage classification.

Guide Toward Vocations.

The curriculum is organized into junior and senior college, with special education emphasized beyond the sophomore year. Every effort is made through scientific testing, advising, and orientation courses, to guide the student into his or her proper vocation.

Professional opportunities are offered in teaching, music, business, engineering, medicine, nursing, dentistry, law, and social service and suggestions in many other lines. A close connection is maintained with the city schools, three of which adjoin the campus as a sort of laboratory. The social agencies of the city coöperate in social work, the state university and business institutions in professional work and placement.

'This synthesis of cultural and vocational offerings is a direct resultant of the endeavor of the college to meet as far as possible the educational needs of this constituency. General education is synonomous with liberal or cultural education as we view it. There are others who seem to hold culture and vocational education far apart. To us this is unreal and undesirable. To educate merely for leisure time is to make of college a country club or recreation center.

Affects Entire Life.

"As a matter of fact the college educates persons; and whatever affects a personality influences all of his activities whether vocational or avocational. General education seeks to produce a liberal culture which can not be segregated, but is diffused through the entire life of the individual in every social relationship. From this standpoint Morningside college has developed a program of general education which unites culture and vocational values in such a way that no line of demarcation can be drawn."

The president of Morningside is Dr. Earl Alan Roadman. The faculty consists of 42 men and women, 28 in liberal arts and 14 in music. Of these, twenty have master's degrees and eight doctor's degrees. The campus consists of 23 acres in the suburban heights commanding a view across the Missouri river and the Nebraska hills. The dormitory grounds in addition cover two city blocks.

The college has developed a choir for unaccompanied choral singing, a vesper choir, a festival chorus which presents Handel's "Messiah" each year, a band, and symphony orchestra. The Sioux City Symphony orchestra is sponsored jointly by the college and the Civic Music association.

[Note: This is the 29th of a series of articles on liberal arts colleges of the middle west. Another will appear soon.]

CITY GETS $114,545 FOR WRIGHTWOOD SUBWAY PROJECT

D. R. Kennicott, regional director of the Public Works administration, yesterday announced approval from Washington of a $114,545 grant to the city for construction of a subway grade separation under the Milwaukee railroad tracks at Wrightwood avenue. The remainder of the cost—$140,000—will be paid from the city's share of the state gasoline tax. The subway will be 66 feet long and approaches from both sides will extend 1,011 feet. Work is expected to begin in eight weeks.

POLISH AIRLINER CRASHES; 14 ABOARD KILLED

BUCHAREST, July 22.—(AP)—Fourteen persons were killed today when a Polish airliner crashed near the Polish-Rumanian border. The victims included Jonez Fernik, Rumanian pilot, who had spent several years in the United States, and an unidentified Japanese captain. The plane, carrying ten passengers and a crew of four, was on its regular run between Warsaw and Bucharest.

Ends 50 Years in Transit Service, Then Falls Dead

New York, July 22.—[Special.]—Third Avenue Elevated employés crowded round Theodore Keller, 71 years old, today after he had finished his trip at city hall and cleared his train. They congratulated the trainman on rounding out his fiftieth year of service with the company. The excitement proved to much for Keller, who died of a heart attack.

SENATOR ADAMS, COURT PACKING FOE, IS FAVORED

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 22.—(AP)—U. S. Senator Alva B. Adams was designated for renomination at the Democratic primaries in September but his opponent, Justice Benjamin C. Hilliard, failed to get a place on the ballot at the state Democratic assembly today.

The assembly vote was: Adams, 1,285; Hilliard, 218. Hilliard fell 84 votes short of the 302 necessary for designation.

[Senator Adams opposed the Roosevelt Supreme court packing bill as well as the government reorganization measure. The senator had hoped for a presidential blessing because of his leadership in engineering the 5-1-2 billion dollar pump priming bill through the senate. But when President Roosevelt spoke in Pueblo, Col., the senator's home city, he did not mention his name although Adams was on the train platform when the President spoke. Neither did the President mention Hilliard, the senator's opponent.]

NO FEMALES FOR CORRIGAN, BUT O! THOSE COLLEENS

DUBLIN, July 22.—(AP)—"No feminine entanglements," Douglas G. Corrigan announced confidentially today—but a couple of hours later the ocean flyer was almost gasping for breath as hero-worshipping Irish colleens closed in on him in a gay autograph hunt.

The California mechanic, who is 31 years old, tried to be just another tourist when he set out, after a quiet morning at the American legation, to get measured for a pair of bright checked trousers. But several pairs of feminine eyes had seen him enter the shop and when he emerged a crowd of girls had gathered with autograph books.

Corrigan, who has said he was unable to tell east from west when he flew to Ireland from New York this week, wrote his name for half an hour, grinning broadly under the strain.

MOVE TO SEND 'AID TO PITCAIRN ISLAND COLONY

New York, July 22.—[Special.]—The British government today took initial steps to investigate the plight of the sick and hungry inhabitants of lonely Pitcairn Island, and Mrs. Dorothy D. Hall, veteran Queens radio amateur who heard their plea for help, tomorrow morning will notify the islanders.

The British consul general reported today that a digest of Mrs. Hall's account of the condition of the islanders, who told her they were suddenly cut off from the world when a false rumor of a typhoid epidemic was spread, was radioed to "his excellency, the high commissioner of the western Pacific, at Suva, Fiji." Fiji is the nearest British territory and Pitcairn is under the government of the high commissioner there.

Mrs. Hall again spoke at 4 a. m. today to Richard Edward Christian, ruler of the island in the south Pacific. Mr. Christian is a direct descendant of Fletcher Christian, leader of the mutineers against Capt. William Bligh of the Bounty, who settled on Pitcairn two centuries ago.

Believe Measles Hit Pitcairn.

DUNEDIN, New Zealand, July 22.—(AP)—The 215 descendants of the mutineers from the British ship Bounty seemed to be having some trouble today on Pitcairn, their lonely Pacific island. Radio reports received here indicated no distress. But a mild epidemic—believed to be measles—was reported and there was an apparent shortage of medical supplies and gasoline.

Port Washington, N. Y., July 22.—[Special.]—International rivalry for domination of the Atlantic air lanes was illustrated today when the German catapult flying boat Nordmeer alighted on the bay here after a nonstop flight from the Azores.

Its 2,397 mile trip was the second trans-Atlantic flight in two days. England's pickaback seaplane Mercury arrived yesterday on a survey flight from Foynes, Ireland.

As the two planes lay at anchor an American flying boat, its cabin crowded with passengers, took off for Bermuda. Pan-American Airways, operator of the Bermuda ship, completed its Atlantic survey flights last year and now is awaiting delivery of equipment for a regular express service.

The fourth nation in the race for trans-oceanic supremacy is France, who has scheduled for next month the first of a series of north Atlantic survey flights.

JUDGE CITES 4 FOR SOLICITING LAW BUSINESS

Attorney Joseph R. Orrico, 10 North Clark street, and three other persons accused of soliciting law business in the Renters' court were ordered yesterday by Judge Leon Edelman to show cause why they should not be held in contempt of court. Those cited with Orrico were Miss A. L. Sykes, Thomas Muscato, and S. A. Blackwell.

The contempt action was requested by Attorneys Philip R. Davis and Bernard McDevitt Jr., representing the Chicago Bar association. The bar attorneys said a petty racket was being operated in the court by persons soliciting fees from defendants for services not performed.

Judge Edelman set a hearing for next Wednesday, when the case of Gee L. Harris, who was arrested Tuesday for soliciting fees in the court, also will be heard.

WESTERN RAILS DECIDE AGAINST BOOST IN FARES

Decline to Follow Eastern Lines.

The western railroads yesterday decided that they will not go along with the eastern railroads in increasing fares in passenger coaches.

Harry G. Taylor calls low fare beneficial.

At their regular monthly meeting, held in the Union Station building yesterday, the presidents of the western railroads had on their docket "the question of what action might be desirable in the territory served by the western lines in view of the increases put into effect by the eastern roads."

Regard Situation Different.

The western presidents took the view that they have a different set of conditions than do the eastern lines. There is greater congestion on the highways in the east than in the west. It was held likely that the percentage of automobiles probably is larger per 100 persons in the west than it is in the east.

Because these factors might result in losing more business to their automobile competitors, the presidents decided that "it would be inadvisable at this time to make any upward adjustment in passenger fares, although realizing that the fares put into effect by the eastern roads would probably benefit them."

Lower Fares Beneficial.

Harry G. Taylor, chairman of the western presidents, said the present low fares of the roads, which were put into effect on Dec. 1, 1933, have been beneficial.

"As soon as the reduced fares were established," Taylor said, "there was a marked upward trend in passenger trafic and revenues. Although the showing so far in 1938 is not so good as it was in 1937, it is believed that the business decline has been largely the result of economic conditions and that there will be an increase when business gains."

JUNE AIR TRAVEL DIPS 2.1 PER CENT UNDER YEAR AGO

Passenger travel on principal air lines of the United States in June was 2.1 per cent less than in June, 1937, the Air Transport Association of America reported yesterday. June was the first month this year that air travel was below the same month last year. Travel for the first half of this year was 19.2 per cent ahead of the corresponding period a year ago.

A total of 40,283,808 revenue passenger miles was flown in June by the sixteen air lines reporting to the association. The same lines flew 42,-100,050 passenger miles in May, and 41,184,848 passenger miles in June, 1937. The decline from May to June this year was 4.3 per cent.

During the first half of this year the sixteen air lines flew 203,144,843 revenue passenger miles, compared with 174,598,283 revenue passenger miles in the first six months of 1937.

REA WILL PUSH POWER PROGRAM IN 13 STATES

Washington, D. C., July 22.—(AP)—Rural electrification administration officials said today they planned to send representatives into 13 states to encourage formation of farmer organizations for construction of electric power distribution lines.

They made this known after John M. Carmody, REA administrator, had advised President Roosevelt aboard the U.S.S. Houston that he had perfected plans to lend $140,000,000 to such farm groups this year.

Carmody asked the last congress for $40,000,000. Instead it gave him $140,000,000 and now he hopes to put it all to work before the fiscal year ends next June 30. Officials reported $13,000,000 had been allocated for power distribution since July 1 and said they expected to put out another $5,000,000 next week.

Week's New Financing Lowest Since Early June

New York, July 22.—(AP)—New financing this week amounted to $22,204,954, against $43,234,000 the week before and $70,017,950 in the corresponding week last year, Poor's Publishing company reported today. With the exception of the week ended June 16, the week just ended was the smallest since late in May. A comparative table showed:

New York, July 22.—(AP)—The amount of United States Steel corporation common stock held in foreign countries on June 30 was 842,862 shares, or 9.6 per cent of the total issue, the corporation reported today. This compared with 849,816 shares, or 9.7 per cent of the total on May 31.

Say Mediator May Be Called in Rail Dispute

The possibility that a federal mediator will soon take a hand in the railroad wage dispute was seen yesterday. H. A. Enochs, chairman of the carriers' joint conference committee, on coming out of a meeting with the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen at the Stevens hotel, said he would not be surprised if a federal mediator is called into the dispute within ten days.

At yesterday's meeting both sides continued their bold front in the arguments going on over the railroads' proposal to cut the wages of about 914,000 employés 15 per cent.

Roads Insist on Cut.

Enochs and the representatives of the carriers were positive in saying that the roads would not withdraw their demand for the 15 per cent reduction. A. F. Whitney, president of the trainmen, was equally positive in his declaration that the brakemen and switchmen he represents will not take a cut.

Whitney and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen are carrying on their arguments with the railroads alone. The Railway Labor Executives association, of which George M. Harrison is the head, represents the greater part of railroad labor in the dispute.

Enochs declared that in their present desperate financial plight many of the carriers cannot even borrow the price of a bucket of paint. He said that the interstate commerce commission report which was incorporated in President Roosevelt's message to congress asking help for the railroads puts the back maintenance of the roads at $500,000,000—that is $500,000,000 which the roads already should have spent in keeping their property in good condition.

Assails Citing of Rutland.

Whitney, who yesterday continued to present evidence in support of his contention that wages should not be cut, attacked Enochs for presenting the case of the bankrupt Rutland railroad as an example of the desperate situation of the roads. He said that the Rutland represented less than 100th of 1 per cent in mileage and capitalization of the railroad picture in this country.

The meeting with the Whitney group will be resumed at 10 a. m. Tuesday at the Stevens hotel. At 10 a. m. on Monday negotiations will be continued with the Railway Labor Executives association. Harrison is expected to start his arguments against the wage cut at the Monday session.

BROKER, DEALER SEGREGATION IS HIT BY TRADERS

New York, July 22.—[Special.]—Segregation of brokers and dealers, an idea seemingly dead for more than a year, has been brought to life by William O. Douglas, chairman of the Securities and Exchange commission. The move was announced by the New York Stock exchange in matter of fact manner following the latest session of the "round table," initiated some time ago by Douglas and William McC. Martin Jr., exchange president.

Critics say that, if the SEC plan goes through, specialists will be forbidden to act as dealers. They may not trade for their own account or for firm accounts. Their primary function of stabilizing prices and providing continuity of transactions will be eliminated.

Without acting as dealers, without trading for their own account, they say, specialists cannot make enough money at their jobs to keep going. At least 300 of the 350 specialists would give up their books and possibly become floor traders. While this change might possibly promote a spell of hysterical market activity, they added, it would do nothing to make the exchange a more stable market.

Four Cargo Ships Awarded by Maritime Commission

Washington, D. C., July 22.—[Special.]—The maritime commission today announced an award to the Bethlehem Shipbuilding corporation, Quincy, Mass., for the construction of four cargo vessels at an approximate cost of $2,559,000 each for the American Export Lines. They will be used in the Mediterranean and Black sea service.

JUNE ARMS EXPORTS HIGH DESPITE HULL'S POLICY STATEMENT

Washington, D. C., July 22.—[Special.]—The recent appeal of Secretary of State Cordell Hull for American manufacturers of munitions to refrain from selling bombing planes to belligerents will not reduce shipments for several months.

This was disclosed today with publication by the state department of the monthly report of export licenses for arms, ammunition, and implements of war during June. The report showed no slackening in the granting of airplane export licenses to Japan and China. Presumably they will continue to receive them for a considerable time.

The explanation was made that the licenses did not reflect Secretary Hull's appeal of June 11 to the manufacturers because they covered contracts previously entered into.

Arms licenses valued at $4,060,073, covering mostly military airplanes, were issued to The Netherlands East Indies in June. Licenses issued for exports to all countries totaled $7,761,-289.

Japan and China continued prime customers. Licenses for shipments to Japan totaled $1,710,049; to China, $1,236,020. Actual shipments to Japan of war supplies in June totaled $1,379,128. Actual shipments to China were valued at $2,221,030.

Last Week's Freight Trafic High for Year

A new 1938 high was reached in railroad freight trafic in the week ended July 16, the Association of American Railroads announced yesterday. Loadings rose sharply to 602,-300 cars, an increase of 101,287 cars, or 20.2 per cent, over the preceding week.

The more than seasonal increase stepped the Dow-Jones freight index up to 72.2 from 68.7 for the week ended July 9. This is the highest point the index has touched since the week of April 16. Compared with the corresponding period a year ago, trafic for the week ended July 16 showed a decline of only 21.4 per cent, the smallest drop since the week of Feb. 12, the association said.

Holiday Decline Greater.

For the week ended July 9, which included the July 4 holiday, the decline from a year ago amounted to 26.2 per cent.

Chief contributors to the latest week's boom in freight trafic were the miscellaneous freight, coal, and less than car lot merchandise classifications.

Grain and live stock were the only classes of commodities to be shipped in greater quantities during the week ended July 16 than in the corresponding period last year.

Loadings Compared.

	Wk. ended July 16.	Change from Prev. wk.	Change from Yr. ago.
Miscellaneous	234,977	+39,018	−71,618
Mdse, l c l	143,335	+22,103	−17,812
Coal	89,749	+19,204	−15,736
Grain	63,022	+ 6,688	+14,307
Live stock	12,527	+ 2,631	+ 2,078
Ore	24,312	+ 4,039	−55,470
Coke	4,192	+ 359	− 6,121

For the first twenty-eight weeks of this year, the association said, total freight loadings amounted to 5,151,-902 cars, or 25.1 per cent below the same period of 1937. The loadings were 2,802,692 cars, or 15.5 per cent, behind 1936, but were running 5.4 per cent above 1933 and 2 per cent above 1932.

PLAN NEW STOCK EXCHANGE IN NEW YORK CITY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 22.—[Special.]—Plans for the opening of a new stock market here to be called the Manhattan Securities exchange have been completed, it was learned today by the Chicago Tribune Press Service.

The new market is being sponsored by the New York Produce exchange, but will operate as a separate entity. It would provide listing privileges for many issues not listed on the New York Stock and Curb exchanges.

A subcommittee of members of the New York Stock exchange has approved the proposed by-laws and operating contract of the new market and recommended its incorporation to the board of managers of the Produce exchange.

Application for a license must be made to the SEC. It will mark the first formal application for a securities market license, as the SEC automatically granted licenses to all existing exchanges.

SUE EDISON FIRM OVER PERSONAL PROPERTY TAXES

The state's attorney's office yesterday filed two suits in the Circuit court seeking to collect a total of $3,030,052 from the Commonwealth Edison company for alleged failure to pay certain 1935 and 1936 personal property taxes. The suits containing sixteen counts each, allege the corporation failed to pay $1,552,793 in 1935 and $1,477,258 in 1936.

Assistant State's Attorney William P. Kearney said big corporations frequently fail to pay assessed amounts because they believe certain properties are not classed under personal property.

A. J. BROWNING CHOSEN HEAD OF UNITED WALL PAPER FACTORIES, INC.

Albert J. Browning, former group merchandise manager of Montgomery Ward & Co., yesterday was elected president of the United Wall Paper Factories, Inc., largest producers of wall paper in the United States. Directors of the corporation which is a consolidation of several companies, elected Browning at a meeting in the New York offices.

Albert J. Browning.

The new president succeeds C. W. Kellogg of Hudson Falls, N. Y., who will continue as a director of the corporation. Before joining Montgomery Ward & Co. in 1934, Browning was general manager of the Peninsular Paint and Varnish company, a Sherwin-Williams subsidiary.

Browning will take office on Aug. 1 and will make his headquarters in Chicago. The company has plants in Chicago, Joliet, Appleton, Wis., and several eastern cities.

PLANTS LAY OFF 140,000 WORKERS IN LAST MONTH

Washington, D. C., July 22.—(AP)—The labor department estimated today in its monthly survey of employment that 140,000 wage earners in manufacturing industries were laid off from mid-May to mid-June. Factory pay rolls dropped $4,500,000 a week in the period.

Since June, 1937, the department said, factory employment has been cut one-fourth of the 1937 peak production period. In the same period weekly pay rolls were reduced by 35 per cent.

The largest employment reduction in manufacturing, the report stated, was recorded in the heavy industries, particularly machinery, steel products, automobile and railroad repair shops. Employment changes in nonmanufacturing industries were described as small.

Class one railroads, the department said, reported a net addition of 9,200 workers for increased maintenance work. This is the first increase in railroad employment recorded since July, 1937, the survey said. Anthracite mining increased its forces by 4,500, but 14,000 were laid off in June in soft coal and metal mining.

REOPEN 2 BLAST FURNACES IN CHICAGO AREA

The Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation announced yesterday that it has put two additional blast furnaces in operation in the Chicago district. One was added at the south works, which makes three out of a total of eleven blast furnaces there in operation. One was added at the Gary works, making three out of twelve in operation.

Blast furnaces produce the pig iron from which steel is made. Along with the placing of the two blast furnaces in operation, a few additional open herths were started at both the South and Gary works.

Officials of the company explained that the increased operations will give more work to men already on the pay rolls. Since the steel mill operations have been cut down, the amount of employment has fallen, although there has been an effort to divide as much work as possible among the men.

Business Books

"Monetary Policies of the United States, 1932-1938," by James Daniel Paris. [Columbia University Press, 2960 Broadway, New York, N. Y. Price, $2.75.]

After discussing the monetary conditions in this country just before the Roosevelt administration took office, the author outlines the monetary legislation of the last five years. He tells about manipulation of the gold dollar and "doing something" for silver. He has chapters on "The Changed Federal Reserve Note," "The Passing of the National Bank Note," and "Federal Reserve Bank Notes and Miscellaneous Currency." His final chapter is an appraisal of the monetary policies of the period studied.

Hope to End Packing Plant Strikes Today

Officials of five Chicago packing plants that have been tied up by strikes since July 13 last night expressed the belief that an agreement may be reached today which will permit resumption of operations. It was the first time since the labor dispute began that the companies have been hopeful of a settlement.

Representatives of the companies will meet this morning at 9 o'clock with officials of the United Packinghouse Workers Industrial union to discuss a new offer which was presented informally to the companies yesterday.

Basis Not Revealed.

The basis of the promised settlement was not disclosed. Officials of the companies insisted, however, that they are not giving ground on the union demands for a closed shop.

The companies earlier had met all the union demands relating to wages and hours, including the granting of vacations with pay. The company officials intimated that the C. I. O. unit is now ready to withdraw its request for a strict closed shop. The issue of the check-off system, under which the companies would collect dues for the union by docking workers' pay checks, was said to have been dismissed from consideration several days ago.

Deadlocked Ten Days.

The negotiations have been deadlocked for ten days, both sides declaring their resolution not to give in. The last formal conference was held Wednesday and lasted most of the night.

The companies involved in the strike are Roberts & Oake, 45th street and Racine avenue; Miller & Hart Packing company, Union Stockyards; Agar Packing and Provision company, 4057 South Union avenue; Illinois Meat company, 3939 South Wallace avenue, and P. Brennan Packing company, 3927 South Halsted street.

The five companies employ about 2,000 of the 20,000 plant workers in the stockyards.

Big Market Factor.

Taking advantage of the absence of the five strike-bound companies from the market, outside companies yesterday bought large supplies here. The hogs were sold for shipment to other packing centers. The outside buying steadied prices, halting the price cuts on heavy sows and butchers. Some light hogs and sows declined 5 to 10 cents a hundred pounds. Cattle and lamb prices gained, cattle bringing the highest prices quoted this week.

MOTOR JOURNAL REPORTS DERTH OF USED CARS

Detroit, Mich., July 22.—(AP)—Ward's automotive survey today reported "an increasing derth in used cars in key points," resulting from buying "so aggressive that a marked acceleration in price ranges has occurred."

"Should this situation continue until the new 1939 models find their way into dealers' hands," says the weekly review, "a car shortage such as the industry has not experienced in years will be at hand."

Ward's estimated this week's output of cars and trucks at 32,070 units, compared with 42,010 last week and 88,055 a year ago. The decline was attributed to the ending of 1938 model production in an added number of factories.

MUTUAL LIFE WILL LEND ON CHICAGO HOMES

Another big eastern life insurance concern has decided to make loans on Chicago residential properties. The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, which has confined its local lending to business properties, now plans to make 50 per cent loans on apartment properties and private dwellings.

This was announced yesterday by Gilbert H. Scribner of Winston & Co., loan agents for the insurance firm. The Mutual always has been an active lender on both business and residential properties in New York City and is now looking to Chicago as a source for conservative additions to its investment portfolio, Scribner said

82 COMPANIES EARN 59% LESS THAN YEAR AGO

Reports Issued for Second Quarter.

Combined earnings of the first 82 industrial companies reporting for the June quarter showed a drop of 59 per cent from the corresponding 1937 period, according to a Dow-Jones compilation yesterday. The increase in profits for the second three months over the first quarter of this year was only 3-10 of 1 per cent.

The 82 firms had aggregate net income of $30,537,573 in the quarter ended June 30, against $74,526,457 in the same 1937 quarter and $30,431,659 in the three months to March 31, 1938.

Yesterday's quarterly statements continued to show for most companies earnings well below those for the second quarter of last year, and net losses for a number of firms.

Show Lower Profits or Loss.

Profits of the Monsanto Chemical company, the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company, and the Certain teed Products corporation declined. Losses for the second quarter were reported by the Westinghouse Air Brake company, the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing company, and the Budd Wheel company.

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., which announced per share earnings for the second quarter on Monday, yesterday reported total net profit for the quarter of $9,877,003, against $23,-822,888 in the June, 1937, quarter, and $3,060,602 in the March quarter of this year. Per share figures were 71 cents on the common stock, against $2.07 a year ago and 65 cents in the March quarter.

Illinois Dairy Herd Sets New Record for Butterfat

Urbana, Ill., July 22.—(AP)—The dairy herd at the Inka farms of Hampshire, Ill., established a new monthly butterfat production record for Illinois dairy herds for 1938, according to a summary of reports of Dairy Herd Improvement association for June. J. G. Cash, dairy extension specialist of the college of agriculture at the University of Illinois, said the Kane county herd of 32 cows averaged 58.4 pounds of butterfat a cow.

MEXICO SHIPS OVER 10 MILLION DOLLARS WORTH OF GOLD TO U.S.

Figures released yesterday by the department of commerce disclosed that Mexico has shipped more than $10,300,000 gold to the United States in the last three weeks.

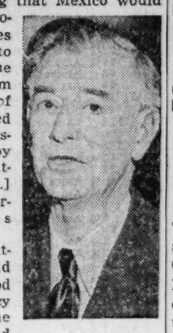
The gold was believed to have been shipped by the Bank of Mexico. It is reported that the bank is sending a large part of its gold reserve to New York, where it is being earmarked for its account.

Mexican shipments in the week ended July 15 amounted to $9,088,981, of a total of $21,489,337 received by the United States. Other receipts included $3,840,000 from Sweden, $4,979,-917 from England, and $12,356,710 from Australia. Silver imports for the week totaled $5,540,422, including $4,300,000 of Chinese silver coin.

Foreign currencies were firm in the exchange market yesterday after showing weakness in relation to the dollar earlier in the week. The British pound closed unchanged. French and Netherlands currencies recorded small gains.

Warns Mexico to Arbitrate Land Seizure

Washington, D. C., July 22.—(AP)—A blunt warning that Mexico would be subject to economic penalties if she refused to arbitrate the issue arising from her seizure of American owned farm land was issued today by Chairman Pittman [D., Nev.] of the senate foreign relations committee.



Senator Pittman.

A refusal, Pittman said, would "destroy the good neighbor policy as far as the United States and Mexico are concerned."

"Mexico," he continued, "then would forfeit all the financial and other voluntary aid we have given her through our spirit of friendship and desire for peace, prosperity, and upbuilding of that country."

Silver Purchases Recalled.

This recalled that the United States is the most important purchaser of Mexican silver, and that silver sales are an important factor in the Mexican economy.

Pittman's statements attracted attention, especially since he often reflects administration views on foreign affairs. His statement was a follow-up to Secretary of State Hull's note to Mexico yesterday, protesting Mexico's failure to pay for American owned farm lands seized over a period of years and asking that the question be submitted to arbitration.

Although Hull's note did not mention the seizure of the property of American oil companies, Pittman took the view that the note meant the United States would insist on compensation for any seized property of its nationals.

Repudiates Mexican View.

Publication of the Hull note, Pittman said, was a repudiation of assertions made in Mexico that the United States government "was in sympathy with the policy being carried out by the Cardenas government in its expropriation of property, not only agrarian, but mineral also."

"The oil incident, although involving some different factors, was but a continuation of similar acts committed against American farmers under the agrarian act," the senator added.

T. R. Armstrong of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, conferred with Secretary of State Cordell Hull today on the oil expropriations in Mexico. Hull later described the visit as a periodic call for an exchange of information.

MEXICO CITY, July 22.—President Lazaro Cardenas began this morning to study and confer upon the United States note of Thursday asserting the principle that the Mexican government must pay full indemnity at the time of expropriation of foreign properties in conformity with accepted international usage.

Japan Buys Mexican Oil.

New York, July 22.—[Special.]—The Japanese steamer Tatekawa Maru is scheduled to arrive on Monday at a Mexican port on the Gulf of Mexico to take on a cargo of 12,-000 tons, or about 85,000 barrels, of fuel oil, according to information received in shipping circles here today. The oil has been purchased by Mitsui & Co. through its San Francisco office for delivery at Yokohama.

MIDWEST STORES SELL 11.9% LESS THAN YEAR AGO

Department stores in the 7th federal reserve district sold 11.9 per cent less merchandise in the week ended July 16 than in the corresponding 1937 week, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported yesterday. Sales in Chicago alone were 8.9 per cent below those of a year ago, the bank said.

Detroit showed the largest slump of all cities in the 7th district, sales for the week being 24.2 per cent under a year ago. The best showing was made by Indianapolis, where department store sales showed an increase of 5.8 per cent over those of last year.

June quarter sales of the American Colortype company totaled $1,863,714, a decrease of 10.5 per cent from the like quarter in 1937. Retail sales of the Grand Union company amounted to $7,629,424 for the three months ended July 2, or 3.7 per cent below last year.

Of the amount to be sold, $1,100,000 will mature Aug. 1, 1956, and the other $1,100,000 on Aug. 1, 1957. Both issues will pay 3 per cent interest.

ASSOCIATED GAS CHARGED WITH LAW VIOLATIONS

SEC Hits Maturity Extension Plan.

New York, July 22.—[Special.]—The securities and exchange commission today charged the Associated Gas and Electric company with violation of the public utility holding company act of 1935 and the securities act of 1933. The complaint was filed in United States District court here.

The violations occurred, the SEC charged, in connection with the company's effort to extend the maturity of an issue of securities maturing Nov. 15. The action is the first of its kind since the United States Supreme court upheld the holding company act in the Electric Bond and Share case.

Sought 1 to 5 Year Extension.

The company, top holding firm in the Associated Gas system, is seeking approval of the holders of its 5½ per cent investment certificates to extend the maturity dates from one to five years.

That the utility system violated the holding company act by not asking SEC approval of the plan for extending the maturing certificates.

That the plan for extending the maturity is, in effect, a plan for reorganization and must be filed with the commission for approval. This, it asserted, was not done.

That the plan involves the sale of securities without SEC registration, which constitutes a violation of the securities act of 1933.

Company's Explanation.

At the office of the company it was said that officials have been in disagreement with the commission over the latter's jurisdiction over its refunding program.

Under the plan, the company explained holders of the certificates were asked to accept 20 per cent in cash and 80 per cent in new certificates to run one or five years. The offer was made, the company said, to conserve its cash in a period of "unsettled business."

Other companies and individuals named in the complaint are General Utility Securities company [of New York], General Utility Securities company [of Delaware], Associated Gas and Electric Securities Company, Inc. [of New York], Associated Gas and Electric Securities Company, Inc. [of Delaware], Daniel H. Starch, N. H. Jones, and James H. Shinn, individually and as trustees of a trust doing business under the name of Transfer and Paying Agency [a trust]; N. H. Jones, James H. Shinn, and H. M. Wetherell, individually and as trustees of a trust doing business under the name of Finance and Securities Assistants; also Finance and Securities Assistants [a trust]; Stacy O. Sears, and Frederick S. Burroughs.

Contacted Holders.

General Utility Securities companies of New York and Delaware are declared to have soliciated exchanges from dealers, while Associated Gas and Electric Securities Company, Inc., contacted individual holders.

Daniel H. Starch is a brother-in-law of H. C. Hopson, former head of the company, while N. H. Jones is Norma H. Jones, his sister.

A petition for an order to show cause why an injunction to remain in effect pending determination of the suit in which permanent injunctive relief is asked should not be granted was filed with Federal Judge W. Goddard. The government asks that preliminary injunction be granted upon the signing of the order.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 22.—[Special.]—Closing stock market prices were irregularly higher today. Fractional changes were the rule for leading issues, although one or two point differences on either side appeared against several active stocks.

Turnover fell to 1,222,140 shares, with trading enlivened by only one minor buying flurry. Of 831 issues traded, 375 closed higher, 261 lower, and 195 unchanged.

After irregular movements in the first two hours, the list met some moderately good buying around midday to register substantial gains. Aviation, rubbers, coppers, and rails were prominent in the upswing in rotating interest. The rally died, however, and prices retreated. A fair portion of the gains were held. Last hour transactions were dull.

Aviation issues were first to assume leadership of the market. Several climbed to new highs for the year, but best prices were shaded at the finish. Boeing was most active in the division and showed a gain of ¾ point.

Coppers stiffened on the price rise, but then backed down again. Automobile and motor transportation issues closed fractionally higher. Carrier shares had alternating periods of weakness and strength. Dull in the early trading, a mild rally was touched off on the car loading announcement.

Steels closed mixed in a narrow range. United States Steel common, Bethlehem and National Steel dipped. Youngstown, Crucible and Inland closed higher. The last named added 1 point.

New York Bonds.

New York, July 22.—(AP)—Low priced rails pulled the bond market out of a period of indecision today. Several climbed 1 to 3 points in the final hour after hesitating in earlier trading.

Announcement of a more than seasonally expected upturn in carloadings was the spark that brought new buying orders for the carrier obligations. The demand was going strong at the close when most leaders were at the day's tops.

Industrials, utilities, and other types of liens tended to go along with the rails, but there was some irregularity. The foreign group was unsettled by heavy offerings of Japanese governments, brought out, presumably by uneasiness over the latest Russo-Japanese incident.

United States governments held to the narrowest range ended 2-32 of a point higher to 5-32 lower.

Chicago Stocks.

Chicago stocks were irregular yesterday as volume slipped to 32,000 shares, compared with 37,000 on the preceding day. Of the 105 issues traded, forty-five advanced, thirty-four were lower and twenty-six unchanged. Seven issues established new highs for the year.

Midland United preferred closed at a new 1938 top of 6½, up 1¼, on sales of 2,550 shares. Commonwealth Edison slipped ⅛ to 26⅞. Central and South West gained 1¼ to close at 2. Finishing ⅛ lower were Bendix Aviation at 18¼, and Armour at 6⅝. Middle West at 7¼ and Chicago corporation at 2⅜ finished unchanged. Butler Brothers common advanced ⅛ to 9⅝.

Bank Stocks.

First National bank stock gained $1 yesterday to close at $224 bid, $227 asked price. All other Chicago bank shares were unchanged in quiet trading.

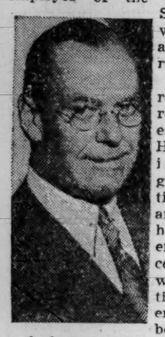
STRIKE LOOMS ON NORTH SHORE LINE OVER PAY

Receiver Proposes Wage Cut of 15 Per Cent.

Possibility of a strike of about 1,300 employés of the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad, after Aug. 15, was raised yesterday.



A. A. Sprague.

A. A. Sprague, receiver of the road, asked Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson for instructions regarding a situation which has arisen because he had asked the employés to accept a 15 per cent wage cut, effective Aug. 15. The employés, members of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, so far have refused to accept the cut.

Judge Wilkerson referred the matter to Jacob I. Grossman, master in chancery, for a recommendation.

Contract to Be Canceled.

Sprague set forth that the employés have been working under a contract made June 30, 1938, and notice has been served on the employés that it will be canceled.

He said that because of a marked reduction in revenues since the latter part of 1937 and to the mounting cost of operation, he was forced to ask the employés to take a pay cut of 15 per cent.

Sprague said the wage reduction was to be effective only while revenues were down. Under the company's proposal, he explained, wages were to be increased 1½ per cent when daily gross revenues for the preceding month totaled between $1,850 and $12,199. As the total increased the wages were to be increased on a graduated basis until the full amount of the 15 per cent reduction was restored.

Union Demands Contract.

Sprague explained that members of the union say they will not work without a contract and as he has informed the union that the contract will be canceled effective Aug. 15 it is presumed that work will cease after that date. He added that the men took a 10 per cent wage deduction in 1932, when the situation was serious, and it was hoped they would take this deduction.

He said that current assets of the road totaled $600,804 on June 30, 1938, and that current liabilities amounted to $1,128,923. The deficit for the 12 months ended June 30, he said, was $227,194.

The North Shore line is not a party to the present wage controversy between the class 1 railroads and the railroad brotherhoods. Amalgamated does not belong to the railroad union group.

Schenley Distillers Corp.

Investors' Guide: Please give me ... information on Schenley Distil... corporation.—R. J.

Answer: Schenley Distillers corporation, incorporated in 1933 about the time the federal prohibition laws were repealed, is a holding company whose subsidiaries produce rye and bourbon whisky and other distilled spirits. Subsidiary companies also import various alcoholic beverages.

Principal distilleries controled by the corporation are located at Lexington, Frankfort and Louisville, Ky., Lawrenceburg, Ind., and Schenley, Pa.

A number of well known brands of whisky are marketed by Schenley. Among them are "Golden Wedding," "Melvale," "McGinnis," "Old Schenley," "Wilken Family," "Montecello," "Cream of Kentucky," and a number of others. The company also makes "Silver Wedding" gin.

Schenley faces the same problems confronting other companies in the industry. Production of whisky has been exceeding consumption and its stocks have become larger than necessary for normal aging requirements. Production turned down in the second half of last year, but consumption also fell off because of the business depression.

Net income for the first quarter of this year was only $364,712, or 10 cents a common share, compared with $1,813,272, or $1.25 a share, in the corresponding period last year. The 1938 second quarter report has not been issued, but directors on June 9 deferred action on the common stock dividend due about this time. The record of earnings in recent years:

	Net sales.	Net income	Earned per com. share
1936	82,220,448	8,227,796	7.05
1935	63,045,937	8,035,268	7.65
1934	40,275,470	6,970,961	6.64

Capitalization consists of 176,250 shares of $100 par 5½ per cent cumulative preferred stock and 1,260,000 shares of $5 par common stock.

Schenley had $22,700.000 in bank loans outstanding at the end of last year. The annual report issued Feb. 25, 1938, said, however, that the loans had been reduced by $3,200,000, since the end of 1937.

Total assets were $82,462,767 on Dec. 31, 1937. Current assets were $64,427,567 and current liabilities were $5,715,371. Of the current assets, $43,705,889 were represented by inventories, carried at lower of cost or market. A year earlier inventories were $35,675,155.
